A New Line of Modernized Trailers designed to Meet Modern Demands

THERE can be no doubt about the economic value of any good trailer from the standpoint of increasing payload capacity and reducing per-ton-mile costs.

Constant improvements in the motor truck field, however, have brought new demands upon the trailer. Lighter weight, greater power and higher speeds in trucks require new principles of trailer design and construction . . . such as incorporated in the new line of Stoughton Cushioned Trailers. The Stoughton Cushioned Fifth Wheel is to the trailer what "floating power" is to the automobile. It brings to truck and trailer performance advantages so great as to seem almost incredible. The mechanical design is simplicity itself, the construction is practically indestructible . . . and the application is an automotive triumph.

The Stoughton shock-absorbing cushioned fifth-wheel trailer is a thoroughly modernized truck transportation unit, especially adapted to the trucking and warehousing field . . . with a type of frame and body for every purpose. Stoughton Trailers will add years to the life of your trucking equipment and greatly reduce your operating costs.

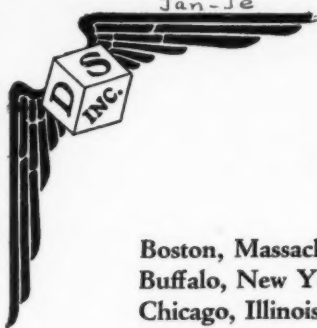

Write for descriptive literature, specifications and prices. Tell us what size trailer you are interested in, and the type of body on which you want special information.

SERVICE-AMERICAN TWO-WHEEL HAND-TRUCK

Light to handle, but a tough nut to crack if you will test its strength. Beaded U-section channel steel side rails give a remarkable ratio of weight to strength.

This is the parallel side rail model with inside wheels (Style W). Made in 48, 52, 54 and 56 inch sizes with straight cross bars and plain bearing cast wheels. Optional specifications: Hyatt bearing wheels—Textolite wheels.

TEXTOLITE WHEELS

Marked saving in floor wear plus silent operation are secured by specifying Textolite Wheels. Strength of steel, far greater endurance than other protective tread wheels.

SERVICE PIANO DOLLY

A real dolly, built to outlast and out-roll any home-made dolly every inch or mile it travels. New light-weight design. Equipped with super-casters that will stand up to crushing overloads. Double ball swivel bearing—double ball hub bearings and 4 inch rubber wheels. Eighteen by twenty-eight and seven-and-a-half inches high. The question is not "if" but "how many"?

DOUBLE TRUCK PAY-LOADS

FOR protection of highways the capacity of a truck is limited to the number of wheels and tires that carry the load. By increasing the number of wheels and distributing the weight over more tires much greater pay-load may be safely carried.

UTILITY Six-Wheel Attachments are meeting these requirements by adding two extra wheels to four-wheel trucks increasing the pay-loads and also reducing the operating costs.

RELIEVE OVERLOADING

By the application of UTILITY Six-Wheel Attachments the drive axle, springs and tires are relieved of the usual overload, which is the direct cause of much trouble and expense in the maintenance of four-wheel trucks. When the Attachment is installed the excessive weight is transferred from the drive axle to the Attachment axle, thereby eliminating the overload on drive wheels.

UTILITY TRAILER MANUFACTURING CO.

Box 1407, Arcade Station, Los Angeles, California

REDUCE TIRE COSTS

UTILITY Six-Wheel Attachments eliminate the necessity for using large tires on the drive wheels, since the required weight can be carried by the increased number of smaller tires—which are less expensive. The truck capacity may be greatly increased and tire costs reduced.

FOR ALL MAKE TRUCKS

UTILITY Six-Wheel Attachments are manufactured in several sizes for all standard make trucks, except those in the Ford and Chevrolet class.

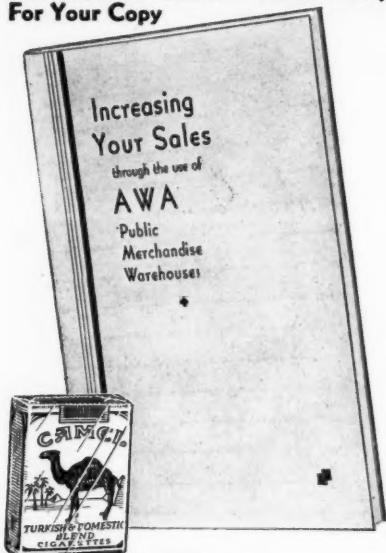

These attachments are readily adaptable to various size truck frames and enable correct spacing of axles for different size tires. No changes are necessary in the truck's construction. The installation is simple and requires but a few hours labor time.

Write today for illustrated folder "Double Truck Pay-Loads," giving full information on construction and uses of Utility Six Wheel attachments.

Meet Today's Problems by cutting your Distribution Costs

TO INSURE profits nowadays, manufacturers must distribute their merchandise with maximum efficiency and at minimum cost. Many of America's industrial leaders—including the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company—have found that the use of public warehouses improves their distribution and at the same time lowers their cost.

L. F. Owen, Traffic Manager of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, says: "We use AWA Warehouses from coast to coast for the distribution of Camel Cigarettes and Prince Albert Smoking Tobacco, 'The National Joy Smoke'. We have found that by using public warehouses we are able to give our customers quicker service and thereby save considerable time in transportation; and, incidentally, have cut down loss and damage claims to a very low minimum."

No matter what you make or market, AWA warehouses (located in every distribution center of importance, throughout the country) can furnish all necessary facilities and service required for the strategic spot-stock distribution of your raw materials, manufactured articles or service parts.

... to the Warehouseman:

Advertisements like these are appearing regularly in the nation's leading business magazines... advertisements that are educational in purpose—informing American business men of the advantages of distributing their merchandise through A.W.A. warehouses.

Sales leads resulting from these advertisements are handled through the A.W.A. Service Bureau in Chicago; and are referred directly to the A.W.A. "Investor Warehouses" who have financed the campaign.

Steadily and effectively... this campaign of education moves forward.

Get This FREE BOOK As You Face The Problems of 1932

THE coming twelve months, more than any period in the last decade, will test your ability as a business builder... will prove your skill as a business conservator. Your desire to enlarge and expand will be tempered with caution and careful calculation—as general business begins to pick up and you move ahead, slowly perhaps, but wisely.

Alert executives, in these trying times, are finding fruitful knowledge and common-sense inspiration in a booklet published by the American Warehousemen's Association—a booklet entitled: "Increasing Your Sales Through the Use of A.W.A. Merchandise Warehouses." It tells how to gain regional or national distribution for your product, at minimum cost... how to reduce branch house overhead by using our warehouses as your own branch distributing points... how to place spot stocks of your merchandise in the cities where your goods can be most readily and profitably sold.

This booklet, now in its third edition, will be of real help to the sales manager, general manager or president of any manufacturing business. It will show you how to get strategic distribution for raw materials, manufactured articles and service parts of all kinds. Economical, efficient distribution—at minimum cost!

No matter what you make or market, write today for a copy of the A.W.A. booklet. It's yours, without obligation, on request.

FEDERAL MOTOR TRUCK COMPANY,
DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

Gentlemen:

When we decided to enter long distance motor freight hauling between Evansville and Chicago, we considered a number of different makes of trucks. We are more than pleased that we decided on FEDERAL Trucks.

Our first Model 4C6ABS Tractor now has a total mileage of 105,000 miles. This job pulls one 20ft semi and one 20ft four wheel trailer. It makes two round trips each week between Evansville and Chicago, with a round trip mileage of 650 miles. This job has never missed a trip on its schedule. It still has the original 10-50 balloon tires on the front wheels, and there has never been any work required on the motor or chassis outside of small adjustments. We also expect to get many more miles before requiring complete overhauling.

Our second Model 4C6ABS Tractor also operates on the Chicago route and is pulling a 28ft semi trailer. It now has a total mileage of 75,000 miles. This job is doing the same work and giving the same satisfactory service.

We also operate one of your Model T10B Trucks and a 20ft semi trailer on our Louisville route. This unit also is giving very high class service.

FEDERAL Motor Trucks have more than exceeded our expectations for reliability, performance and exceptionally low maintenance and operating costs.

We might also state that the service and cooperation we have received from your local distributors, The J.F. Charley Auto Co., has been highly satisfactory.

Yours very truly,

Warehousing Foresees Fairer Skies in 1932

Annual Review and Forecast

WAREHOUSING visualizes business emerging from the depression shadows into sunshine. The industry recognizes that the sky is a bit overcast as the new year dawns, but believes that sun-up is not far distant and that the coming of the rays will drive away the past year's mists in due time and reveal in clear outline the paths that lead to normalcy.

It seems fair so to interpret the opinions which warehousing's trade association presidents have contributed to this business magazine's annual "review and forecast" symposium. These opinions, expressed by forty-three executives, are published on the following pages.

Sun-up will not come immediately, the opinions infer, for there are existing storm clouds and these must first be blown away. But signs of warm winds are observed, and fair skies are anticipated—some suggest in the spring; others say not until the fall.

The industry itself must aid Nature, we are told. There must be grim determination, conscientious effort. There must be the spirit of courage; generosity and sportsmanship; nerve and judgment and a clear head; faith and a persistent will to do. There must be business ethics of the highest character, each executive staying on the job with diligence and handling each new problem with care and study. Reasonable rates must be maintained in return for punctual and efficient services. Stocks have dwindled but orders have increased in numbers, and charges must be revised to meet the changed requirements, with extra assessments for small deliveries. Side lines must be developed. Employment must be stabilized.

One association president suggests uniform State laws to govern warehousing and transportation; another that motor freight must be regulated.

As for adverse factors in today's situation, emphasis is placed on competition by the railroads, steamship companies and motor freight organizations.

There are some presidents who take the view that warehousing has suffered less than many other industries, and that those individual companies which have successfully weathered the storm owe their sound condition in 1932 to cooperation with their fellows through the instrumentality of the trade association.

Turn now to page 12 and read what two score leaders in warehousing think regarding the problems ahead.

Affairs Abroad and Here May Retard Recovery

By Elmer Erickson, Chicago
General President American
Warehousemen's Association

AT this time, the ending of the year 1931, it must be generally conceded that the warehousing industry has suffered a little less than any other business. We are passing through a period which keeps us constantly face to face with changes and developments which command facts, intelligence and foresight if they are to be dealt with in a manner which will insure a brighter future for the industry.

Most every activity about this entire civilized world has an effect directly or indirectly upon all peoples and all businesses, and there now exists a worldwide state of confusion. Except to say that fundamentally our institutions are sound and so far as we are concerned we are a great nation, very few venture to prophesy in regard to the immediate future. No one professes to see very far ahead, but it seems the feeling is quite general that there is now a brighter outlook for 1932, although at the present time business outlook is regarded as extremely difficult for the next four to six months because of uncertainties relative to European financial and political developments, the railroads, domestic banking situation, and the Congressional legislative prospect. It is possible that the beginning of a permanent trade upturn will be delayed just that much for these reasons.

In mentioning the warehouse industry, I refer particularly to refrigerated and merchandise warehouses. I rather feel that while present business conditions might affect them differently, they have been affected, been forced to treat with changing conditions and adopt aggressive measures in defense of the industry and to protect its future.

Fortunately the industry has been farsighted and shrewd enough to maintain its main lines of defence by wholehearted support of its trade associations. Warehousemen who are weathering the storm might well give considerable credit to the cooperative spirit which exists between members of the craft, to the accounting methods and standards of practice which have now proved so valuable in fortifying against bombardment for adjustments in services and rates. It is necessary in times like these to make constant adjustments in operations to meet fluctuations and expenses, increased taxes and increased demands for service to customers, and to recognize that now more than ever before the accounting department is quite the most important department in operations, for certainly without it no one through force of competition would dare offer rates which might spell difficulty if not financial embarrassment.

Warehousemen with facts in hand, high-class honest operations, and courage to defend them in real or unreal war between industries, will come through and find a better year at the close of 1932.

Remarkable changes are taking place in the use and application of refrigeration and refrigerated products; likewise unbelievable changes are taking place in distribution. While the flow of food products of all kinds has been quite regular by reason of a more regular demand, it is, of course, known that in other lines, stocks and inventories generally have never been so low, relatively speaking. Speed and methods of delivery, whether by water, rail or truck, and even by air, afford the warehousing industry opportunities too numerous to mention by way of adjusting to the newer era and placing the business in line to serve in the future and get its share of business alongside other industries.

General enlightenment and cooperative effort through our trade associations and a spirit of courage, generosity and sportsmanship are, and will be, our salvation.

Local Cooperation Will Solve Problems

By Martin H. Kennelly, Chicago,
President National Furniture
Warehousemen's Association

WHAT does 1932 hold for the household goods industry? Certainly 1931 has exploded the fallacy believed by many—that in hard times household goods warehousemen prosper most. That may have been true in hard times, but certainly not in a period of depression or a period when prosperity was just around the corner.

I think it has been proved, too, that our industry is a part of the whole economic business structure and is affected favorably or adversely by conditions.

Our business is a necessity. People are not using our service because they are not financially able to do so.

The local, State and national associations of warehousemen prove their value in these times. Without them the industry would be utterly demoralized. Closer working together in local groups will solve many problems. They just cannot be solved any other way.

Keep our physical properties in condition so that when business is offered we will be able to take care of it.

"We Are Coming Out of the Depression"

By F. R. Long, St. Louis, President
Merchandise Division American
Warehousemen's Association

THE souls of folks are tried in adversity. I believe that out of the travail that we have suffered for two years will come blessings which could have come in no other way.

The workers of our country in the future must have their employment stabilized and their living secured. We read of plans to make this certain. Surely our President is showing statesmanship in his proposals to reestablish business. Men are giving more thought to deeply vital things than ever before.

Inventories are low; so low in fact that often goods are made after orders are received. This tends to slow up the machine of business.

There will be a change in all this. Manufacturing will begin again to be extended, stocks will be accumulated, business will again take on momentum. The depression has not been an entire calamity. 1932 is before us. We are coming out of the depression.

Rates Must Be Based on Actual Costs

By V. O. Appel, Chicago, President
Cold Storage Division American
Warehousemen's Association

BECAUSE of conditions which have adversely affected the business of our patrons, and more particularly because of the great surplus of refrigerated space in the United States, the cold storage business this last year has not been and at the present time is not good. Lack of proper cooperation on the part of some warehousemen has also influenced the condition.

As to the outlook for the future, I can only give it as my opinion that the individual concern cannot hope to prosper unless and until the industry as a whole prospers. As an industry, we are confronted with many problems, and we alone have the ability to solve them. Grim determination, conscientious effort, and honest cooperation in our competition should carry us through. However, it should be borne in mind that there perhaps never was greater need for organized effort in the cold storage business than there is at the present time.

The management of every cold storage warehouse, no matter where located, must exert every effort to bring about a maximum of efficiency in its service to the public; it must study its costs of operation, effect as many economies as possible, and strive to earn a reasonable return on investment. This latter can be accomplished only by charging rates which reflect a reasonable profit based on actual costs.

The Far West

Price-Slashing Not Justified by Costs

By Harvey B. Lyon, Oakland, Western
Vice-President National Furniture
Warehousemen's Association

1931 has been a trying year for the furniture warehouseman. The depression has borne down upon our industry along with others. Landlords have offered extraordinary inducements to tenants to keep them from moving or storing. And many long-time storage customers have demanded reductions in rates or have taken their goods out of the warehouse in their effort to make outgo fit diminished income.

We are hopeful that what might be termed this "deflation" in storage accounts has practically reached its bottom. This can be true, however, only if general business conditions start moving

Three-quarters of a century ago, on Oct. 10, 1857, "Harper's Weekly" published, on page 642 of its Vol. I, a brief little sermon, applicable now almost in its entirety, titled "The Lesson of the Day," which the St. Louis Refrigerating & Cold Storage Company has reprinted and is giving wide distribution. The text follows:

IT is a gloomy moment in history. Not for many years—not in the lifetime of most men who read this paper—has there been so much grave and deep apprehension; never has the future seemed so incalculable as at this time. In our own country there is universal commercial prostration and panic, and thousands of our poorest fellow-citizens are turned out against the approaching winter without employment, and without prospect of it.

In France, the political caldron seethes and bubbles with uncertainty; Russia hangs as usual, like a cloud, dark and silent upon the horizon of Europe; while all the energies, resources and influences of the British Empire are sorely tried, and are yet to be tried more sorely, in coping with the vast and deadly Indian insurrection, and with its disturbed relations in China.

It is a solemn moment, and no man can feel an indifference (which, happily, no man pretends to feel) in the issue of events.

Of our own troubles no man can see the end. They are, fortunately, as yet mainly commercial; and if we are only to lose money, and by painful poverty to be taught wisdom—the wisdom of honor, of faith, of sympathy and of charity—no man need seriously to despair. And yet the very haste to be rich, which is the occasion of this wide-spread calamity, has also tended to destroy the moral forces with which we are to resist and subdue the calamity.

Good Friends—Let our conduct prove that the call comes to men who have large hearts, however narrowed their homes may be; who have open hands, however empty their purses. In time of peril we have nothing but manhood, strong in its faith in God, to rely upon; and whoever shows himself truly a God-fearing man now, by helping wherever and however he can, will be as blessed and beloved as a great light in darkness.

And time went on and men found jobs and prosperity returned. So it will be again, inevitably, for Business America, of which warehousing is a part, is fundamentally sound.

in the right direction. Personally I feel that 1932 will be a year of gradual improvement; possibly more rapid than we think.

The main challenge to the warehouseman is to keep his nerve and judgment and not reduce prices that are justified by costs. The main pressure to cut prices has been in the cartage field, due to the fact that it can be entered overnight by almost any irresponsible party. Fortunately only a few cities have yielded to this pressure, and they are practically a unit in saying that they made a mistake. They have not increased their volume; the cost has come entirely out of their net profits.

Here are some interesting quotations from leading firms in cities that have cut:

Los Angeles—"The smaller transfer men in competition have simply reduced their rates under ours and they continue to get as much business as they did before our rates were reduced." "If anything, it seems to me we have done less work under the new rate than under the old."

Grand Rapids, Mich.—"Our experience in reducing the hourly moving rates shows conclusively and positively that the only result is to reduce the income of the company."

Atlanta—"We made a big mistake in reducing our prices. There was no increase in the volume of our business."

Cleveland—"Our rate was reduced 20 per cent June 1, 1930. From June 1, 1930, to May 31, 1931, there was a reduction of 23 per cent in the volume of business."

Milwaukee—"Our volume has not increased, but the gross receipts have been reduced in proportion to the reduction made in our hourly rate."

Let the rest of us profit by the experiences of our fellows.

Worst of the Trials Behind

By William A. Cassell, Pasadena, President California Van & Storage Association

ASATISFACTORY forecast for 1932 is not easy. So many unwarranted optimistic statements have been made during the past year or two that most people are skeptical.

Our greatest business experts have failed often to come even close to the actual facts, and today no one apparently knows just what is to come. There does seem in various activities to be a slight turn up-grade; certainly we seem to have hit bottom some time since, and any change will be for the better.

The stock market has stabilized to some extent, and industrial leaders seem in a better frame of mind than for some time. Any improvement in general business conditions will necessarily be slow, but when the improvement becomes generally apparent, will, like the proverbial snowball, gain momentum.

In my opinion the warehouse industry has the worst of its trials behind it, and if we keep our heads clear and our courage up, better times will be showing over the horizon before the year is over.

May Be Compelled to Make Extra Charges

By W. E. Fessenden, Los Angeles, President California Warehouse-
men's Association

AS to what will happen to the warehouse business in 1932, I only wish that I was in a position to forecast, but candidly I have no fears but that we will make progress. I believe that, in a broad sense, the warehousemen of California have been sensible enough not to listen or grant rate reduction when requested to do so by storers. Being under the jurisdiction of the State Railroad Commission, we believe that we can look to them for some help during 1932, as they have recently given indications of being interested in our industry.

There have been three or four failures, but without exception they were due to low rates, and while these rates were not legal, there is always a way, of course, of covering up.

There was a decision handed down by the Commission recently in a trucking investigation which should have much to do in helping and clarifying the warehouse situation in our State.

We believe that the fight which the American Warehousemen's Association is making against Government encroachment in our business will bear fruit during the year 1932 and should react favorably on the industry at large.

If the present hand-to-mouth buying continues, warehousemen will find themselves with their backs to the wall and will be forced to make an extra charge for small deliveries.

Mutual Aid the Key to Permanent Recovery

By E. O. F. Ames, President General
Cartage & Storage Association of British Columbia

LIKE everybody else, I hope for more decided evidence of a turn to better business in 1932. Also, I fear, like many others, that it may be slow in coming.

The international factors in the way of rapid recovery are unsettled political conditions, wars and rumors of war, and, last but not least, the general bankrupt condition of most governments.

Debts must be reviewed, if not removed. Nations must pay their way. They must earn more, spend less and learn to cooperate in the economic realm.

In local life the same remedies are urgently necessary. Mutual aid, in my opinion, is the only means to permanent recovery. Mutual aid means mutual confidence, willingness to give to the group in order to share a common good. This is all so obvious that I hesitate to take up your space.

"The Worst Is Over"

By Jack Fortune, Seattle, President
Washington State Warehouse-
men's Association

TO read the future is a difficult role. Many factors far beyond the influence of our local community will have their effect. Without a doubt stocks in warehouses in this part of the country are the lowest they have been in years. The liquidation in values of all lines of business has been tremendous. As is well known, our three basic industries, lumber, fish and agriculture, have felt the full effect of the depression, and this has stifled the buying power of our people.

One thing in our favor is that we have had no major commercial bank failures in this State, which is a wonderful record when you consider the devastation in other parts of the country.

In this age of psychology the thing that will make our business recovery speedier than other parts of the country is that this is the last frontier of the great West and the people still have the pioneer spirit and will be able to readjust themselves to the changing conditions more quickly.

While I do not foresee any great change in business for the next year, I believe the worst of the depression is over and possibly by early fall we may have arrived at a more normal condition.

Industry's Prosperity "Depends on the Many"

By Carl H. Suhr, Great Falls,
President, Transfer and Storage
Men's Association of Montana

WAREHOUSING is no different from 95 per cent of our other major industries. It has its bright, optimistic periods, and then tomorrow it is not adverse to the changing of conditions which paints the opposite picture.

When the individual, the merchant, the wholesaler and the jobber recover from their present set-back, then will we, as warehousemen, stage a "come-back." Our present economic conditions have made it possible for "big business" to maintain their own warehouse stocks throughout the country, whereas the average jobber cannot finance his own share, and our prosperity depends on the many rather than the few.

Stocks on Hand

Curtalement on the part of national wholesalers has reduced, and in many cases eliminated, certain branches throughout the country, thus centralizing warehousing in a few desirable, selective centers.

However, when you consider the territory west of the Twin Cities, bearing in mind the great distance that we are from the principal buying markets, and also considering the small amount of merchandise which can be carried on hand by the various merchants—should it not be advisable for the wholesaler to carry a certain stock on hand? This would enable him to be in on the ground floor as the conditions return to their former state.

Warehousing unquestionably will show a marked increase in the future as the average wholesaler and jobber realizes that he cannot maintain the overhead in connection with carrying and operating his own individual warehouse.

Warehousing Sound and Can Be Kept So

By S. M. Haslett, President Warehousemen's Association of the Port of San Francisco

IN general, commercial storage business in this district is not much different from a year ago. Our industry has suffered perhaps less in gross volume than most others. What seems to affect us most is the changing characteristics of our business and our rising costs due to the different mode in which our tonnage comes to us and is later distributed. The wholesale aspect of our turnover is fast declining, and yet under present conditions there is manifestly a reluctance to recapture our increased costs through correspondingly increased rates.

The year 1932 depends much upon the extent to which business confidence is restored. With commodity prices changing on both raw materials and manufactured products, our turnover may be expected to be mostly made up of smaller units. We notice gradual additions to our list of patrons, and as they are able to increase their business, we may expect corresponding benefits.

No doubt many distributors, who have been burdened with costly distribution depots, are now realizing the economic advantages of using public warehouses where their distributing costs rise and fall according to the fluctuations of their business. Here is a potential field for new accounts.

The warehouse business remains sound regardless of declines in volume accounts and may be kept sound by the simple expedient of maintaining reasonable rates for services punctual and efficient.

Warehousing Must "Combine in a Definite Program"

By H. M. Clark, President
Portland (Ore.) Draymen &
Warehousemen's Association

THE Pacific Northwest, in common with the country at large, has experienced radical changes in the characteristics of warehouse business which will probably continue throughout the coming year. The hand-to-mouth buying program, largely due to the development of motor truck transportation, has resulted in smaller stocks and greatly increased the number of orders for the same volume of business. The expense of warehouse service has been multiplied until it is now out of all proportion to the revenue.

The present problem of warehouses is to revise service charges to meet these new requirements.

At the principal port cities, steamship lines are warehousing merchandise, practically without charge. The situation in this respect is about the same as the Mississippi-Warrior service, so far as it concerns warehouses.

Split delivery of carloads by water among the Pacific Coast ports has contributed to smaller warehouse lots.

Store-door pick-up and delivery service by motor freight and rail transport lines has interfered with systematic distribution and saddled upon warehouses a multitude of details, reduced revenues and increased expenses.

The present need of the industry is to combine in a definite program to place revenues for service and facilities upon an adequate basis—one that will meet the increased costs plus a reasonable margin of profit. Charges for warehousing have for years been woefully out of line with the value and cost of the service.

Costs and Profits

The time has come for those engaged in the business (shall I say profession?) of warehousing to take their business in hand and by reorganizing service charges upon the basis of cost plus a fair and reasonable profit, so to dignify its place in the scheme of merchandise distribution that it will attain the increased respect of the manufacturing industry.

This will call for more cooperative effort than ever before in local, regional and national associations. Our problems are too broad to be solved individually. We must take collective action to set up a resistance to the forces that would destroy our industry, and we cannot hope to accomplish this unless we first establish faith and confidence in one another, locally, regionally and nationally.

The Central West

Tied to Rise and Fall of American Business

By Lee N. Foster, Chicago, President Illinois Furniture Warehousemen's Association

IN our storage warehouse association in Chicago we are maintaining price levels to a surprising degree in storage. There has been some falling off of storage volume, but not to the large degree shown in other lines of business.

The theory that there is an increase in the household goods storage business during times of depression has been exploded again. However, when we look back on this depression I think we will find that those storage companies that built before the period of inflated values will stand out as premier investments.

1932 will be a good year if business generally improves. We are tied up as closely as any to the rise and fall of American business. Prosperity in our line will be retarded so long as people continue to double up in apartments and houses, and so long as landlords continue to grant concessions. In fact, as long as the renting situation remains what it is.

We may yet be compelled to lower storage rates if other commodities continue to fall in price, though we may be able to hold over until a new group of warehouses built cheaply comes into competition with those now operating.

Foresees Beginning of Up-Turn in Spring

By G. M. McConnell, Chicago, President Illinois Association of Merchandise Warehousemen

WHILE there are no definite factors which can be pointed to as assuring an immediate return to prosperity throughout the country, yet there is a very definite feeling among business men generally that spring of 1932 will see the beginning of an upturn.

Congress has convened and is unmistakably imbued with the idea that its principal activities must be devoted to relief measures. Under these circumstances we can expect a considerable amount of constructive legislation to help things along.

With hope in the air and politicians disinclined to throwing monkey wrenches and with the merchandise stocks of all kinds almost completely used up, it is certain that spring will see an active resumption of buying.

This will mean for many warehouses a reduction of their stocks on hand, as production unquestionably will lag behind as it always does at the end of a depression. However, what is lost to the warehouses in this way will in many cases be offset by an increased demand for space by new accounts of companies which have been marking time during the past three years, waiting for the psychological moment for expansion.

My prediction is that the industry as a whole will not go ahead, so far as actual total space occupied is concerned, until the fall of next year [1932], when production generally will begin to catch up with the reviving demand.

New Car Models as Favorable Factor

By B. C. Hubbard, 1931 President Michigan Furniture Warehousemen's Association

THERE is nothing to add to what you have already received or will have in your possession shortly, because conditions in Michigan, an automotive State, are as bad as they can be and there is no immediate indication for a change. It is a wonderful opportunity for investors in high grade bonds and real estate.

That prosperity is just around the corner is no doubt true. I have heard it enough, but the corner may be quite a few miles distant.

New automobile models are coming upon the market now and are being received favorably, which would indicate that 1932 will be a good year generally.

The Presidential year will be an adverse factor, but generally the people are so tired of this condition that I believe it will be materially improved by the force of their efforts.

Farm Prices; Working with the Railroads

By Willard A. Morse, Minneapolis, President Minnesota Warehousemen's Association

AS the end of the year approaches and we all look at our records to see what the year has had in store for us, our minds naturally turn to the possibilities of the new year and we hope optimistically.

Sentiment seems to be that 1932 will be better than 1931 for those people who are engaged in selling commodities. For those of us in the warehouse business, that may not be true, inasmuch as stimulation of the warehousing industry usually lags behind about six months after commodity markets have improved.

In an agricultural section, such as we are, the purchasing power is almost wholly dependent upon the prices which the farmer receives for his commodities. We do not anticipate that farm commodity prices will show any marked upturn during 1932, but rather that the upturn will be slow and gradual, and with the exception of grains the farmer cannot look for much more for his commodities than last year.

The Department of Agriculture reported in October that the price of farm products was only 68 per cent of the pre-war average, while the prices paid by farmers for commodities they bought stood at 126 per cent. Taking the ratio of prices which the farmer receives for his commodities as compared with the prices he pays for those commodities he buys, his dollar was worth only 54 cents, as contrasted with 89 cents in 1929 and 90 cents in 1928.

The country generally cannot progress and have prosperity until the value of the farmer's dollar is brought back to somewhere near the value of the workingman's dollar.

The warehouse industry is essentially allied with the railroad industry, and until the railroads are able to re-adjust their manner of operations so that they will make a profit on the money invested in their lines, the warehouses cannot expect to have any great increase in business. The adjustment of the railroad situation will, by the very nature of things, be rather slow, and so I believe that if 1932 is as satisfactory a year to the warehouses in Minnesota as 1931 has been, then most of us will have felt that the situation has been as satisfactory as possible under the conditions.

Some way must be found for the warehouse industry and the railroad industry to align themselves more definitely in a scheme of distribution which will benefit all concerned, and if such a plan is found it will not be a panacea for the railroad troubles but will help to overcome the difficulties both of us are suffering under.

Warehousing Must Enter Related Fields

By A. M. Hansen, St. Joseph, President Missouri Warehousemen's Association

THE outlook for 1932 in the warehouse industry cannot be a very optimistic one. During 1931 many things have arisen which have had a tendency to decrease the revenue of the industry. The railroads in many cases have inaugurated store-door delivery and pick-up. This results in a loss to the industry both in drayage accounts and from the fact that many manufacturers will attempt to distribute their goods direct. No doubt in 1932 this particular phase will be more highly developed on the part of the railroad companies.

If warehousemen are to better their conditions in 1932 it will be necessary to intensify their services. The industry will have to change operating conditions and enter new fields which are closely related to warehousing. We have found during the past two years that we cannot continue our business along old methods. In 1932 the industry will have to recognize the importance of meeting constantly changing conditions and must be prepared to enter new fields and to inaugurate more detailed systems of operation than heretofore.

Have Faith in Hoover

By W. R. Kissick, Cleveland, President Ohio Warehousemen's Association

REGARDING 1932 business conditions, it is difficult to know what to say, or add to what has already been said, on the most important subject before the American people and, I might add, the world today.

What we need now is patience, a persistent will to do and faith in the ability and wisdom of President Hoover, his advisors and our great leaders of American finance and industry.

With that faith and confidence, I am firmly of the opinion that by March, 1932, we will find ourselves slowly but surely on the up-grade to above normal and there to remain.

Low Prices Confront Ohio Haulers

By Paul J. Herbert, Youngstown,
Commercial Haulers

THE greatest problem we have facing us at the present time in the hauling business is, of course, low prices. The furniture warehouses seem to be more or less comfortably filled through Ohio, and our own especially is 100 per cent filled. No doubt the hauling business will be affected if Congress decides to put the bus and truck under the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Urges Uniformity in Legislation

By L. C. Keller, President The Furniture & Piano Movers' Association of Cincinnati

IT is my opinion that the storage of household goods will continue to come in for at least the next six months, and will be in small lots. So many people have had reductions in salary or have lost their positions that they will go to smaller quarters or else go to live with relatives until the time will come when they can get readjusted to the prevailing conditions. The following six months will then depend on whether conditions have changed and are on the up-trend.

It is more necessary at the present time for organizations to work harder and fight against unfair laws that are being enacted in practically every State. These laws are placing restrictions and taxes on the haulers that are quite burdensome and very unjust. It is well to bear in mind that, without the new method of transportation, which is the motor truck, the warehouseman will go out of business.

A movement should be started to have a set of uniform laws enacted in all States governing the warehouse and transportation companies.

Many Factors to Be Considered

By Frank M. Cole, President
Kansas City Warehousemen's Association

OPTIMISTIC as we may be, it is difficult to enthuse over the prospect for marked improvement in the business of storage and distribution in nearby months. The nature of our business is such that reaction to the degree of prosperity prevailing generally over the country is quickly noticeable, and while conditions locally may continue as at present, fairly normal, still we cannot entirely escape feeling the effect of recent contraction in many lines of nationwide activity upon which, as warehousemen, we are more or less dependent.

Heavy bulk commodities, sugar, grain products, beans, etc., heretofore presented in generous quantities for storage, are now conspicuous by their absence. This situation, coupled with diminished buying capacity of Kansas City's natural trade territory—the great Southwest—caused by recession in prices of farm products and oil, materially reduced volume of general merchandise offered for storage, generated a more rapid stock turnover and stimulated increased distribution in small lots. The inevitable result has been a quickening of competitive effort for business; however, quite fortunately due consideration to the cost of service has not been lacking.

What should 1932 bring warehousing? A very interesting problem and not easy of solution in view of the many national and international factors that must receive consideration: approaching Congressional legislation; wage scales, railroad and industrial; tariff adjustments; reparations and foreign loans; unemployment; entry by carriers, rail and water, in the business of warehousing; Government interference with private business, including warehousing.

All these and other factors of more or less State and local application—motor trucks and trucking legislation; southwestern rail carriers' pick-up and delivery scheme; rate adjustment resulting from Commission decision in eastern and western class rate basis, etc.—confront us, and only by maintaining business ethics of the highest character will we be able to continue to assert our rightful position as an integral factor in the transportation world and to serve our customers adequately as warehousemen, at the same time giving due consideration to a fair return justified by a tremendous financial investment and years of experience devoted to the business of storage and distribution.

The South

Business Is Eliminating Waste and Inefficiency

By J. P. Ricks, Jackson, Miss., Southern
Vice-President National Furniture
Warehousemen's Association

IT is hardly reasonable to expect that the first part of 1932 will bring any very material change in the volume of business transacted through warehouses during that period as compared with the latter part of 1931. It is probable that the present restricted volume will be fairly well maintained for several months and that the business of the country will continue to make every effort to adjust its operating costs to correspond.

Many evidences are at hand that business management throughout the country has applied itself diligently to this problem during 1931, and considerable progress has been made in that respect. In fact, a fairly substantial number of business concerns have been so successful in adjusting costs that some are actually showing a profit during the latter part of the current year [1931].

It certainly seems reasonable to expect that there should be some improvement in the commodity price level some time during 1932, and when and if that occurs the increased purchasing power resulting therefrom should be reflected in increased sales activity. The large surpluses of agricultural products, raw materials and manufactured goods are slowly but gradually being consumed. The prevailing low prices should be a very deterrent influence on production, and sooner or later the balance between production and consumption which makes for stability of prices will find itself.

Meanwhile business of all kinds is eliminating from itself much of the waste and inefficiency which has prevailed for a number of years, and learning how to operate more economically. Consequently when the improvement does come, the well managed enterprises should be able to operate on a sounder basis of profits.

In addition, local, State and national governments are applying factors of economy which in large part have heretofore been disregarded, and the people are requiring more efficient and economical administration of governmental affairs.

The liquidation of debts, both public and private, is steadily going forward and thereby creating an improved economic condition.

The conclusion should be obvious that the sound well managed warehouse company should emerge from the depression in solvent condition, wiser and better for the lessons of experience it has taught.

Upward Trend Anticipated

By E. C. Lowry, Montgomery, President Southern Ware-housemen's Association

(By Telegraph)

COMPARED with general conditions, business in the South is fair, with a slight improvement in some sections.

I do not anticipate a general upward trend before spring or perhaps the fall of 1932.

Boom Time Space Is Disappearing

By Sidney A. Smith, Tampa,
President Florida Warehouse
& Transfer Association

THE warehousemen of Florida are looking forward to improved conditions in our industry during the coming year.

All indications seem to point to more settled business conditions here, and an improvement in practically all lines. A great deal of the temporary space provided during boom times is now passing, and this, of course, must bring about the demand for space of better construction, such as is provided by the public warehouses of Florida.

Motor Freight and Rail Activities

By John L. Wilkinson, Charlotte,
President North Carolina Truck Owners' Association

IN my opinion warehousing has had its best days, and I cannot see any possibility of improvement for 1932. I base this statement on the following:

First, in my own State the A & P tea company warehouse is located in my city and distributes all groceries throughout the State and part of South Carolina. They get all their goods in carload and distribute from their warehouse; this eliminates any warehouse in the State carrying various merchandise which they cannot use because they buy carloads and do their own distributing.

Second, the motor truck transportation is picking the various commodities up right from the mills, delivering to the customers daily; therefore, it is not necessary for the manufacturer to carry large stocks in warehouses in order to supply their needs throughout the country. I find this especially among the radio industries, as we have lost several accounts direct to the motor transportation in that way.

Third, and one of the most critical situations I think we have today, one of the railroads in North Carolina which runs to the eastern coast is advertising "free storage" on all commodities handled over their road. That, of course, is absolutely eliminating warehouses, especially in the eastern part of the two Carolinas.

In my opinion, the warehouseman had just as well begin to look to other sources for revenue, especially speaking of the merchandise storage.

Trucking and Rails Must Coordinate

By E. T. Chadwell, Nashville,
President, Tennessee Motor Truck Association

OUR special session of the Legislature having adjourned, we must get back to work under the new conditions imposed upon us.

A seven-cent gas tax, a mileage tax and an increase in our privilege tax are what we received. Our association made a valiant fight and prevented the passage of some bills that were absolutely confiscatory.

There is a feeling of optimism among the operators that the result may mean the cleaning out of some "wild cat" competition and that we may get our business on a better basis than ever before.

As to the future, I think the most hopeful sign is the realization on the part of railroads and the truck operators that neither service is adequate in itself but that they are dependent upon each other and must in the end render a co-ordinate service to the public whom they serve.

The time has come when "cave-man" tactics must be discarded and sound business methods must prevail.

The shipping public is a "court of last resort" and their decision is final.

Distributors Opening New Territory

By O. E. Latimer, Fort Worth, President Texas-Southwest Warehouse & Transfermen's Association

CONDITIONS in San Antonio are looking better. We believe that the depression has reached its lowest level, and that from now on we may expect better business.

National distributors have begun to open up new territory in a small way, and we feel sure that this is a good sign.

Pendulum Has Started to Swing Forward

By W. L. Inglis, President
Atlanta Furniture Warehousemen's Association

THE hopes I have for the household goods warehouse industry for 1932 are very high. There is no particular foundation for these hopes other than that the proverbial pendulum has started to swing forward and conditions are not going to decline in the face of efforts that are being made to put money into circulation again. This is the first time in my life that business was not opposed to the Government "butting in" on its efforts to save the situation.

Then, we are going to work harder, from sheer necessity if for no other reason, and develop business and develop our side lines. The general let-down in business in so far as I can understand is universal. Therefore, the factors that will help any particular section or nation will help the others as soon as that influence spreads or reaches them. The finances of our country are terribly shot, worse than ever before, and there is nothing to indicate a quick return of business.

1932 Should Show an Upward Trend

By William C. Boyce, President
Amarillo Transfer & Warehousemen's Association

THERE has been a trend in the past few months toward price cutting. However, this seems to be almost universal. Our association is doing everything in its power to eliminate this evil, believing that the principle of live-and-let-live and a fair remuneration for our service should be the goal of our industry.

Nearly everyone in our section has optimistic views for the future, strengthened by the recent advance in prices of some of basic commodities, such as grain, cotton and steel, together with reports from the East indicating that many of the factories are placing back on their payrolls great numbers of unemployed workmen.

We feel 1932 should show an upward trend in warehousing, due largely to the fact that all classes of distributors have been buying the minimum amounts of goods necessary to carry on their business, and all stocks are naturally low and it is only logical for us to expect somewhat of a speeding-up in all lines of merchandising throughout the country, thereby stimulating a renewal of vigor throughout all the avenues of distribution.

"The Year Can Be Made a Profitable One"

By R. E. Abernathy, President
Dallas Warehouse & Transfermen's Association

THE complex inter-relationship of so many business-affecting factors makes a prophecy for 1932 a rather hazardous undertaking.

But we can be assured that, for the warehousemen, it will not be a year of large volume or easy profits. Decreased consumption of the general commodities will reasonably be expected at least for the first half of the year. New business will probably be below the standard for an ordinary year. Our principals will be clamoring insistently for a revision of our rates downward. Our customers will be more easily won away from us by cut-rate competition.

On the other hand, we may expect some new business to develop for the warehouseman, on account of many jobbers cutting out direct carload purchases (which the warehouseman did not handle) and buying in smaller quantities through the distributing warehouse nearby.

We are confident that the year can be made a profitable one by the warehouseman who stays on the job with diligence, and handles each new problem as it arises, with care and study.

The East

"Let Us Push Together for a Happy Future"

By William T. Bostwick, New York, Eastern Vice-President, National Furniture Warehousemen's Association

THE Future—that unfathomable something which makes life so worth the living to most of us.

The writer has often wondered as to whether a definite knowledge of the future would alter one's daily actions. We all think that it would when we look back upon the past, but, after all, the present does seem so important. Fortunately, however, the future, in certain respects, is only veiled. These last couple of years have taught us that our future cannot be successful or happy if we do not profit from the past, and not only profit, but recognize the causes of the present through careful analysis of the past.

There are three distinctly different ways of considering the past with regard to its relations to the future. One is the brooding attitude which spends its entire time regretting—the constant “if I had only.” Then there is the thoughtless butterfly type of mind which forgets the past as a thing not to be considered.

Analysis Essential

And third, there is the type of mind which analyzes the past, regrets the mistakes, forgets the regrets, but not the mistakes, and uses the mistakes as stepping stones to bigger and better things in the future. It is this type of mind that the world needs today. The type of mind that does not place the entire blame for all the troubles that have arisen upon the President of our Country, the politicians, the 18th Amendment, the leaders of industry, the church or some other pet aversion. It is this type of person whose sense of humor is keen and happy enough to see how ridiculous things and people have been and still are and carefully includes himself in this category.

The adjustments necessary successfully to navigate the dangerous rapids of today's business life are not easy. It is a trying and self-testing experience to see one's pet theories and one's valued opinions—and the word valued is used advisedly—knocked down like so many nine pins and, like nine pins, set up again only to see them again bowled over. It is remarkable, however, and a very helpful sign of the future, to see how resilient the human mind is and how just such experiences as we are now going through help to toughen one's mental and moral fibre.

Our industry has suffered, as has practically every other industry. As the writer, however, discussed conditions with many members in many cities, he discovered that many of the troubles were due to changing conditions of life and of business, and in some instances the unwillingness to keep step with advancing ideas. While it is useless to try to oppose progress, it is difficult for some minds to realize that they are attempting this. The warehouseman who opposes motor van transportation simply because it interferes with his packing income does not belong in this age of progress.

The successful man today is the man who discovers cheaper and better ways of doing things, and this unquestionably will be true in the future. Much of the trouble in our industry today is due to past years. Years of extravagant carelessness, inefficiency, to thoughtlessness, laziness and other faults which do not show their disastrous results as promptly when general conditions are good.

“This Is a Social World”

The future is difficult, but nowhere near as impossible as many would like to paint it. Just how soon a definite turn for the better is coming is, of course, impossible to forecast. There are many factors entering into it—many people say that international conditions are a determining factor, others reply that we are getting far too internationally minded, that the trouble is local. You can take your choice, but it is difficult for the writer to believe that real solid progress can be made without consideration by this country of its neighbors any more than it is possible for one person to prosper continuously in this world without due consideration of other people. This is a social world—deny it as you will—and while it is impossible to foretell when a turn for the better is coming, we can be sure of one thing, and that is that better times are coming, and in this belief we must carry on in a real way. We must avoid ridiculous panicky price cutting. If we were only sensible enough creatures with stiff backbones what a different picture the whole situation would present, but, after all, such a condition might become terribly monotonous and we should not criticize our Creator too severely without considering all angles.

“Get Together”

Let us carry before us the realization that we are much better off with our fair share of business, done at a profit, than we would be with our share and the other fellow's share, done at a loss or no profit. What we really need, in order to hurry that turn for the better, is a more sensible determination to blame ourselves at least as much as we blame the other fellow and a realization that we cannot save ourselves without helping the other fellow. So let us get together in a cooperative effort, stop moaning and bawling our past and realize that for all the trouble we may have someone else has far more. Let us push together for a happy future, which will come so much sooner through the result of an intelligent optimism.

Side Line a Benefit, Regardless of Future

By William H. Schaefer, Stamford, President Connecticut Warehouse-
men's Association

I HAVE just read that “Mr. Edison, when at last he saw his first incandescent light weakly glowing, did a rather handsome thing. He kept silent.” The press and the air have been full of predictions for a couple of years, and most of these folks would lose their prestige if their predictions were checked against the subsequent developments.

However, this should not be so because they have predicted upon material and facts in hand at the time, and no one can do more. Therefore, when I say that it seems the light is “weakly glowing,” I do so only because you have seen fit to include me in the list of those from whom similar opinions have been requested.

When I say “weakly glowing” I don't mean to convey the idea that it is on its last legs but that the sun's morning glory is beginning to make itself evident on that horizon. Oh, there will be clouds and rain—but it has always stopped raining.

Three days ago as one of the judges at a pet show I awarded a blue ribbon to a deserving dog, and after doing so I stooped over to give him a pat; due to the excitement and confinement he made a lunge at my face and caught me square on the nose. I am now plastered up but am quite happy, because the dog might have destroyed an eye. That's the way I look at our business situation.

In a Huddle

My personal impression as to 1932 is that our prospects are in a sort of “huddle” awaiting the signal—not to make a combined rush but a slow-motion picture. Any marked improvement in general conditions will start this off, and the natural result will be a movement of families locally and otherwise, with all phases of warehousing benefiting.

Meanwhile all warehousemen (household goods) should take the lesson taught by the iceman who sells coal in the winter. When I was a boy it struck me funny that an iceman should sell coal and a coalman should sell ice, two extremes, but as a warehouseman it is logical. That is why our own company has so many side-lines—rug-cleaning, mothproofing, fur storage, cabinet-making, upholstered furniture-cleaning, relacquering of wicker, rattan and similar furniture, new furniture retailed at attractive prices—which only a warehouseman can do. One line helps the other, and they all tend to introduce the warehouse and its other services to the large line of patrons of the side-lines.

And isn't that just what every warehouseman wants to accomplish? Why then not face the situation squarely, organize side-lines and through them establish yourself so that when they have need of warehousing service, they will know you and call upon you? These side-lines are so inter-related that a warehouseman can use his regular force to render the service.

It strikes me as good business to diversify and fortify, especially as this diversification will be beneficial regardless of how the future develops. We have been a great believer in side-lines ever since we started; to them we attribute our modest progress.

As president of the Connecticut association I wish to emphasize that individually and collectively our members benefit greatly from the uniformly high attendance at our monthly meetings and the keen interest in all association affairs, national or local, and prompt and harmonious response to and acceptance of any idea that might tend to benefit the industry. There is no selfishness by act, word or deed, and our meetings are happy, enthusiastic gatherings for a common good, and this means national as well as local or regional.

Must Emphasize Economy of Spot Stocks

By T. E. Witters, Baltimore, President Maryland Warehouse-
men's Association

EXPERIENCE is of little value in meeting the present business conditions, and the failure of prognostications to work out makes thinkers hesitate to forecast.

There is a lot of business still being done in this country. Manufacturers, dealers and warehousemen may have to fight for their share, but the business is there. Distributors, generally, have reached the conclusion that a stock at a point from which distribution can be made quickly and economically, is half sold. The warehouseman's job is to inculcate this into the thinking of those manufacturers and distributors who have not yet seen its advantages; this, and this only, will make it possible for the warehouseman to build his business as trade slowly adjusts itself.

Storm Will Clear Sooner Than the Glooms Expect

By Samuel G. Spear, Boston, President Massachusetts Ware-
housemen's Association

MOST of us thought that there were constructive features at the beginning of 1931 which would bring a notable recovery in business during the year. It is now obvious that we should have broadened our horizon and taken account of the international situation which undoubtedly has been the retarding factor.

As it has always cleared up after a bad storm, so if we are sane we know that this financial storm will some time clear up. My prediction is that it will come sooner than the glooms think.

Then the warehouse industry along with all others will share in the general prosperity.

It's bound to come!

Rail Competition Causing Warehouse Losses

By Albert B. Drake, Newark, President New Jersey Merchandise
Warehousemen's Association

THE outlook for the merchandise warehouse business in New Jersey is not very bright for the coming year. The industry is in a critical period. We are confronted with the most serious problem of our existence: namely, the unfair competition of the railroad warehouses and their affiliates.

Have the railroads a right to take over the warehouse and storage business, a trade service? Have they the right to secure traffic for their lines through the medium of their warehouses? Have they the right to operate warehouses?

In the past year they have been using their warehouse facilities unreservedly to secure traffic for their rails. This competition has taken an enormous amount of business away from privately owned warehouses and has also brought rates down to a basis where it is impossible for a privately owned warehouse to operate with a reasonable profit. This unfair railroad-owned warehouse competition has hampered the industry considerably and will eventually ruin it.

If it were not for this one fact, the warehouse business would be on a very sound and healthy basis. The depression has caused manufacturers to look for more economical methods of distribution. There have been a good many inquiries from concerns which have never used warehouses before, but the railroad-owned warehouses and their affiliates have secured the greater portion of this new business on account of the ridiculously low rates quoted by them.

In other words, while there is a great deal of business to be had for the warehouses, the privately owned warehouses are not getting it, and also they are losing some of the business they have had in the past—not because of poor service nor on account of improper facilities, but because they are absolutely unable to meet the competition offered by subsidized companies.

Privately owned warehouses have invested millions of dollars in building up service and facilities for an industry that is absolutely necessary in the scheme of distribution in this country. These investments are at the present time greatly impaired, and the industry is gradually being throttled.

The railroads must be compelled to relinquish their warehouse operations or else the privately owned warehouses will soon be a thing of the past.

Parable of a Farmer and His Potatoes

By J. H. Coughlin, President
New York Furniture Ware-
housemen's Association

REGARDLESS of the existing business conditions for the past year, I do not feel that we have cause for any very serious complaint. It would seem to me that conditions should improve, and of course there are so many different angles from which you can view existing business conditions that it is rather difficult to make a prediction.

Our being able to maintain our prices as well as we have under the trying conditions that we have passed through demonstrates more forcefully the worth of an association such as the New York Furniture Warehousemen's Association.

The greatest difficulty we have had to contend with is the fact that so many men in our industry do not hold strong for the prices that they should get in order anywhere near to compensate them for the services they render both as to safety and proper handling of the goods for the moving from house to house or from house to warehouse.

I sometimes feel that we are lacking very much in salesmanship. A great percentage of our sales effort is somewhat along the lines of the farmer selling his potatoes. A farmer going to market, at what was quite an early hour in the forenoon, met his neighbor returning from market, and to meet him at that hour returning from market was a surprise. The farmer going inquired if he had sold his supplies, to which he replied that he had. The farmer then asked what he had in the market that morning, and the reply was "Potatoes." He asked, "What did you get for them?" After a few seconds of hesitation the other replied, "Well didn't get what I expected, and I did not expect I would."

In many instances that attitude seems to be the prevailing one in selling our services. In other words, that the same effort is not put forth that is necessary in most instances to sell merchandise at a profit. There also seems to be an attitude on the part of a great many engaged in this industry that proper prices cannot be obtained in the sections where they are operating. In other words, instead of going out with a determination to obtain a certain price for the services rendered, it is done more or less in a half-hearted manner, and as a result satisfactory prices are not obtained and the volume of business suffers.

During the few years I have been identified with the industry I have noted numerous radical changes, all of which to my mind demonstrates the fact that we will have to pay a great deal more of attention in the future to the development of certain services which were more or less unknown a few years back.

The fact that most landlords have adopted a lenient attitude toward their tenants in the matter of payments of rent has materially cut down the amount of goods that would have found their way into storage under different conditions.

To sum up, as a whole I am optimistic as to the future.

Suggests "Oh, Yeah?" to Early 1931 Forecasters

By Walter E. Sweeting, Philadelphia,
President Pennsylvania Furniture
Warehousemen's Association

A YEAR ago we warehousemen, in common with manufacturers and merchants and business men generally, were all pepped up over rosy prognostications as to the business outlook for 1931. Our optimism was largely founded upon forecasts of leading bankers, financiers and industrialists that the bottom had been reached and that things were on the mend.

To our consternation 1931 proved even worse in our business than 1930, and it was quite a shock to find that the optimistic forecasters of a year ago were among those worst hit by the spreading depression of 1931.

Many banks, headed by optimists who painted pretty word pictures a year ago, are in process of liquidation; securities issued through great financial houses from which emanated optimistic tales, are of less value than a year ago, if they are still worth more than the paper upon which they are engraved; on every hand industries and businesses, large and small, are being liquidated either voluntarily, or more frequently involuntarily, through receiverships.

In the face of these deplorable conditions, how am I, a mere warehouseman, to be qualified to speak as to the future of business conditions

Certain it is that there must be a change. Let's hope it is not a change for the worse. We did not think it possible a year ago, yet it is a fact that things did get far worse rather than better.

Neither I nor other warehousemen to whom I talk see any cause for immediate optimism as to conditions in our business, and we can be certain there will be no betterment until general business improves.

Some straws are left. In Philadelphia the textile industry, not many months ago regarded as down and out, has shown marked improvement; and many mills, particularly in the hosiery line, are working overtime. Let us hope the betterment spreads.

Motor Freight Regulation Would Aid Warehousing

By R. M. King, Syracuse,
President Central New York
Warehousemen's Club

WHAT should 1932 bring warehousing? I am unable to find any definite factors pointing to improvement. There is a possibility that the new eastern class freight rates will have a tendency to encourage some manufacturers to carry stocks in public warehouses throughout the important distribution centers of the East. On the other hand, this change in class freight rates cannot help but work to the advantage of the motor freight lines. In the first place it will increase their volume and in the second place permit them to increase their rates. With the growing tendency to ship carloads as well as less-carloads by motor freight I am afraid that this factor will be detrimental to the warehousemen in connection with the handling of many commodities. The increasing size of motorized hauling units and continually improving road conditions are making it possible to haul greater distances at lower rates.

There is a possibility that some regulation of motor transportation will be put into effect during 1932 that may force this industry to operate on a profitable basis. Such action will have a tendency to put certain commodities back into the rail and warehouse channel.

I believe that warehousemen will do well to look for every opportunity to lease surplus space and to develop specialized warehousing services. Coupled with this will be an increasing need for economies in operating costs.

In spite of this pessimistic view, I still believe that there will be a need for merchandise warehousing service and that any slight up-turn in manufacturing activities and increase in buying will reflect favorably in the warehousemen's volume of business.

Horizon Indicates Improvement on Way

By Alexander Fleming, President
Montreal Branch Canadian Storage
& Transfermen's Association

THE outlook toward 1932 so far as the warehouse industry of Canada is concerned shows at the present time rather of a pessimistic than an optimistic appearance. With the currency question still in an unstable position; the wheat situation; mining at a low ebb, particularly copper mining; the deflated value of our dollar; customs restrictions, and other unsettled questions, stocks in Canadian warehouses are naturally smaller.

In former years, at this time of the year in Montreal, before closing of navigation on the River St. Lawrence, it has been the usual practice of depositors to warehouse extra stocks to carry over the winter season. There has been little demand for extra space this year.

We are not downhearted, however, as the horizon shows improvement on the way, and when prices show a tendency to advance, merchants will be compelled to buy to protect themselves; then warehouse space should be in demand.

With very few exceptions (on account of competition) we are glad to report that rates for handling and storage are being maintained, and harmonious conditions prevail between the several warehousemen in this city.

Economic Conditions and High Duties

By Harry E. S. Wilson, Hoboken, N. J., President Warehousemen's Association of the Port of New York

ALTHOUGH I have been in the warehouse business for many years, conditions are so unusual that I do not feel competent to forecast what is ahead. The Port of New York depends largely upon imported goods for its storage. Importations have been at a minimum, the reasons being economic conditions and high duties.

Usually when business is bad, warehouses are fairly well filled, but this time there is an exception to the rule.

The experience of the past shows a general increase in storage beginning with the first of the year. We hope that this will be realized in 1932.

Depression Due to Pass Out of the Picture

By Harvey D. Lutz, President Philadelphia Chapter Pennsylvania Furniture Warehousemen's Association

I BELIEVE that 1932 should bring about a better business condition than that which has existed for the past three or four years. With the adjustment of business conditions there will no doubt be a shifting of labor, resulting in an increased demand for moving and storage services.

There may be fluctuations in activities during 1932, due to the fact that it is the year in which a Presidential election is held, but on the whole I believe it will show a healthy increase in business conditions.

I feel that all signs point to an improvement, and along with that, I feel, as an old-timer in the business remarked to me a few days ago, that he had gone through all the panics since 1877 and none had ever spread over a period of more than a year, and that, therefore, the depression that has existed is due to pass out of the picture.

Gradual Improvement Is Anticipated

By W. Pickard, President Toronto Cartage & Ware-
housemen's Association

IT is difficult to forecast the furniture warehousing and moving business for the coming year. While there has been a fair demand for storage in the past year, collections are very poor. The used furniture market has taken a big slump in prices, with the result that accounts must be checked up carefully to avoid big losses.

With the general improvement in business which we are informed is coming next year [1932], I believe there will be a corresponding gradual improvement in our industry. There is one factor which influences the demand for storage. In times of depression there is an increased demand owing to several families finding it necessary to curtail their expenses.

The furniture moving business has severely suffered during the past year. Several operators in this district are continually booking orders actually under cost in order to keep their staff employed. While we do not consider this good business, we are hoping this condition will correct itself in 1932.

And James F. Keenan, Pittsburgh—the only man who has been president of both the American Warehousemen's Association and the National Furniture Warehousemen's Association—writes:

"You have frequently heard the expression that 'Prosperity is around the corner,' but we are unable to determine which corner."

Which suggests that warehousing's 1932 job is to learn around which corner prosperity is lurking—and go round that corner after it.

Now's the Time to Harness Old Man Inventory

And Make Him Do
Surprising Jobs

By ERNEST W. FAIR

THERE is an old gentleman knocking on our doors that we have to let in . . . some of us have already thrown the portals wide and admitted him into our presence. But as far as our knowing how to handle this unusual individual is concerned . . . we don't have the versatility that is present in inviting him inside.

This gentleman is none other than Old Man Inventory, who calls upon us each year in a more or less standardized form and proceeds to go about his business in an established manner only to stride up to our desks with a broad grin and demand to know what we are going to do with him.

Unless we do something and do it quickly we are perforce wasting the money we have spent in getting acquainted with him. In this space we shall not deal with how to conduct this old gentleman about the place as much as upon what to do with him after we have shown him "the works" and made him acquainted with our business.

This speaks nothing of systems used in compiling inventory but rather we shall show what many warehousemen are doing in putting their inventories to use.

Inventory should be something more than a mere stock taking; figures should be there and in every detail, but they must be put to use if they are to be of any value.

Whether you are engaged in public warehousing or specializing in merchandise or household goods warehousing or doing them all, making "Inventory Time" a period for contemplative thought—reflection on what has happened during the past twelve months—is good practice. It is a time to survey with both a personal and business aspect the forces behind figures and know what every item means to your past or future business.

GOING over your records will disclose sufficient material for reflection. Our future actions must be in the nature of speculative maneuvers. If we make these nothing more than hunches we are taking desperate steps that may yield us little of what we hope. But when we put something more than hunches back of this action, more practical results can be expected in the future. Using achievements of the past as recorded in the pages of our inventory record will give a much sounder basis for determination of future action.

One warehouseman of the writer's acquaintance makes this inventory time a period in which to jot down the salient phases of his business, such as "bill paying," including credit and collection problems, and the advisability of different plans that his inventory and balance sheet will suggest to him in such a moment of contemplative thought.

There is for instance the Transfer & Storage Co., Oklahoma City, which has brought forth many plans which has paid good profits and solved problems of management at just such a period.

There was, for instance, one problem of public relations in respect to building new customers not only among the citizens of the city but the wholesalers and retailers of the city. The O.K. realized that these weren't as sure as they should be.

So with inventory sheets and balance sheets in hand, the executives thought over the problem and evolved a plan of customer-relationships that was in itself a business-building scheme.

It paid the organization handsomely and, what is more important, other similar exercises developed ways in which the firm was enabled to cut down overhead to the point where, the year following inauguration, profit on each volume dollar rose 15 per cent.

Then there is the Johnson Storage & Distributing Co., San Angelo, Texas. Their balance sheets and inventory records showed that public warehousing of household goods wasn't paying them what it should; that the floor space devoted to it was actually losing money when overhead was figured against each square foot of floor space.

So space was rearranged—more determined efforts were made to secure household goods storage on small accounts—and the result proved satisfactory beyond their expectations.

Those are just two examples. Let us consider further instances.

There is another warehouseman who used this time to study his advertising program and asked himself, "Why not use more direct mail?" inasmuch as results in the past fully had justified further efforts along that line. This man analysed every bit of his advertising and evolved a new plan that made every advertising dollar spent pay profits.

He correlated every type. His newspaper advertising was the opening wedge. It set his business before his potential customers as a whole. Then he used individual direct mail to sell each particular potential user.

Another instance is that of the Merchants Transfer & Storage, Austin, Tex. Their inventory showed that they were losing money on their truck fleet. Persistent thinking was then performed on cutting down fleet expense. With the aid of practical study the problem was worked out satisfactorily.

Study your business and your business-building methods. Incidentally the writer knows of more than one successful warehouseman who "got that way" by keeping every one of his business journals—not throwing them away after he had read them.

Then when "inventory thinking" time came around he brought out his stack of information and, as he found and realized the need for some improvement in a phase of his business, he searched the pages of these recorders of successful practice and not only found plans that he could use but many that suggested original ideas along the lines with which he was planning.

Many a warehouseman has sat down at his desk and, out of the cobwebbed cubby holes of his past experience, dusted out ideas, giving them new airings, with the result that in the year following his business proved to be even better than his forecast had planned.

(1) Because of the importance of this territory, figures are shown separate from the State total.

AN end to the upward flurry in merchandise warehouse occupancy is indicated in figures made public by the Department of Commerce on Dec. 18. The accompanying table, containing the Government statistics for September (final) and October (provisional), shows reported occupancy of 65.1 per cent at the close of October as compared with 65.7 per cent on the last day of September.

The recession which set in a year ago, as indicated by the January, 1931, figure (68.9 per cent as against 70.4 per cent the previous month), continued uninterrupted until, at the end of July, the percentages was down to 63.9 per cent—the lowest mark recorded since the Government began compiling these figures. August brought an upturn to 64.6 per cent, and September a further advance to 65.7 per cent.

Similar advances begun in mid-summer both in 1929 and 1930 continued without interruption until the end of the year, no recession beginning, in each instance, until the following year's January. This time (1931) the interruption comes as early as October, for October's percentage is 0.6 below that recorded for September.

The provisional 65.1 per cent reported for Oct. 31 compares with the percentages on the previous years' corresponding date as follows:

Oct. 31.....	66.4	76.3	68.8	65.1

The tonnage figures in the accompanying September-October table indicate that in October a slightly larger percentage of goods entered storage (out of total volume received) in the later month.

In October, 568,387 tons arrived at the reporting warehouses; of this volume, 447,747 tons, or 78.8 per cent, went into storage, the balance being delivered on arrival. In September the total arriving volume was 521,795 tons, of which 410,334 tons, or 78.6 per cent, entered storage, the balance being delivered on arrival.

The (provisional) 78.8 per cent for October compares as follows with October of each of the three preceding years:

Occupancy

THE 3.7 per cent average decline in occupancy, for the entire country, this past Oct. 31, from the level recorded on the previous year's corresponding date, was not reflected in Vermont-New Hampshire, a small part of the New York metropolitan district, New Jersey outside the metropolitan district, Indiana, Wisconsin, Minnesota outside the Twin Cities, District of Columbia, Georgia-Florida, Louisiana, Idaho-Wyoming, and Arizona-New Mexico. Elsewhere there were recessions except that Arkansas was unchanged.

Fumigation Service

DISTRIBUTION AND WAREHOUSING desires information from merchandise warehousemen who have fumigation vaults for merchandise.

We will appreciate a letter from any commercial storage executive who has made such installation, giving us name of installation, capacity, kind of products fumigated, character of fumigants used for the various products treated, etc.

This information will prove invaluable to us in directing merchandise account to warehouses which offer such service.

If you offer this service, please give us the above information for our files.

We would like to hear also from warehousemen who anticipate any such installations.—The Publishers.

Power Sweeper Introduced by Clark Tractor

A NEW power sweeper has been introduced for cleaning warehouses, docks, piers, terminals, sidewalks, paved yards and other large areas which must be swept frequently. It will clean approximately 42,000 sq. ft. an hour and will handle light snow.

This sweeper is mounted on a Clark Tractor which is gas-powered for 24 hours' continuous operation. The 60-in. broom cleans a path 52 in. wide, sweeps right or left, and the angle of sweep can be changed by the operator in less than a minute.

The broom is always under driver's control. He can lower it or raise it at will and by a special clutch lever can stop its rotation instantly. In high gear the equipment has a speed of 7½ miles an hour. Going to and from work the broom is carried 6 in. above the floor or pavement. In operation the best results are obtained at a speed of 2 miles an hour. The outfit may be equipped with generator and head and tail lights for night work. When sprinkler system is required, a tank may be mounted on the rear platform.

The equipment is manufactured by the Clark Tractor Company, Battle Creek, Mich.

Canada's System of Loaning on Warehouse Receipts

It's Different

By JOHN H. FREDERICK,

Assistant Professor of Commerce and Transportation,
University of Pennsylvania

IN Canada a wholesaler, manufacturer or other producer may act as his own warehouseman and, in effect, issue his own warehouse receipts for use as collateral at a bank. This fact may astonish American storage executives familiar with the operation of the provisions of our Federal Reserve Act, which requires goods upon which bank loans are to be made entirely removed from the possession of the borrower and either placed in public warehouses or under the custody of a bona fide warehouseman by means of a system of field or custodian warehousing.

The Canadian system of obtaining loans on warehouse receipts is based on two sections of the Bank Act of 1923: Sections 86 and 88.

Section 88 provides that a bank may lend money to any wholesale purchaser or shipper of or dealer in products of agriculture, the forest, quarry and mine, or the sea, lakes and rivers, or to any wholesale purchaser or shipper of or dealer in live stock or dead stock or the products thereof.

Under the same section, a bank may also lend money to any person engaged in business as a wholesale manufacturer of any goods, wares and merchandise manufactured by him, or procured for such manufacture.

In both cases the security for the loan is given in the form of a pledge or assignment from the borrower to the bank. The borrower retains possession of the goods and they may be dealt with by him in the ordinary course of business. It is understood, however, that the proceeds of all sales of the pledged goods shall be paid to the bank to be applied against the loans. Substitutions are permitted provided the total value of the pledged goods remains the same.

Before a loan is made under Section 88 the intending borrower must give notice of his intention to give the bank security under this section. The notice is in the form of a simple statement and does not contain any reference to the amount proposed to be borrowed. Such notice, which is good for three years without renewal, must be registered in the office of the assistant receiver general in the Province in which the intending borrower's place of business is located. The purpose of this notice is to enable other creditors or prospective creditors of the borrower to ascertain if such security has been given, or if the giving of it is contemplated.

The principle of the Canadian system is that the owner of goods, while still in possession of them, may borrow from a bank, using these goods as security. He assigns certain classes of goods, wares or merchandise to the bank as the sole security for the loan, and the bank acquires the same rights and powers in respect to such as if it had acquired the power by virtue of a warehouse receipt.

The original intention of Section 88 was to enable manufacturers and other producers with limited capital to obtain funds with which to pay cash for their purchases of raw materials, through obtaining advances on finished goods or stocks of raw materials.

The Canadian Bank Act provides also for the use of warehouse receipts as collateral in the usual manner.

Section 86 of the Act states that a bank may acquire and hold any warehouse receipt or bill of lading as collateral security for the payment of any debt incurred in its favor, or as security for any liability incurred by it for any person in the course of its banking business.

Security cannot be acquired under either Sections 86 or 88 unless it is taken at the time the relative advances are made, or pursuant to a written promise to give such security, given at that time or prior thereto.

Defects of Section 88

DESPITE the benefits which accrue to both banks and borrowers in making loans under Section 88, there are several outstanding defects.

The most important of these is the fact that this section, of itself, does not give a bank physical control, nor unqualified title to the security pledged, with the result that the banks are at times faced with losses through their security becoming reduced without their knowledge. Unless an elaborate system for keeping in close touch with customers, involving frequent reports or inventories, is maintained, the bank must rely wholly on the borrower's assertions as to the quantity and quality of the goods.

Another defect is that the security held by the banks under this section is subject to attacks by other creditors, particularly in cases of bankruptcy, and is liable to prior lien on account of unpaid wages.

Because of these defects in the security given under Section 88, banks frequently insist on goods being removed to a public warehouse and then make the loan on the security of a warehouse receipt as provided for in Section 86 of the Act. From the standpoint of a bank, security under Section 86 is better than under Section 88, as the warehouse receipt, issued by an independent warehouseman, gives absolute title to the bank, without the goods being subject to liens except for warehouse storage charges.

However, a responsible concern, in good financial standing, experiences no difficulty in obtaining reasonable loans against security under Section 88.

Field Warehousing

FROM the foregoing discussion it would appear that there was considerable opportunity for establishing systems of custodian or field warehousing in Canada. Certainly the practice of loaning on goods remaining on the premises of the borrower should come under field warehousing, but it is difficult to educate bankers to the necessity for such protection until some time when they will suffer a loss. There are now at least two warehousing organizations in Canada operating field warehouses: the Howell Warehouses, Ltd., Toronto, and the Johnson National Storage, Ltd., Vancouver.

When field warehousing is employed, possession and control of the pledged property are taken by the warehouseman; and the bank, holding a warehouse receipt, knows exactly what its security is and does not have to depend on information furnished by the borrower, which it more or less has to do when the usual system of loaning under Section 88 is employed.

National Advertising to Enter Third Year

of A.W.A. Campaign

BY H. A. HARING

THE advertising campaign of the merchandise warehousemen is now well into its second year—actually with two months yet to run in that year. The time is, however, opportune to review progress, especially as the close of the business year each December is an invitation to every business man to look back over what he has done so as to improve what he will do in the immediate future.

This campaign was many years gestating. The plan was discussed and debated and voted upon not once but several times, and, when finally approved, more than fourteen months were devoted anew to a painstaking study of best methods to handle the fund, combined, of course, with the necessary raising of the money. Now, after subjecting the set-up to nearly two years of actual trial, and those two years in the heart of a business depression, it is supremely gratifying to learn that "the purposes and objectives of the campaign remain the same." The committee responsible for the advertising, after having expended probably $60,000 of hard cash, tells me:

"There has been no change during the past year in the committee's conception of the campaign and the objectives set up for it. The two main purposes are (as they have been from the start):

"1. To educate American businessmen regarding the use of merchandise warehouses in distribution.

"2. To create new business for the investor warehouses."

THEIR work has, for another matter, not been altogether a path of roses. Thorns have barbed their feet on many an occasion—sometimes, when they have made a mistake by stepping into the wrong pathway (and, maybe, deserved to bleed a bit!); more often, I fear, they have received letters which ought to have been heavily insured against catching fire in the mails, as when a fellow warehouseman has failed to remember that the campaign is a national undertaking and not solely for his warehouse; or, again, manufacturers whose names were used in the publicity matter (and from whom consent in writing had been obtained in advance of publication) yelled loud and nastily, the complaints coming, of course, from some "other official" or "higher-up" who took out on the committee his wrath over some inter-department jealousy or wire-pulling. Other concerns fairly melted the telegraph wires for exactly the opposite reason! Their names were omitted, their trade-marks not pictured, or their packing cases half hidden by some hated competitor, in the illustrations used by the committee to win attention to the ads.

No! It has not been a path of roses, this sincere effort to make $60,000 do the work of three times that sum. The merchandise warehouses have had nearly 200 varieties of opinions as to how the advertising should be done or the inquiries handled from the office in Chicago. The committee was obliged, naturally, to adopt one plan and only one, modifying it to meet nation-wide conditions among the warehouses and, at the same time, make the most general appeal possible to potential patrons. Therefore, any plan, as soon as announced, faced nearly 200 criticisms.

Yet the committee has hung on. I notice, too, that it bears the same familiar names of three years ago. Its address remains the same. Apparently, therefore, the committee has managed to pay the rent to the landlord and makes no effort to conceal its whereabouts from Changes have, it is true, come into the detailed workings of the campaign. But the underlying principles remain unaltered. This fact is proof that the plan was right. It has saved the subscribing warehouses the waste of their payments as would have occurred if the committee had found itself on the wrong track and had been obliged to switch to the right one in the midst of the campaign. The expenditures have been used most effectively, because, like the plans and specifications for a new building, much midnight oil was burned, beforehand, in careful check and re-check of the entire undertaking. No one can give enough credit to the chairman and the committeemen who, without any reward other than the satisfaction of a good job well done, have given of their time and dipped into their pocket for expense money in order to see this thing through to a happy ending.

Warehousemen, in common with members of other trade associations, have become accustomed to give their time for the benefit of their fellows in the industry. The ordinary "task" of this sort, however, begins, runs its course, and comes to an end within six months or a year at most. This campaign, on the contrary, has lain almost three years pretty heavily on the shoulders of a small group of warehousemen, who have journeyed back and forth to Chicago for two-days' meetings and who have carried on endlessly by correspondence in the intervals between face-to-face conferences.

That last paragraph is more than a poor jest.

For, I say it without fear of contradiction, any association and any committee that has been able to carry on a cooperative campaign these two years, costing a large sum of money, deserves hearty congratulation if it has been able to live through. The American Warehousemen's Association committee, and the merchandise warehousemen, have not only done this but, as they face the third year, they seem to be going right ahead, taking one trench after another. They are headed straight for the enemy's supply depot, with a determination that "the purposes and objectives of the campaign remain the same."

The Publications Used

TWO years have witnessed some experimentation with publications for the advertising. Eliminations and changes have come into the original list, Letterheads of some of the national distributors which responded to A. W. A. national advertising and yet the same basic selection of publications continues to produce most inquiries.

All replies are keyed in such a manner that headquarters knows what led the manufacturer to ask for the booklet. The tabulation of these keyed returns is deadly. It resembles the time clock at the warehouse door; the faithful are ear-marked and so are the laggards. The committee, in this manner, has a record covering twenty-two months to point the way for further expenditure of the fund.

A year ago, as shown in the committee's "Report on the First Year's Result," issued last April, it had been decided to expand the list of publications by taking on a group of "trade magazines appealing to executives in lines of business with products especially suited to public merchandise warehousing." In this manner the campaign tried out:

Drug Trade News
Standard Remedies
Food Industries
Furniture Manufacturer

and one Western publication.

It has been discovered for this particular campaign that these specialized trade publications do not develop good inquiries as cheaply as the general business magazines and the journals devoted to sales management and advertising. The committee has, accordingly, dropped the schedule of insertions so that, for the present at least, "we are using only this tried and true list of real producers of inquiries":

Magazines appealing to general executives:

Nation's Business
Time
Business Week

Magazines appealing to sales managers:

Printers' Ink Monthly
Printers' Ink Weekly
Advertising & Selling
Sales Management

Magazines appealing to traffic officials:

Distribution and Warehousing
Traffic World
Class and Industrial Marketing

During September a broadside was mailed to 25,000 names and another was printed during November and is already in the mail to the same list. A follow-up mailing is also being prepared this being intended for about 4,000 firms which have, during these two years, replied to the advertising or asked for the service booklet.

The magazine advertising, for the second year, has yielded inquiries about one-half as numerous as during the first year.

From March, 1930, to the end of January, 1931, a bit less than one year, the advertisements produced 1,295 requests for the service booklet. This was at the rate of 177 a month. From February 1 to the last day of October, 1931, nine months, the magazines brought in 742 inquiries, or an average of 82 a month. The dropping off is due, probably, to two factors:

1. The quick, easy inquiries have already seen and answered the advertisements.

2. Business conditions are responsible for a falling off in inquiries received.

The direct-mailings of broadsides have brought an additional total of 1,482 inquiries.

The Commodities Represented

A YEAR ago, in these pages, we gave a list of the commodities for which the questionnaires, as received at the Chicago office, made inquiries. In addition to that list, the second year has brought requests for information as to the possibility and cost of warehousing the following items:

Wire strands.
Steel rods.
Steel scaffolding.
Poultry grit.
Crushed stone.
Asbestos aprons.
Radio tubes.
Canned grapefruit.
Linen rugs.
Linen carpets.
Ginned moss.
Ladies' underwear.
Abrasive grains.
Guns and fluid for weed destroying.
Brass fillings in cartons.
Soldier for leaky radiators.
Brushes.
Wall board.
Aluminum cookware.
Confections.
Steel burial vaults.
Toys.
Cookies.
Crackers.
Coal tar products.
Concentrated food flavors.
Lubricating oils.
Gummed paper.
Cloth tape.
Tires and tubes.
Rugs and carpets.
Paint.
Electric stoves.
Camera equipment.
Barriades.
Lubricating oil.
Hog feeders.
Canned meats.
Pop corn (cases and sacks).
Fertilizer.
Ointment.
Construction road torches.
Laundry machinery.
Essential oils and drugs.
Petroleum oils and greases.
Tool steel, bars and sheets.
Pumps and sprayers.
Sanitary necessities.
Folding chairs.
Plastic furnace lining.
Fertilizer in bags.
Lemon cream cleanser.
Guava jelly.
Orange marmalade.
Motor oils, cans, etc.
Cardboard games, kites, etc.
Flour.

Desk, ceiling and vent fans.
Plumbing materials (brass).
Electric breeders and incubators.
Various items distributed by manufacturers' representatives.
Dixie peanut bar.
Wood pulp and paper products.
Narrow fabrics, tape and webbing.
Powder puffs.
Malleable iron and pipe fittings.
Steel household specialties.
School and office desks.
Egg processing oil.
Dry cleaning machines and fluids.
Radio receivers.
Poultry supplies and labor saving devices for farms, dairies, etc.
Motor and tractor oil.
Automobile tools.
Silver polish.

Handling Inquiry

EACH inquiry is handled in the office along a procedure that has been found to be most effective.

1. Each response brings to the inquiring manufacturer the service booklet, which is now in its third edition. A two-page form letter also goes out, together with a copy of the marketing survey questionnaire.

2. Upon receipt of this material, the prospect studies the plan of warehousing his product, and—at least this is the hope which springs eternal in the committee's breast!—the prospect fills out and mails back the questionnaire. This form includes a request for definite warehousing quotations from cities which he has checked off as being those in which he is interested.

3. Perhaps the information submitted by the prospect is incomplete; he fails to give all necessary data regarding the goods or his mode of distribution. The service bureau from Chicago then follows up with correspondence in order to obtain all needed facts before referring the "sales lead" to the investor-members.

4. When once the information at headquarters has been completed, or practically so, the service bureau prepares a typed summary of all the data. This is sent in bulletin form, mimeographed, to all investor-members in those cities where the prospect is considering the establishment of spot stocks.

5. All investor-members in a given city receive the mimeographed "sales lead" at the same time. It then becomes their task, individually, to present the fitness of their particular warehouse for the prospect's needs. At this stage of the procedure, each warehouseman is told, as a sort of warning against overpressure in the solicitation:

"Remember that the prospect has asked for specific information in order to compare A. W. A. costs and service with his present methods of distribution. At this juncture, he has not yet decided that he can save money or improve his service by placing a warehouse stock in your city. Your follow-up must appeal to him. You must convince him that you can give the service he requires, if you are to get the business."

6. The service bureau continues to follow up these "sales leads" from the Chicago office in order to learn what warehouse stocks have been established as a result of this effort. To assist in this effort, investor-members are urged to report to the bureau any account which was obtained through the "sales leads," or which has been developed directly as an outcome of the advertising campaign.

Some Disappointments

DURING November, Donald D. Davis, who, as vice-president of an advertising agency is handling the advertising campaign, stated to me:

"The amazing thing about all these 'sales leads' is that very few warehousemen report any definite business as originating from the 'leads.' We are now engaged in checking back with the manufacturers and others who became 'sales leads' to learn where and with what warehouses they have established storing accounts."

Mr. Davis is a professional advertising man. I am nothing of the sort—but just a rank outsider, educated in a coal mine. All the same his remark, to quote his own word, "amazed" me very much indeed. Possibly he expected reports of definite business; I, most certainly, would not.

It is not, to my thinking, the nature of such an advertising campaign as this that the advertiser should ever be able to stick a red pin into a map or across a name and say: "That's where I got back $250 from a $25 ad." For, as I understand it, advertising is an educating of the public to want a product. Of course, with some couponed advertisement and maybe for a one-day sale by a department store, it is possible to pin results precisely on a single advertisement, but, in the long run, I would look upon advertising as I would upon good character: not a thing for identified and tagged results, but a thing which, in the course of life or business, would pay.

Mr. Davis's comment made me think of a remark, four or five years ago, which Dr. Dorrance made in the course of a conversation with me on a train between Omaha and Denver (he being then the president and principal owner of Campbell's Soup):

"I haven't the faintest idea what this month's advertising will do to sell soup for us. I do know what we pay for the ads. I do know, too, that our tens of millions in advertising has so entrenched our soup with the American housewife that no other brand sells 1 per cent of what we do. As long as we're in the business I intend to lay out more and more every year for advertising. I know it will keep us in first place."

And, within the past year, Dr. Dorrance departed this life, leaving, to the surprise of most of us, more than $100,000,000 dollars to his family as his share of the soup concern.

He expected no definite reports of selling a can of tomato soup at a price of 11c. as the result of one advertisement. He did expect the result he had proved to himself ten thousand times: that advertising would sell 11c. cans of soup.

Even the chairman of warehouse campaign committee, D. S. Adams had a little experience one day in his own Kansas City which should point the same way. He stumbled across a company dealing in seeds, somewhere downtown, which had come into possession of one of the service booklets and had been using it for some months as a mailing list to write directly to warehouses with reference to placement of spot stocks. Yet the advertising campaign, of which good Dick Adams is the main push, got no credit on the black and white records of the Chicago office. The campaign "got no credit," as I have just said, but that is not of any consequence. For, in some city, some warehouseman was storing those seeds. His house is earning more than it would have done if the campaign had never been launched. The campaign was accomplishing the very thing it set out to do, even though George A. Rhame in the Chicago office does not find a pretty-looking card to tell the story every time he consults his filing case.

There exists, for some reason, a reluctance to identify ourselves under some conditions.

Possibly we have all, a dozen times or so, opened the way by some innocent request for the high-pressure salesman to turn loose his disagreeable wiles upon us. Think of your own case. How many times do you hesitate to sign a coupon or a return card, for no other reason than that you suspect it will have a come-back? You know, and I know, through bitter experience that business concerns do not give away booklets or "service bulletins" or razor blades or tooth paste just for the purpose of helping their fellowman. They do it in the hope of making money in one form or another.

Hence we are reluctant to sign things. He hesitates to reply to questionnaires. We certainly do not go out of our way to report to some distant headquarters the "why" and the "how" of conducting our own business.

With this very campaign of the warehouses I have myself had two experiences which may illustrate the same thought.

About a year ago I was interviewed by four men who are manufacturers of shoes in New England. They asked about the cost and the practicability of warehousing shoes in Atlanta as a try-out for the distribution of shoes through public warehouses. I explained what I could and referred them to Wilson V. Little at Chicago. They began to jot down his name, but when I gave the address as with the association, one of them stopped and shot at me:

"That's what we want to avoid. We don't want a pack of warehouse salesmen hopping after us. We want to find out about warehousing, but if that's the only way I'm not sure I'll go any further."

It so happened that I was starting that very night for the West, and I told them I would drop in at Chicago headquarters and get for each of them the service booklet and other information. This I did. From the Stevens Hotel that night I mailed out the booklets, using, however, the envelopes of the association and also enclosing the campaign form letter. In about ten days I reached home. Among my accumulated mail was a letter from the same fellow who had complained at our little meeting. He instilled quite a bit of pepper into that letter, just falling short of calling me a bad name, because I "had turned right around and handed over his name" to the association. He had been misled by the A. W. A. envelopes!

Today his shoe factory is warehousing shoes with five or six public warehouses, each of which I could name if I dared, and I am perfectly sure that neither Mr. Rhame nor Mr. Davis knows a thing about this "new business." I question whether any one of the warehousemen himself connects either myself or the campaign with the account. I know, for a certainty, that I have never revealed my connection with the business.

For another illustration.

Last February, while in Cleveland, I met three officers of a concern from Portland, Ore., which has an important branch in Cleveland. Our talk drifted to warehousing—you know it always does when I am about—and I suggested they ask Mr. Rhame for help. Two of them then told me they had gone into the Chicago office the preceding week, but had given a fictitious name!

"Of all the idiotic things!" was my exclamation. "How can you expect dependable information on that basis?"

Well, they gave several reasons. But the upshot was that they could not conceive of escaping the follow-up. Although they wanted to know about warehousing their product, which is a difficult one to handle to their satisfaction, they were worse than reluctant to be known as wanting to know. I then named three warehousemen of their own city, Portland, and proposed that I would put them in touch with Warehouseman Gibson of San Francisco, who, I knew, occasionally visits Portland. They would not consent.

This sounds decidedly "fishy," as I write it out. It did to me that day.

I do know, however, that they were in earnest. They were too "cagey" for their own best good. But, before the very next month rolled around, their company had eight carloads in one Chicago warehouse to my certain knowledge; in August at St. Louis I saw a lot of their goods in a warehouse which must have been three or four carloads in bulk; and they have told me of other stocks. Neither the Chicago nor the St. Louis warehouse would ever think to report definitely this new account to headquarters, for, as a matter of fact, the business did not come to them as a "sales lead" from the campaign; although, to the best of my own belief, the advertising which brought about the accounts appeared in Nation's Business. That, at least, is what they told me. Their meeting with me was quite accidental.

Identifying Results

THE illustrations on pages 26 and 27 picture numerous letterheads received at A. W. A. headquarters in response to the advertising. They are an interesting galaxy of American business. The names, too, make a warehouseman smile; some of them are so familiar. Some of them, too, bring up memories of days and days of hard solicitation which got nowhere.

Look over those sixty letters with a bit of care.

They conceal, possibly, a hint of the reason why it is so impossible to identify the results of advertising; that is, advertising of the "educational" nature of the warehousemen's campaign.

Seven or eight of the sixty went to the length of a two-paragraph letter—such as American Chicle, Leslie-California Salt, Stewart-Curtis Packers, Parker Pen, Silver-Marshall Radio, RCA-Victor, and Washburn-Crosby. All the balance, more than fifty by count, content themselves with one brief paragraph. More commonly it is only a single sentence, with, perhaps, another to say "Thank you!" or its equivalent. Some of them are even more economical of their stenographers' time. Kem and Palmer Match each manages to limit its letter to twelve words, and two of these are either "Thank you" or "and oblige," while Durkee gets off the request with eight words—and no more.

The letterheads are familiar. But who knows what happened to the booklet?

Anyone of us knows, for one matter, that many of these companies are already confirmed patrons of the public warehouse. But that does not mean, necessarily, that it was only curiosity that prompted the response to our advertisement.

No one knows or ever can know, and least of all will there appear a definite report in that Chicago office at 222 West Adams Street, why these men asked for those booklets. No one knows how they may pass them on to unknown associates, to smaller concerns "on the side" with which they have a connection. No one knows how the reading of the booklet may prevent their quitting the warehouses with which they have done business, for, proven a thousand times is the principle that advertising will keep a patron "sold" on what he already has.

The original inquiry is, in fact, so brief and so non-committal that it indicates little more than the name and address. It does not indicate, nor hint, the real purpose of the inquiry.

Remember, all the time, those times when you have signed a simple-looking coupon or reply-card and, within ten days, have cursed yourself for falling? Possibly other men, in other businesses, have had similar experiences. The A. W. A. coupon may, to them, arouse disagreeable memories, and they may, accordingly, deliberately not render a definite report and give credit to the advertisement.

A Silent Force

ADVERTISING, of the sort that aims to educate the public, must perform the silent work of running water. Water, acting through years of time, will wear away the hardest granite; advertising, by repeatedly striking the brain, seeks to wear down the one hardest element of human nature.

That element is habit. It is habit that makes us prefer old friends, old easy chairs, the old home town, the old mashie niblick, the favorite shaving cream, a given breakfast cereal, one cigarette—and, apple pie. Any item of goods that has become a national habit will earn a profit for its owner for at least two generations; and, if properly managed, for many generations.

In trying to change habits, it seems easier to convince a million minds than a single one! The individual is never sure of being right until he sees the million agree with him.

There is only one proven way to form a national habit for the buying of a commodity or a service—by advertising over a period of years to all the people of the United States. You never can know which unsuspected business man may turn the tables in your favor. In order to make sure, it is necessary to make your product or your service well known to all. Therefore, there is only one way to train the multitudes to appreciate the superiority of warehousing goods in distribution and to compel everybody to remember the warehouse when he buys or sells, receives or ships.

"Advertising," according to Bruce Barton, "may have had a dubious past, it may be scarred by fraud, it may be the black sheep of business, but advertising has risen from the gutter and now plays the star rôle in the drama of American business. Advertising is the power which wrought the miracle of mass production by making millions of people want the same thing and which has carried into every decent American home luxuries denied even to the wealthy of all the rest of the world."

Strange to tell, however, there is still deception about advertising. But the victim is no longer the reader. Many advertisers cheat themselves by clinging to the strange delusion that there may be some way to advertise without paying for it. They no longer question the usefulness of advertising. They know the usual method; prepare a good message and pay for broadcasting it. But, in a moment of foolishness and self-deception, they decide to "save $1,000." Yes, they generally use the word "save." By some curious mental twist, they conceive that the patron will respond even though he no longer sees the advertisement; that the dealer will not observe the falling off in demand.

They start on a journey, so to speak, and buy a ticket to a half-way point. They seek speed and cut out two cylinders! They yearn for a two-hundred-yard drive and use a putter.

But—Go Not Too Fast!

ADVERTISING, to win, must be continuous.

So much of our business likes to travel by jumps. It wants to go fast or not at all. But, when we stop to think of it, jumping is not an efficient method of locomotion.

A runner can sprint a quarter-mile in about fifty seconds without much effort. It would probably take more than ten minutes, or twelve times as long, to jump the same distance, and this would be possible only in case the jumper's strength held out. He would certainly be exhausted. The trouble with jumping is that it cannot accumulate momentum. Each jump must overcome the heavy load of inertia and then dissipate its power in the shock of stopping. So with a railroad train—the energy needed to start it from a dead stop would move it several miles at normal speed.

To break down a habit of doing business, such as the habit of private storages and branch stocks, is a slow and deliberate process.

It cannot be done by a few mad jumps or flashes into advertising. To uproot such a habit and instill the habit of going to the public warehouse for distribution calls for unhurried effort, extending over the years.

Above all else, it requires time to interest and convince the public. The mass mind, steeped in established habits, is inert. It absorbs new ideas slowly. It can be momentarily agitated just as a placid pond can be rippled by a pebble, but such an agitation doesn't mean anything.

Yet it is an exceptional case when a campaign of advertising is deliberately planned for a term of years. In this respect the warehousemen have been wisely led. It is equally necessary to go through with the plan, confirmed in the belief that in the end it will abundantly repay the cost, but not discouraged that identified results do not make an imposing showing at the very start.

To lose faith in the campaign is to substitute jumping for a plan. Jumping is a sort of hysteria. Jumping, in moderation and a little at a time, isn't bad for a man's liver—but jumping rarely achieves either progress in the race of schoolboys or profit in a business.

Progress in business is measured by the number of people who have a preference for the goods of one maker or the service of one association. Preference is contagious. People tell each other.

But, everywhere and all the time, it holds true that it takes time to win preference; about as long as it takes to make a stranger really like you. Preference must break down all established habits and set up a new one in their place. The business world rarely indulges in a sudden infatuation for a product or a service. It may buy once at a price, the way you would look over a new neighbor; but real, loyal preference comes only with long and satisfactory acquaintance.

This is why a campaign of advertising, in order to accomplish anything, must "carry on" for years. Unless it is to be kept up, it were better not started. Stunt advertising may get quick and flashy results. It jumps about and makes a great flutter. But it makes no more friends than a three-towns-a-day drummer. Sound advertising is not a three-ring circus, dashing up Main Street every day in a different fancy dress costume to stage a medicine show in City Hall Square. Proper advertising goes right ahead, quietly, to make friends and win confidence by educating them to know what is the real worth of what they are taking them into their bosom.

Business, at this particular time, faces a long climb—one year or four, no one knows, and one guess is quite as good as another. There's one advantage, you know, of being at the bottom as now we are. We at least know in which direction we are going. No surer way is known to the business world, for the purpose of reaching the tip of the top, than a long-schedule campaign of advertising, not consisting of a series of jumps but of a continued and unbroken tug on the hawser.

Postage Stamp Values

YOU MAY CONSIDER the ubiquitous and humble postage stamp an odd subject for editorial discussion but it has a connection with warehousing more direct than the average household goods storage executive appreciates. With the thought that you may be a bit skeptical about that, we are going to cite specific cases in support of our contention.

The stamp-collecting hobby is called philately, and this writer is the author of two widely-selling books about philately, one published by Harper's and the other by McGraw-Hill. This information is set down not to advertise our literary by-products, but to suggest that the subject is one about which the editor logically should know a great deal. It is this knowledge which we will attempt here to translate in terms of warehousing.

The writer believes that many a warehouseman overlooks a good bet when making auction sales of goods which have long been in storage. Such goods often include desks and trunks and boxes filled with family documents. Among the documents are apt to be letters and deeds dating back to the time when stamps were first issued, in the eighteen-forties. And such letters and deeds conceivably bear postage and revenue stamps which may have philatelic values which run up into the thousands of dollars each. The desk or trunk or box sold at auction at a moderate price may contain, in the way of stamps, paper worth a hundred times more than the container. The purchaser may acquire a young fortune of which the warehouse proprietor was in ignorance; the stamps may be more valuable than all furniture disposed of throughout one day's auctioning.

At one of the N. F. W. A. summer conventions at Mackinac a warehouseman operating in one of the smaller mid-western cities apprised the writer that a lot he was about to sell for unpaid storage charges contained an album of stamps and that he had been offered $60 for the album. On the way back from Mackinac the writer stopped off and spent the afternoon browsing through the album. It contained stamps which should easily bring a thousand dollars in the New York market. We gave the warehouseman the assurance that undoubtedly we could sell the collection for that much money. But the warehouseman admitted that he needed cash immediately and he sold the stamps for the $60 offered, without waiting to learn what we could do for him in New York.

Recently Fred Hahn, of the Hahn Brothers Fireproof Warehouse, Inc., New York, dropped in at this office for a chat and the subject of stamps came up. Fred disclosed that he had recently come across a collection in a lot he was selling. Fred knew little about stamps, but fortunately his auctioneer had been a collector as a boy. Fred said that the auctioneer advertised the collection separately from the other goods, with the result that there was competitive bidding for it on auction day. Dealers and collectors were in the audience. The collection was knocked down for $200. If the auctioneer had not known something about stamp values the album would have gone as "contents" and the Hahn company would have received $200 less that day.

It may well repay the household goods storage executive to rummage through containers in search of envelopes and deeds bearing cancelled stamps, and in search of collections of stamps.

In the days before the Government printed its first postal paper, in 1847, certain postmasters issued what philately calls "provisional" stamps. How many of these are lying dormant today in long-established household goods warehouses? Why shouldn't it be good business for the storage executive to learn definitely, before permitting old envelopes to pass on in containers, whether the envelopes bear any of those early postmasters' provisionals?

The Alexandria, Va., postmaster's provisional is worth $10,000. One of the Baltimore provisionals is valued at $12,000. The Boscawen, N. H., provisional is quoted at $15,000. Early Government issues are sometimes worth hundreds of dollars each, as are some of the Civil War revenue stamps to be found attached to deeds.

Separate from the lots all letters and deeds bearing early stamps. In nearly every city it is possible to locate a dealer who knows something about stamp values; have him examine them and judge their worth. And the same with collections uncovered. But if the dealer makes an offer for the stamps, don't take it! He may or may not be suggesting their true value. You are apt to get more money at auction, the way the Hahn representative did. Advertise the stamps and place them on display, in advance, for examination by amateur collectors, many of whom are moneyed men.

Or, may we add, the editor is at your service and will be more than pleased to be your philatelic consultant. If you come across collections or stamp-bearing letters and deeds, send them on to the editor by registered mail and he will tell you what you could expect to get for them in the New York stamp market; and, if it is your preference, put through sale for you. And he will do this without charging a commission.

No stamps are more popular today among American collectors than the early issues of the United States. Prices have soared in recent years. Values of stamps are based on the law of supply and demand just as truly as are the values of copper, cotton and corn, and right now the demand far exceeds the supply.

A concluding thought: don't remove the stamps from any letters or deeds found. The process of removal may damage a stamp, thus lessening its value. And an original stamped cover, showing postmark, etc., is worth infinitely more than the stamp unattached.

When auction time comes, think about stamps. It may mean unexpected cash in your pocket.

Brevity and Punch

THE START of a new year is as good a time as any to analyze the accustomed phraseology of your correspondence to determine whether it may be effectively pepped up a bit. Too often business letters are stilted—particularly the ones containing messages of solicitation.

If your usual written bids for business are not bringing results, give them a new twist. Inject some life into them. Eliminate much of the formality and cut down on the weight of dignity. And avoid being verbose—long-windedness is apt to bore the recipient to the point where the letter will be tossed aside without being read. A brief epistle snappily worded will command the busy executive's attention where a prolix communication will cause him annoyance.

As a recent example which brought results we are going to quote a letter to traffic managers and warehousemen from H. S. Webster, Jr., who is the circulation manager as well as the secretary of Distribution and Warehousing.

Harry's pre-Christmas job was to be able to calculate how many copies of this current Directory issue should be printed, so he set out to have expiring subscriptions renewed for 1932. Instead of telling, in his letter, how good he expected "DandW" to be editorially in the coming year—that was his "line" in the past—Harry wrote as follows:

"I'm in a jam, between you on one side and 'Andy' Murray, the DandW 'prexy,' on the other.

"Here's the story. . . .

"Our printer must know very shortly how many Annual Warehouse Directory copies to print.

"If I disappoint YOU by not ordering YOUR copy, you'll be after me with a shotgun . . . and if I do print one for you and you fail to take it, 'Andy' will be after me with a shotgun, because it costs nearly $3 to print each copy of the Directory.

"My main interest is in seeing that YOU get YOUR Directory, but won't you help me to serve YOU by renewing your subscription immediately?

"Thanks, and I hope to be able to return the courtesy."

Brief, to the point, with a little salt of humor—and sent out at the approach of Christmas, when tolerance and kindness rule the heart of man.

It brought better returns than any letter Harry had previously written on the subject. Moreover, many of the recipients took the trouble ("trouble" is not the correct word here) to reply in spirit.

"Tell Mr. Murray," one traffic manager wrote, "to 'have a heart' and go easy with the old shotgun; have recommended the subscription and think your check will come thru all O.K."

One warehouse executive responded:

"We are in a jam, too—it seems almost continually; but you have two avenues of escape—being surrounded only on two sides, while we are surrounded on all sides plus top and bottom.

"And OUR story . . . whew! but you wouldn't care to hear it.

"We will not disappoint you, however, for we do herewith order a copy of the Annual—we desire it as much as you wish to send it to us. And we herewith order a renewal of our subscription: payable on or about April 1st, 1932. Can you agree to these terms and not ask us for payment three months in advance? Boy! . . . 'nuff said!"

Another storage operator replied:

"To horse, men, to horse! Rush to the aid of Sir Webster; give him the support of your doughty right arm—or rather the support of your check which will neither rebound nor return without the Golden Fleece!

"Now, Sir Webster, I have neither the heart nor the desire to cause any ill-will or difference between you and the Honorable Andy Murray.

"I care not to be separated from that beloved publication of publications, the Annual Directory issue of Distribution and Warehousing.

"Therefore I rush, I speed, I hurry off our check (let's hope it's a good one) for $3 covering our renewal subscription. May the good Deity above convey it safely into your hands."

Another warehouseman wrote:

"I have received in the past a good many bills, as every business man does, but the notice received from your firm is the kindest one and gives me faith that I will come through even though business is on the rocks. But above all that, it shows that there are some good people yet left in our country. Best wishes for a Happy New Year, which is going to be better."

Those are examples. They, and others, enabled our circulation manager to do his calculating expertly. That fact may not stir your excitement, but the situation suggests that an appraisal of your solicitation literature is something to consider. A letter can make friends as well as build business. And much business is based on friendliness.

The Government Statistics

ERN WARE-HOUSEMAN

writes to know how other executives in the industry feel "about making the numerous reports that are being required by the Government." He complains:

"At the rate we are going it will be only a short time until the warehouses will have to employ extra help to make up these reports. It seems to us that the only purpose of this is to make political jobs.

"One of the ridiculous features is that if these reports are delayed, along comes a wire with the request that the information be given by return wire collect. All this must run into hundreds of thousands of dollars a year.

"It seems to us that it's up to the people to attempt to curtail this sort of thing. We cannot hope for anything from the politicians, and unless some effort is made there is no hope of anything but a continual waste of the taxpayer's money in this way.

"We are refusing to make these reports and I would like to know how other warehousemen feel about it. As a matter of fact we cannot afford to maintain any more help than is absolutely necessary, and must of necessity eliminate all unnecessary work."

Our reply included this:

"Nearly 1400 warehouse companies are supplying figures monthly. Certainly they would not do so unless they considered these figures valuable to their business. They are not obliged by law to send these figures to Washington, so their action is voluntary; the fact that their action is voluntary would seem to indicate their conviction that the gathering of these statistics is something worth while.

"Speaking personally, I believe it is worth while. The Government is doing this same thing for numerous other industries, and this cooperation has been in progress for years. Warehousing, as an industry, receives added prestige by being included in this group, and I feel that for that reason alone, if for no other, the individual warehouse firms should cheerfully supply their figures so that the Government table month by month can be as nearly representative of the true picture as it is possible to prepare.

"From my conversations with warehouse executives I find that many of them favor the plan for an entirely different reason, and it is this: they know more about their own business operations than ever before. They find that monthly compilation of such figures regarding their own operation is advantageous in numerous ways. It is helpful in cost accounting, for one thing. One warehouse president tells me that after he began, several years ago, digging into figures regarding his tonnage, he was able to check losses in several departments and got those departments out of the 'red' for the first time."

Automatic Renewal of Employment Contracts

VARIOUS Courts have held that rental, lease, employment and other contracts are automatically extended for a period equal to the term of the original contract, if the same relations between the contracting parties continue after expiration of the contract and no other arrangements are made pertaining to the new term.

For illustration, in Magnolia Warehouse Co. v. Davidson, 38 S. W. (2d) 634, it was shown that a warehouseman and an employee entered into a written contract by the terms of which the former agreed to hire the latter for one year and pay him $250 a month. At the end of the first year the employee was permitted to continue in the employment and at the termination of nine months of the second year the warehouseman discharged him.

The employee sued to recover salary from the date of his discharge to the end of the second year. The warehouseman attempted to avoid liability on the ground that he had not contracted to employ the employee the full second year. However, as a new contract was not made at the end of the first year and the same relation between the warehouseman and the employee continued into the second year, the higher Court held the warehouseman liable for payment of the employee's salary for the remainder of the second year. This Court said:

"When one enters into the service of another for a definite period and continues in the employment after the expiration of that period, without any new contract, the presumption is that the employment is constituted on the terms of the original contract, and that provisions and restrictions forming essential parts of the contract . . . continue in force. . . . The evidence was amply sufficient to support the allegation that defendant had by its acts renewed the former contract for a period of one year from the 31st day of July to July 31 of the following year.

Carrier's Liability for Damage to Shipped Goods

WHEN it appears that a shipment was in good order at the time of its delivery to a common carrier for transportation and was delivered to the consignee in damaged condition, it will be presumed that the damage was caused by the delivering carrier. This rule applies equally to a case of transportation by initial and connecting carriers and to the case of transportation by a single carrier who is the initial, transporting and delivering carrier.

Another important point of the law is that a bill of lading signed by a carrier acknowledging the receipt of merchandise in good order is prima facie evidence that, as to external appearance, the goods were in good order. And for a consignee to recover for damaged goods it is necessary that either shipper or consignee proves that the goods were claim filed with the carrier for the amount of the loss.

The carrier attempted to avoid liability on the ground that the consignee had failed to prove that the damage resulted from negligence by its employees. However, as the bill of lading contained a notation by which the last carrier's agent admitted that the goods were in bad order when delivered, the Court held the consignee entitled to a recovery, and said:

"The authorities are not in conflict when the distinction is noted between those in which the damaged condition of the goods is apparent from external appearance and those in which it is concealed. A carrier is not only not obligated to open cases and wrappings for the purpose of examining the interior contents, but he is not permitted to do so. In the instant case, the condition of the goods when the cars reached Gardiner [consignee] was plainly apparent, and, if it had been in like condition when defendant [last carrier] accepted it for carriage, the fact should have been noted in the bill of lading. That it was not so noted raises the presumption that the condition complained of did not exist at that time."

Consignee May Be Liable for the Freight Charges

THE law is well established that a signor is liable for payment of freight charges on merchandise which the consignee refuses to accept. However, various Courts have held that a consignee who diverts shipment from its original destination is liable for the freight charges.

For instance, in S. A. Gerrard Co. v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co., 176 N. E. 126, it was disclosed that a shipper shipped a carload of merchandise to a consignee who ordered the carrier to divert the shipment and deliver it to another company. The latter refused to accept delivery, and the carrier sued the original consignee for the freight charges. In holding the original consignee liable, the higher Court said:

"We are not holding that there was actual or constructive delivery to the Gerrard Company, but we are deciding that, in the conduct of shipping interests and business, when the Gerrard Company, as it had a right to do, gave diversion orders to a new destination, which were accepted by the railroad in good condition when accepted by the carrier, and that they were in damaged condition when delivered to consignee by carrier

On the other hand it is settled that the law presumes that the last carrier which handles the goods is responsible, if the goods when delivered were apparently in bad order and the carrier's agent recognized this fact. The latest higher Court case involving this point of the law is Goldberg v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co., 153 Atl. 812.

In this case it was shown that a shipper consigned to an initial carrier a large quantity of merchandise. On its arrival it was discovered by the consignee that the goods were so damaged by water as to be worthless. The consignee called this fact to the attention of the freight agent, who noted on the bills of lading of the cars: "Wet. Bad order." The entire shipment was then taken to the consignee's storehouse, where the damaged merchandise was separated, and a company, it thereupon impliedly bound itself to pay the freight from the diversion point to the new destination. There was sufficient control exercised by the Gerrard Company over the shipment by issuing diversion orders to make it liable to the railroad company for the freight and demurrage charges."

Provision of Bill of Lading Is Held Valid

IT is well established law that any provision in a bill of lading is valid and enforceable, providing it is not unreasonable.

One of the most important clauses in bills of lading is that one which limits the time in which a shipper or consignee must file a complaint after the loss or damage to merchandise. Generally speaking, the Courts have held this clause valid and enforceable. The latest higher Court case involving this point of law is Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Martin, 51 S. Ct. 453.

In this case the Supreme Court of the United States upheld the validity of a clause in a bill of lading, as follows:

"Claims for loss, damage or injury to property must be made in writing to the originating or delivering carrier or carriers, issuing this bill of lading, within six months after delivery of the property . . . or in case of failure to make delivery, then within six months after a reasonable time for delivery has elapsed."

The facts in this case are that on Nov. 6, 1925, a shipment was delivered to an initial carrier in Michigan and transferred to the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co. for final transportation to Richmond, Va. The shippers had arranged for the storage of the goods with the Bowman Transfer Co. in Richmond, and the Chesapeake & Ohio had been notified that the merchandise was to be delivered at the warehouse. The shipment arrived at the Chesapeake & Ohio yards in Richmond six days after shipment was made, and four days later was inspected by the shippers, who thereupon paid all freight and demurrage charges and became entitled to delivery.

To make delivery to the Bowman warehouse it first was necessary to transfer the car to the Southern Railway, and the usual time required for the entire movement was not more than forty-eight hours. The Chesapeake & Ohio transferred the car to the Southern, but by mistake directed delivery to be made to a different warehouse, where the car was unloaded and the goods were stored in the belief that they belonged to a customer of this warehouseman.

The same day the Bowman company mailed to the shippers a warehouse receipt acknowledging the receipt and storage of the goods in the warehouse of that company, but a month later advised the shippers by letter that the receipt had been issued in error, and that the car had been taken to another warehouse.

Notwithstanding this letter, the shippers visited the Bowman warehouse, and upon inquiry concluded that the goods were there. They made no inquiry of the Chesapeake & Ohio or at the other warehouse. The owner of the warehouse having the goods did not know or suspect that he had a wrong shipment until May 10, 1926, at which time he informed the shippers, who then identified the goods and found them in a spoiled condition, sold them for a small sum, and brought suit against the Chesapeake & Ohio. No notice of loss was given or claim for damages was made until May 26, 1926, a period of six months and twenty days after the shipment from Michigan.

Although the lower Court held the carrier liable, the Supreme Court of the United States reversed this decision, and said:

"The provision of the bill of lading that claim for loss in case of failure to deliver must be made within six months after the lapse of a reasonable time for delivery is authorized by Federal statute and is valid and applicable, . . . and, since it was issued in respect of an interstate shipment pursuant to an act of Congress, the bill of lading is an instrumentality of such commerce. . . . Since the claim for loss was not made until the expiration of six months and twenty days after the shipment, the first ground resolves itself into the question whether twenty days was a reasonable time for the delivery of the car to the consignee. What constitutes a reasonable time depends upon the circumstances of the particular case. As applied to a case like this, it means such time as is necessary conveniently to transport and make delivery of the shipment in the ordinary course of business, in the light of the circumstances and conditions surrounding the transaction."

Rental Charge and Net Income

MANY Courts have held that, when computing income taxes, for an expense to be a valid deduction from net income, the person or corporation making such deduction must prove convincingly that such expenditure was assumed in good faith and not in the guise of profits.

For example, in the late case of Chicago Shipping & Storage Co. v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 47 F. (2d) 539, it was shown that a company paid to a controlling stockholder $60,000 a year, presumably as rental. The commissioner of internal revenue declined to permit the corporation to deduct this amount from its income tax statement. Suit was filed to compel the commissioner to allow this item as a valid deduction.

It is interesting to observe that the higher Court refused to authorize the deduction, and said:

"We have no adequate evidence which clearly indicates that the excess amount was rental and not a distribution of profits in the guise of rental even if clearly paid or credited. . . . There no evidence was introduced of payment or obligation to pay. Here we are not convinced that the amount was rental. . . . There are other facts which rather persuasively sustain the finding of the Board. For instance, there is no documentary proof of the existence of this sub-lease. . . . While this was not necessary, perhaps, it was rather unusual in the case of a lease involving the payment of $60,000 annual rental."

Lease and License

—a Distinction

IT is elementary law that no particular words, technical or otherwise, or forms of expression, are necessary to constitute a lease. In fact, the relationship of landlord and tenant is determined from the intent of the parties ascertained from a consideration of the entire contract. Generally speaking, if exclusive possession or control of the premises, or a portion thereof, is granted, even though the use is restricted, the contract will be considered to be a lease and not a license.

The importance of being able to determine the distinction between a lease and a license resides in the fact that the person who leases property is practically the owner thereof during the term of the tenancy, whereas a person who merely has a license to occupy property cannot use it in any way not specifically included in the contract.

For illustration, in Barnett v. Lincoln, 299 Pac. 392, it was disclosed that a city entered into a contract with a terminal company consisting in part of sheds used as warehousing space for storing, handling and shipping merchandise. The city assumed responsibility for the maintenance and repair of buildings, roof-structures, and roof, whereas the terminal company assumed responsibility for loss, damage, or injury to the premises caused by its employees, invitees, or licensees, other than by reasonable wear and tear or fire.

The contract further provided that "in the event of buildings situated on the premises should be totally or partially lost or destroyed by fire or other casualty, the terminal company shall have the right to declare the contract terminated by written notice."

In holding this contract to be a lease and not a license, the higher Court stated the following important law:

"A lease is a contract for the exclusive possession of lands or tenements for some certain number of years or other determinate period, and a contract for such exclusive possession is a lease although there may be certain restrictions or a restriction of the purpose for which the possession may be used, and although it may be described as a license. . . . A tenant, as we have before seen, has the possession and the right of possession, which he may assert against the whole world and which, except in the case of a tenant at will, he may transfer to another, and is not terminable at the landlord's option. . . .

One having a license, on the other hand, has merely a permission to do certain acts, which he can assert against the licensor only, and which is ordinarily terminable or revocable at the will of the latter, and is not transferable."

When Is a Contractor Legally Independent?

VARIOUS Courts have held that an independent contractor is one who exercises an independent employment, and represents his employer only as to the result of his work, and not as to the means by which it is done. If the employee is merely subject to the control or direction of the owner or his agent as to the result to be obtained, he is an independent contractor.

For instance, in the late case of Louis Werner Co. v. Northcutt, 134 So. 156, it was shown that a person who loaned money to a motor truck owner guaranteed the latter's account, paid the salaries of the employees, and had general supervision over operation of the business. However, the lender of the money did not control the workmen, but merely supervised the general operation of the business for the purpose of assuring profitable results.

An employee who was injured sued the lender of the money for damages on the contention that, under the aforementioned circumstances, the relation of independent contractor did not exist. However, it is interesting to observe that the higher Court held the lender of the money not liable for the reason that the owner of the truck acted as an independent contractor in operation of its business. This Court stated the following law:

"The relation of master and servant ordinarily exists where one person stands in such relation to another that he may control the work of the latter, and direct the manner in which it shall be done. The master must have control and direction, not only of the employment to which the contract relates, but its details; and shall have the right to employ at will, and for proper cause to discharge those who serve him. When these elements are absent, the relation does not exist. . . . An independent contractor is one who renders service in the course of an occupation, representing the will of his employer only as to the result of his work, and not as to the means by which it is accomplished."

Liability Resides With Controller of a Driver

FREQUENTLY the legal question of liability arises where a motor truck and its driver are hired on the hourly basis of payment. It is important to know that three distinct theories have been advanced to cover the situation resulting from the hiring of a motor truck which is to be used in the performance of certain work for the benefit of the hirer, and which is driven by an employee of the owner:

First, the contract of hire is presumed to carry with it the right to control the driver as long as that possession continues.

Second, a driver is deemed to have been hired by the hirer for the purpose of doing the stipulated work, and, although selected by and normally in the employment of the owner of the truck, he impliedly becomes subject to the direction of the hirer from the time when the performance of the contract is commenced.

Third, a driver sent to take charge of a motor truck while it is placed at the disposal of a hirer is presumed to remain the servant of the truck owner, unless the evidence indicates otherwise.

For example, in Bowen v. Gradison Co., 32 S. W. (2d) 1014, it was disclosed that a corporation hired a motor truck from its owner. The owner furnished his truck and the driver, oil, gasoline and everything else necessary for its operation, and the corporation paid him $2.50 an hour for its use. While the truck owner hired and paid the driver, the officers of the corporation had no right to discharge him or to put upon the truck a driver of their own selection, but they had the right to send the truck home and terminate the contract when they chose. The corporation directed the loading, unloading and operation of this truck.

One day the truck driver negligently injured a pedestrian, who sued the corporation for damages. The latter endeavored to avoid liability on the contention that the owner of the truck was solely liable. However, the Court held the corporation liable, saying:

"An 'independent contract' is one who is doing his own work in his own way. . . . The master is he who can say to the servant, 'Go' and he goeth, 'Come' and he cometh, or 'Do this' and he doeth it. Who has power to say, 'Do this first,' 'Do it this way,' 'Do not do that,' 'Hurry up,' or otherwise direct the detail of the manner of its doing? Whose work was being done? When we find that party, we have found the master. . . . The corporation is shown by the evidence here to have been the master and Owen to have been its servant, at the time of this accident, and it must answer for his negligence."

Ruling of Interest by Oklahoma Court

AN employer who is engaged in the transfer business only does not come within the terms of Oklahoma's workmen's compensation Act; it must be shown that he is engaged in the business of transfer and storage in order to come within the terms of said act. This was the syllabus of an opinion written by Chief Justice E. F. Lester and handed down by the Oklahoma Supreme Court in November.

The case was styled Carl Followwill

and Commercial Standard Insurance Co. v. Amos B. Marshall and the State Industrial Commission. The award was reversed, with directions to the Industrial Commission to ascertain whether or not the employer was engaged in the business of storing goods in addition to transferring them.

Justice Lester's opinion pointed out that in the case of Gypsy Oil Co. v. Keys, et al, 147 Okla. 148, 295 P. 612, the Court announced the following rule:

"Owners or operators of motor trucks hauling property for the public for compensation and authorized to operate as 'motor carriers,' under 'Class B' permits granted by the Corporation Commission under Chapter 253, Session Laws of 1929, do not come within the meaning of the industries and business enterprises covered by the workmen's compensation law."

Responsibility for Damage by Rodents

LEGAL EDITOR, Distribution and Warehousing: A lady had some goods stored with us in open storage, and the goods were wrapped by us and moth-treated, which she paid for. Upon taking delivery, a bundle of curtains were damaged by mice. Kindly advise if warehousemen can be held liable in this case.—Security Van & Storage Co., Inc.

Answer: If the contract with your customer expressly or impliedly indicates that upon payment of wrapping charges you guaranteed the goods against damage, obviously you are liable. If, however, the guarantee was exclusively against damage by moths, the fact that mice damaged the merchandise does not render you liable, unless the damage resulted from negligence of yourself or employees.

In other words, although the customer paid you to wrap the goods and the contract does not bind you against unusual loss or damage, the relation of bailor and bailee exists between yourself and your customer, and you are not liable unless such loss was occasioned by your lack of ordinary care to safeguard the stored goods.

There are numerous cases verifying this explanation of the law. During the past year not fewer than twenty-five higher Court cases involving liability of warehousemen have been digested in Distribution and Warehousing.

Of course, considerable litigation and testimony may be required definitely to prove whether you were negligent in failing to safeguard the stored merchandise against damage by mice. The outcome of this litigation depends on the location of your warehouse, as well as upon many other facts. For instance, if your warehouse is located in close proximity to a granary, where mice are plentiful, the Court may hold that ordinary care on your part would not prevent mice from entering the warehouse. The fact that the goods were wrapped to prevent damage exclusively by moths has no effect on the outcome of this litigation.

Selling Goods for Accrued Charges

LEGAL EDITOR, Distribution and Warehousing: The question has arisen as to whether or not, in case of receivership, the warehouseman would have preferred lien against the receiver on the merchandise in storage. Also, whether orders are necessary from the receiver to make deliveries from the stock. Another important question is whether the warehouseman could demand all charges from the receiver, before releasing the merchandise. Further, we would like to know if we would be acting within the law if we placed the receiver upon notice that we were going to dispose of the merchandise if the accrued charges for the past six months' storage are not paid within a certain period.—Cincinnati Terminal Warehouses, Inc.

Answer: The answers to your question depend entirely on the legal interpretation of the laws of the State in which your warehouse is located. Generally speaking, State statutes give warehousemen primary and prior liens on stored goods for storage charges. Therefore, ordinarily a warehouseman is entitled to recover payment of charges before delivery of goods is required, notwithstanding the fact that a receiver may have legal right to possession.

A different question of law is presented with respect to charges which accrue after the receiver is appointed. A technical question arises with respect to the right of a warehouseman to dispose of merchandise if the accrued charges have not been paid. Considerable litigation may result from obtaining decision involving this point of the law. However, it is my opinion that, unless the State laws distinctly specify otherwise, a warehouseman may without liability dispose of goods, in accordance with provisions of statutes, to secure payment for accrued storage charges.

Ownership of a Sewing Machine

LEGAL EDITOR, Distribution and Warehousing: We have in our warehouse a small lot of furniture on which the storage charges are not paid. The owner of the goods is now located in the South. Among the furniture is a sewing machine owned by one of the department stores. They have called us several times to claim this article, stating they would pay all charges on this one piece. Our contention is that if they have the owner of the goods send us an order to make delivery, upon all charges being paid by them, we will deliver the machine. Are we correct?—Empire Forwarding Company.

Answer: Certainly you will not be justified in delivering the sewing machine to the department store without absolute proof that it owns it. The store owner should be willing to furnish you with this proof, so that you will know whether you are justified in delivering the machine to him. If delivery is made, have the officers of the store sign the following:

"In consideration of (your name) delivering to us (name of store) a sewing machine from goods stored by (customer's name), we (name of store) agree to compensate said (your name) for any losses, cost of litigation, and other expenses, which may result from making delivery of said sewing machine to said (name of store)."

Your Watchman Protects You —Do You Protect Him?

By H. F. KINNEAR

DURING business hours your warehouse is teeming with life. Employees are on every hand to protect your interests. A stranger perhaps cannot enter without a pass and cannot go from one department to another without a trusted guide. If a fire should break out it would be immediately detected and means taken to handle it.

At the end of the day every one hurries home. Your plant, representing an investment of thousands of dollars and years of your life, is left in charge of one man, your watchman.

This watchman is paid by you to watch over your interests. You expect him to protect them in every way.

But are you doing everything possible to aid this man to do his duty?

Let us consider ten points that are necessary for the watchman's protection—and your own.

1. Have you spare flashlight globes and batteries in a convenient place? Perhaps you think this a small item, but consider if the watchman drops his light and breaks the globe. That means that for the balance of the night he must patrol part of the plant in the dark. How easy for him to just fail to patrol these parts, and would his excuse be unreasonable?

2. Is the telephone switchboard fully connected? In case the watchman must call the fire department or the police, much time would be lost if he had to run back to the office and operate the switchboard. It is also necessary to have a large gong connected to the telephone, so if the watchman is working away from the telephone the gong will attract his attention.

Sprinkler Heads

3. Is the watchman properly instructed as to what he should do if a sprinkler head should open? A large water loss may result if he does not know the location of the gates and how to close them.

4. Is there a list of names and telephone numbers of persons to be notified in case of trouble?

5. Are the watchman patrol stations located so that he must cover the entire plant on every round,

6. Have your fire extinguishers located at different points on his route so that in case he discovers a small fire he may promptly extinguish it? If he must spend valuable minutes hunting an extinguisher the small fire will get out of control and set off sprinkler heads with a resulting water loss.

7. Is the watchman properly armed so he may protect himself and your property in case of attack?

8. Have you a button outside the door that will ring an inside gong if you wish to bring the watchman to the door? And have you arranged a special code to use so the watchman will know it is an authorized person and not some one calling him to the door in order to hold him up?

9. If there is an outside merchants' patrol service, do you have the patrolman make contact with your watchman at certain stated hours? And if your watchman is not at the door at this time, is the patrolman requested to notify a member of your firm to come down and investigate?

10. Is the watchman able-bodied and mentally alert? It is false economy to trust an investment of thousands to an old man, crippled, deaf and of low intelligence just because you can employ him cheaper.

Proposed Atlantic Free Zone Includes Warehouse Plans

World Port

By AUGUSTE MERNICK

THE proposal of two Rhode Island financiers to undertake the most stupendous port development project America has ever known will, if brought to fruition, perhaps stimulate no one industry or service more than that of the warehouseman and the distributor. The project is the building the first "open" port in America at an original cost of about $5,000,000, thus developing 2000 acres of what is now grass and sand land at Point Judith, on the southern shores of Rhode Island, bordering the Atlantic Ocean. Ultimately the port would be a hive of world commerce surrounded by mammoth warehouses and cold storage terminals, and would be the nucleus for distributing goods throughout the eastern part of the United States and into Canada.

For more than a year Fred Curtis Thornley, a world authority on ports, has been surveying the situation for Frederick S. Peck, financier and finance commissioner of Rhode Island, and J. J. Bodell, developer and financier, who now await necessary legislation from Congress before proceeding with definite plans for construction.

The main purpose of the open port would be to encourage exporting and importing, thus reviving world commerce and prosperity. During the six-months' period through which we have just passed, our export trade dropped one billion dollars, representing a tremendous loss, not only to American manufacturers, but to all allied trades and industries as well. The open port, according to Mr. Thornley, would be of major importance in establishing normal world exchange of goods.

An open port is a segregated area in which goods not otherwise prohibited are unloaded and stored subject to various restrictions as to re-shipment, sorting, packing, manipulating and manufacture, without customs formalities and duties applicable to similar goods entering customs territory. Briefly, it is a foreign zone area into which goods may be loaded and held until a purchaser is found. They may be held for a more favorable price market. Or they may be sorted, the portion not wanted being re-shipped. In the case of mechanical products, parts may be shipped to the port where the finished article may be assembled. Goods may even be manufactured. And, because it is a foreign zone area, this may all be done without customs troubles and payments, these being applied as the goods enter customs territory. Such a port thus saves much in time and money.

THE proposed project calls for the use of 2000 acres of land, furnishing 15 miles of dockage, but there is also available some 5000 acres of land and about 40 miles of additional dock space for development by manufacturers, assembly firms, warehouse services, cold storage plants and other means of business incidental to the operation and control of such a mammoth world port.

The development here of a veritable city of merchandise warehouses is predicted, for there would be goods to be stored while awaiting a more favorable price market. It would be possible also for American retailers and wholesalers to purchase imports in large quantities, storing parts of the shipment until needed. Manufacturers could buy raw materials in large quantities and store some of the goods until needed. There would be storage space needed while goods were being sorted, and, of course, there must be space where brokers could bring their prospects to look over their wares.

American manufacturers and exporters could send their goods to this zone for storage until a more favorable time to make shipments abroad. Expense of storage at this port would, it is contended, be substantially less than for storing merchandise in this country under present conditions.

To care for perishable foods, the shipment of which an open port would help considerably, large cold storage terminals would be erected, according to Engineer Thornley. He declares the establishment of a line of fast cold storage steamships to bring fruits and vegetables from the Pacific Coast has retarded by difficulty in obtaining a terminal site suitable for such an undertaking. These steamers would serve eastern and foreign markets alike, he states. While these cold storage warehouses would serve necessarily in sorting, packing and other manipulating, they would be valuable also in protecting perishables while awaiting a better price situation.

Such a port would give permanent work to thousands of men and women, who would work not only on the port business, but in these public warehouses, sugar refineries, rice milling plants, assembly plants and others of an industrial nature. Such a port, international in its relations, would be the meeting place for all peoples of the world doing business with all moneys of the world. Here also, Mr. Thornley states, would spring up residential sections and retail establishments which in time would assume the aspect of a large city.

Such a port built at Point Judith would be the most accessible and the most natural of any along the Atlantic Coast, lying on the direct route for all Caribbean, Gulf and west-of-Panama ports. It is the shortest route to European and South American ports, and is 250 nautical miles nearer Liverpool than is New York, 390 nearer Liverpool than is Philadelphia and 560 nearer than is Boston. It is the nearest gateway to coastwise shipping to New England and Canada, being also the nearest to those places and the great Northwest by rail.

It must be remembered that at the opening of the Civil War, American ships were carrying about 70 per cent of our exports and 65 per cent of our imports, while at the opening of the World War, our ships carried only 8 per cent. Our shipping supremacy had been allowed to slip into other hands—a situation that should not be, for while America has excelled in the art of mass production, she must likewise excel in distribution. We have become a nation that makes more than we can consume—a detrimental situation unless we can also distribute that output to profitable advantage. What does it matter if we have mastered mass production if we cannot distribute our goods to the four corners of the earth?

The advancement of the project now awaits legislation from Congress, which body has the power to establish, maintain and operate foreign zone areas. It is predicted this legislation will be forthcoming, as practically all Government authorities and national business bodies have gone on record as approving the project, some of these being the Shipping Board, the Tariff Commission, the National Chamber of Commerce, the Department of Commerce and many members of Congress.

The port would connect, by rail and modern highways, with the main railroad lines of the country and the trunk highways of the eastern part of the United States, which connections would aid speedy distribution of goods to and from the port. It is expected much of the distribution near the port would be done by truck and van, for within 100 miles of it lies a population in excess of 15,000,000 people—a great food and merchandising consuming area. Inside this area also lies an industrial section representing more than 10 per cent of the total industry of the United States.

As engineers visualize the proposed free zone, with warehouses and industrial plant, at Point Judith, R. I.

Studying these two important facts, it is apparent that trucks and vans operating in the East would have opportunity for two-way loads.

California Company Builds Business by Advertising Ten Per Cent Discount of Boxes and Barrels

By WILLIS PARKER

AT intervals, since retail merchants and others have filled their newspaper advertisements with mentions of articles at reduced prices and at discounts, there has appeared in the classified columns of the Santa Ana, Cal., newspapers notices announcing boxes and barrels at 10 per cent discount at the Santa Ana Transfer Company.

In explanation of this, R. R. Dickinson, manager, declares that he is striving to accomplish two things by these advertisements:

First, to get the public's attention by offering goods at a discount, inasmuch as the public is so price-minded that nothing less than a price inducement catches the newspaper reader's eye.

Second, to make his warehouse a depot for wooden boxes and barrels, which in turn will accomplish two things—(a) cause more people to become acquainted with the warehouse, its location, its facilities and its personnel, and (b) to uncover "leads" in connection with people who are packing their goods to ship or to store.

"Only a relatively few of the citizens of Santa Ana realize what sort of an institution we have," Mr. Dickinson explains. "Few have been through the warehouse and, therefore, do not know how well we are arranged and equipped to care for their goods if placed in storage with us. Once in a while a person is in need of a wooden box or a barrel and has difficulty finding one because the merchants usually dispose of them as rapidly as they are emptied. If such a person will come to us, we can supply the need at a profit to ourselves, and we are given an opportunity to show him through the warehouse as well as show him through the packing and shipping rooms. If he is favorably impressed, as we believe he will be, he will remember us when next in need of warehouse or transfer services.

"If the person is figuring on moving and is seeking barrels and boxes in which to pack some of his effects, we are given an opportunity to show him how well fixed we are to do that work, explain that we have experienced packers, and that if he will turn the job over to them he may save himself time and, perhaps, money. If it is a long distance truck haul, perhaps we can get the hauling. If he figures on storing, perhaps we can get the storage instead of his placing it in a friend's attic, barn or cellar.

"In so far as possible, we take every box or barrel customer through the entire establishment and make friends with him. I can't say that we are doing a big business in boxes and barrels as a result of our advertisements offering them at discounts of 10 per cent, but, if only a dozen respond each week, it is more than likely that in the course of a year we will make many valuable contacts and uncover many excellent leads.

"No other form of newspaper advertising does us much good these days. It is only by consistently and assiduously following up every lead we can get that we are getting any business to speak of, for people are not moving in as large numbers as they were a few years ago.

"In connection with following up 'leads,' we find that it is a good policy to use the telephone first to make appointments. Some warehouse men are prone to call on customers as early as 7 o'clock in the morning. That's too early, as a rule, to make a personal call. We prefer to arrange an interview by telephone, because we can suit the prospect's convenience and save our own time. Furthermore, if we have an appointment, we can be certain that the prospect will make no definite arrangements until he has heard our story."

D. H. Van Name

By ELIZABETH FORMAN

Let's Take the Family Album Out of Storage!

In oval, David H. Van Name, president of the F. C. Linde Co., New York City, and general treasurer of the American Warehousemen's Association

The Linde organization's merchandising storage plant at Beach and Varick Streets

HISTORY and tradition are rich and plentiful down around Varick and Beach streets in New York City, and in no spot do they cluster more profusely than in the office of David H. Van Name, president of the F. C. Linde Co.

Descendant of two old families dating back to the early history of New York, Mr. Van Name heads a company whose place of business may well be said to stand on hallowed ground. Here, around the corner from the old home of the designer of the famed "Monitor," is a modern warehouse occupying what was formerly the grounds of St. John's Episcopal Church.

Back in the days when Canal Street was a meadow, old St. John's was founded by the fashionable English colony then residing in the district. Here the elite of New York and the gentry from the neighboring farms were wont to worship.

Originally, the ground around the church was surrounded by a high iron fence, the inclosure being known as St. John's Park. Here in the middle of a landscaped garden was a placid pool where small boys who were clever enough to scale the fence at night might enjoy a surreptitious swim. One lad who frequented this forbidden nocturnal haunt grew up to become vice-president of the Linde company. His name was James O. Clark, who died about two years ago.

In 1867 the ground of St. John's was purchased by Commodore Vanderbilt for $1,000,000, the sum representing the largest check ever written for real estate in the city up to that time. During the excavations for the New York subway, Trinity Parish spent $125,000 to strengthen and support the portico of the historic old church, but it finally had to be torn down, anyway.

The warehouse of the Linde company occupies one entire block of what was once the park. Bounded by Varick, Laight, Hudson and Beach streets, the building is 400 by 440 ft. and has a capacity of 3,600,000 cu. ft.

Mr. Van Name, the firm's president, has been associated with warehousing since 1897, having acted variously as director, assistant secretary and secretary-treasurer before assuming his present responsibilities. He was born on Staten Island and was educated in New York. His parents, of Holland Dutch and English extraction, were born at New Paltz, Ulster County, near Kingston, N. Y., where their families had lived since 16 hundred and something. His maternal grandfather, William Lissenden, was a ship-builder on Staten Island, and it is said that he was the first person to cut a boat in two to lengthen it. His great-grandfather Van Name was the first person to transplant oysters from their natural beds and was one of the largest oyster planters in New York at the time of his death.

Developing New Business for Warehouses

The "Makings" for Liquor

THE subject of prohibition is in the news nearly all the time, whether we stand for it or against. For the warehouseman, too, the Eighteenth Amendment brought peculiar problems thirteen years ago this month.

As a rule the public warehouse has found it inadvisable to store whiskey or other liquors, during this period. A score or more of them have indeed been almost compelled to accept this illegal commodity into store, for account of Federal agents who have seized the goods. It is well known that in city after city the warehouseman has encountered difficulty either to get rid of the cases forced upon him or to collect from the Government his charges.

Liquors, whatever the source of the storing, have engulfed the warehouses in one trouble after another.

Pilferage has run high; leakage has been beyond all reason; accidental breakage, due to internal weak packing, has proved costly; and, with more warehouses than one, burglary of the premises has come as an additional woe, because someone either had information or was tipped off that he could lay hands on the forbidden stuff.

This department of New Business is not interested in the warehousing of any unlawful commodity any more than the average warehouseman is.

The past year has, however, introduced into the business world of our prohibition country a new type of substitute for liquors; or, if we speak precisely and correctly, the raw or semi-manufactured materials from which a householder may make his own.

The commodities are "the makings."

IT was just about a year ago, November of 1930, that the country was stirred by a new angle to law enforcement. The grape-into-wine products suddenly came out into the open. The city of Milwaukee was selected as the try-out market for these "makings," and the campaign was launched through three newspapers of that city during the first week of November, at a time when readers were buying papers right and left because the fall election in that city was hotly contested.

The advertisements were under the name of Fruit Industries, Inc., this concern being known to include such companies as Garrett & Company, Italian Vineyard Company, California Grape Fruit Products Co., California Wine Association, National Fruit Products Co., and several others which, altogether, represented most of California's 20,000 growers of grapes.

The advertisements told the citizens of Milwaukee that "Vine-Glo is legal in your home," and that "Vine-Glo, the pure juice of California grapes, is for home use only." The heart of the copy read:

"The problem is solved at last. Yours again—the pure juice of the grape with all its unforgettable bouquet and glorious flavor—always legal for use in your own home (by the distinct provisions of Section 29 of the National Prohibition Act) and now made dependably available to you by a great grower-cooperative organization with a vintner's experience dating back 95 years.

"VINE-GLO! A name to remember. Not a novelty—not a concoction. Just the pure juice of California's finest wine-grapes as it comes from the press—brought to you with a guarantee of absolute satisfaction or your money back."

And under the heading "There is just one way to get it," the copy told where and how:

"The method of getting VINE-GLO to you is novel but simple. You will not find it on display in any store. Nor will any agent call at your door to sell it. But you can order it from our 'selected dealers'—and we will deliver it into your home."

The famous Section 29 of the National Prohibition Act states that the penalty for violation of the prohibition Act "shall not apply to a person for manufacturing non-intoxicating cider and fruit-juices exclusively for use in his home." During the year 1930 a Court in Baltimore had adjudicated that wine is not "intoxicating" even though it contains as much as 12 per cent of alcohol by analysis. Later in the same year, in September, the Director of Prohibition Enforcement, Amos W. W. Woodcock, announced that legally and lawfully wine may be made in the home for use in the home.

These decisions were widely broadcast by the proponents of California's fruit-juice products. They were openly published by Fruit Industries, Inc., which concern went a bit further than any of its predecessors in the sale of grape-into-wine products.

Country Starts to "Make Its Own"

FROM Milwaukee the campaign went into Chicago, where it dared to contend with Al Capone and other bootleg racketeers. The crew of salesmen which had persuaded 200 drug stores and 100 grocers in Milwaukee to stock the new product now descended into Chicago, where the so-called Beer Barons threatened to kill the Vine-Glo representatives. They did not, so far as the public record shows.

Shortly Cleveland was added to the list, and, as the year has run its course, the entire country became a market.

Other preparations were not slow to follow this lead, and before the close of 1931 we saved two dozen or more trade-marked products in bottles and kegs, as well as the "wine bricks" and other evaporated and desiccated and condensed "makings."

In October, 1931, not fewer than seven brands of these "makings" were listed in walking three blocks of a principal street in Albany, each either displayed in the window in the package or advertised as for sale within; four brands were counted under the shadow of the new Union Depot in Cleveland, and six in a single block near University Circle in the same city. Akron, with its characteristic lack of brand consciousness, offered to the eye eleven different trade names on the four sides of a single city block.

Probably no city and no town of consequence has escaped the sale and display of these "makings." The grape-into-wine industry, which for ten years has existed sub rosa and has flourished mostly in cellars and side entrances, has, during the past year, come boldly out in front. Its manufacturers and dealers today openly display the goods, placard their windows and counters, and, rather generally over the country, hesitate not to pay for space in the newspapers to advertise their wares.

Legal hindrances have, of course, arisen. The Kansas decision was so shattering that the sales method has been altered.

For a year ago the manufacturer would undertake to deliver a five-gallon keg, or a larger one, for about $3 a gallon ($14.75 for a 5-gallon and $24.50 for a 10-gallon container), and, after installing it in the home of the purchaser, would send around a representative at the required intervals to "nurse the grape-juice along to its destiny."

But since the Kansas decision the manufacturers have modified their marketing scheme by cleverly omitting this "service." Now they sell the preparation as any other merchandise is sold, allowing the buyer to do with it what he chooses; but providing, of course, printed directions for use. With this lot of commodities, these directions outwit the letter of the law by carefully instructing the purchaser what not to do, knowing full well that he will have brains enough to do exactly what he is told to avoid doing.

For all these thirteen years our fellow citizens have been making liquors at home. The principal change in the past year is that the ingredients have become more easily available, sold publicly and openly rather than surreptitiously.

Enter Warehousing

SO great has become the volume of business that the manufacturers of these preparations have been obliged to distribute them as other goods are handled. They sell through retailer and jobbers, with every conceivable combination of the established routes to the market. A hundred manufacturers now compete for the business; we may, therefore, expect to find many methods of getting the goods into use.

Naturally, therefore, these manufacturers have become patrons of the warehouses. And, their commodity being within the law, the warehouses themselves are willing to take on the account, which is a condition not true of alcohol and whiskey itself.

Every indication points to a growing quantity of these products in our warehouses. The warehouseman may, accordingly, do well to be prepared for inquiries from these makers. This is especially true at this time of the year for the reason that the 1930 crop of grapes was large and, due to the depression, the carry-over from the previous crop was also above the average. The demand, too, for fresh grapes fell off, probably for the same reason, so that, taking all conditions into account, the quantity of these fruit-juice products overhanging the market is probably twice what it was one year ago. To this result the unexpected sales during 1931 have undoubtedly contributed. All the manufacturers and marketing associations look forward to a greater and greater acceptance of their goods.

Looking at these products now from the warehouseman's viewpoint, we find some peculiarities which should be considered before quoting for the business.

These products enjoy a fair margin of profit. They sell for high price. They can, therefore, afford to pay good rates for the storing and handling. This condition makes them attractive to the warehouseman, and to all accounts those warehouses which handled the goods during 1931 made profit from the business.

Many warehousemen, however, have refused to take on the accounts. What all their reasons are I do not know. One has told me that these grape-into-wine products lie too close to the thin edge of the law. He thinks that, ethically, he ought to decline to endanger his reputation by harboring the goods. Others may have followed an identical line of thought.

The fact is undeniable, at any rate, that in each city some of the warehouses are likely to say a "No" when this business appears. This means, to that warehouseman who does decide to quote, that the patron is against an unusual condition and that he is less likely to haggle over rates than to want some assurance that his goods will receive wholehearted service. The man, you remember, who is made to feel half an outcast in any community, does not concern himself over what things cost him. His primary thought and overpowering motive are to get where he will be "accepted" and given sincere treatment. In much this fashion, the manufacturers of these "makings" feel an uncommon need of moral support. They will appreciate and cheerfully pay for good warehouse service wherever they find it.

The trade, as a whole, has faced some such difficulty all through 1931.

Most of the makers attempted to get into all markets quickly. The obviously easy way was to contact wholesalers, chiefly of drugs and groceries. In city after city they begged the jobbers to take on the line. Even brokers, hungry as they have been for anything to sell, have hesitated to push these lines. As a whole, all over the country the manufacturers finally failed to stock their goods with the best wholesalers. This means they have had no distribution through the most ethical houses and those with the widest following.

Partly, no doubt, this was owing to the requirement that the wholesaler was obliged to "nurse the grape-juice along to its destiny" by sending a man to follow up each sale, twice or three times, in order to do the "making" for the customer. It was not a case of sell the goods and collect the money, as ordinary merchandise is sold. For these wholesalers could see for themselves that the "nursing" was dangerously close to manufacturing wine and selling it. It smelled too much of being unlawful.

Such, indeed, proved to be the case, as shown by the Kansas decision.

Following that decision, the altered method of marketing, forced upon the manufacturers, has supported these better wholesalers in their hunch. Now, under the changed procedure of selling the goods and rendering no nurse-maid service, jobbers look upon the goods with more favor.

Thus the outlets are increasing with each month. The marketing of grape-to-wine products is more and more approaching the methods of all other food products.

In this way they will be distributed through public warehouses in larger volume.

A few warehousemen have told me that they refuse to advance the freight charges for these products. Two of them have defended this position by stating that a number of these manufacturers are of doubtful financial strength. When pushed to dispose of made-up goods at the plant, they have a tendency to shoot it to a warehouse, freight collect; and then, being temporarily short of funds, they are woefully slow in remitting. One of these two warehousemen tells me, furthermore, that of these fruit-juice products several are not successful, and he is afraid of being loaded with an unmerchandiseable carload of goods—worth the freight charges if sold, but impossible to sell.

This attitude as to the freight indicates, in all probability, a real risk in handling these products. Although the industry as a whole would seem to be growing, any particular brand may be on the down grade. The warehouse may be left with a lot of unmarketable goods; and, as a manufacturer begins to slip, he might easily fail to pay the warehouseman. A hundred commodities have traveled the same road since warehousing of merchandise began.

An unexpected decision by the Courts, too, might without warning any Monday morning at eleven o'clock remove the protection these grape-to-wine products now enjoy. At the present time they appear to be securely wholly within the law. But should some high Court or the Supreme Court, on appeal of the Kansas decision and the others of like nature, reverse the status now obtaining, all these products might, over night, become unlawful. The warehouseman would then hold illicit goods as securely for his charges. What would happen no one can foretell.

Therefore, in handling these products, it would seem advisable either to make a hard and fast agreement about payment of the charges or to watch the account most carefully in order to prevent unduly high charges running against the goods in store. More than ordinary scrutiny of the account's condition may be required.

Three warehousemen have told me that these products bring a large volume of small-lot deliveries and particularly of

Overland Terminal Installs "Vacufume" Fumigation

An Allied Service

MERCHANDISE warehouses more and more are expending their facilities to include services which while not strictly of a storage nature are, nevertheless, so closely allied that they contribute in no small way to the business as a whole.

In Los Angeles the new Overland Terminal Warehouse, operated by the Crooks Terminal Warehouses of Chicago and Kansas City for the Union Pacific System, has installed on its first floor the Vacufume Company, Ltd., operating a "Vacufume" process for the treating of nuts, cereals, flour, dried fruits, coffee, rice and other food stuffs, and tobacco, plants, furniture and other raw materials or finished products subject to insect infestation.

The Vacufume equipment, by some authorities considered the latest and most modern pest control in the world, has for its antecedents the hundreds of vacuum fumigation plants installed during the past fifteen years, both in this country and abroad, by the manufacturers of this equipment, the Union Tank and Pipe Co., Los Angeles.

Much has been said and written on this subject of pest control, and its methods have generally been so clothed in mystery that there is no little conjecture as to the actual results obtained. There is no secret in the Vacufume process, according to Gordon Ross, the Overland company's associate manager, because it is simply what its name implies—a process of fumigation by vacuum to the end that insect life be totally destroyed without impairing the quality of the product thus treated.

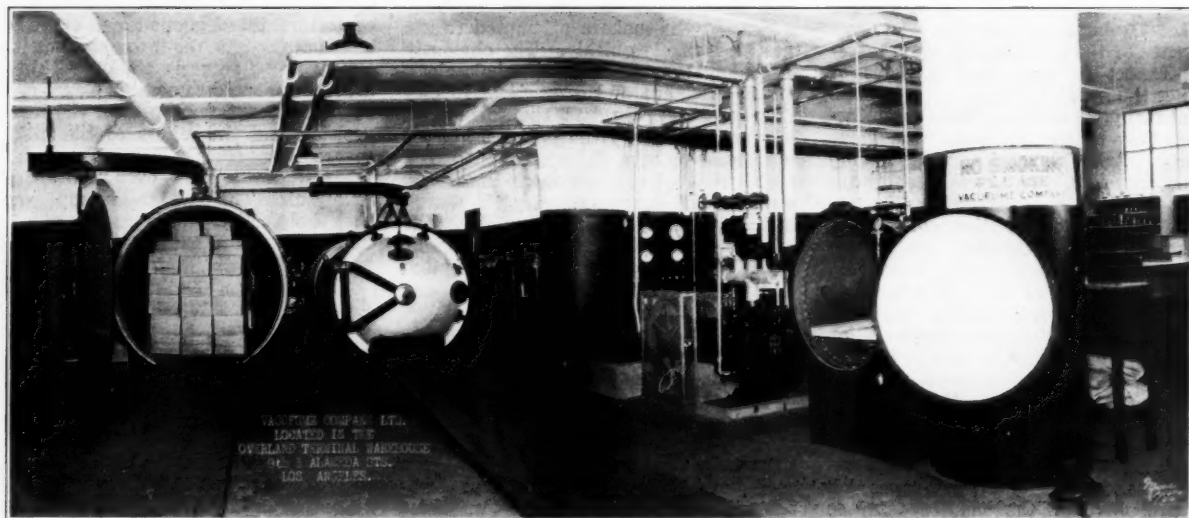

FOR many years atmospheric or normal pressure fumigation has been practiced with almost every toxic or semi-toxic chemical that can be converted into a gas. It was practiced extensively during the years from 1914 to 1918 on the human race, and many years previously on the insect race. To meet the qualifications of warfare for the human race these gases must possess certain qualities, both physical and chemical, such as an affinity for water, specific gravity greater than air, etc., so that the gases will cling to the lower levels and close to the ground. They must be very toxic or corrosive or irritating. And for pest control work, they must possess almost exactly these same qualities and some other more or less hazy characteristics referred to as penetration, diffusibility, intermolecular rearrangement, etc., to meet the drastic requirements of insecticides.

If it were not for the universality of air these latter characteristics would be easily explained, but when a gas is alleged to accomplish 100 per cent penetration into all of the packages, boxes, bales, bags, etc., enclosed within a given room or vault, the molecules of this gas are immediately visualized surging violently into all such air spaces, themselves, forcing the air to vacate, so that this panacea for insect troubles can perform its deadly and most beneficial work. To accomplish this these gases must also attack en masse; that is, a certain definite concentration of gas must be obtained to smother or poison the insects. And as the given room or vault is originally 100 per cent filled with air, some being displaced by the commodity to be treated, any gas so used must first be diluted with the entire volume of air present in this room, before it can even start on its predetermined career of destruction.

In Vacufume the container is first evacuated, likewise the commodity to be treated, because every material of organic nature which is grown naturally contains air, both in the cavities and the cellular structure. At the highest point of the vacuum, pure gas is introduced under pressure equal to one atmosphere, approximately 14.7 pounds at sea level. There can be no question as to the penetration of gases under these conditions. Similarly the gases are removed by vacuum to leave the commodity free from any taint of the gases used.

As a general rule insect life exists in three or four forms; namely, the egg, larvæ, pupæ, and adult. There are of course some deviations from this usual routine, but in any event there is at least one dormant state, the egg.

Are the eggs of insects—or in fact eggs of any kind—affected by exposing them to gases under normal pressure? Eggs are 100 per cent dormant and can remain so for periods of from one month to four or five years. Furthermore, eggs of all varieties are protected by a moisture proof and hence air tight case, and in some varieties by a shell of some mineral salts. If, then, the eggs do not breathe, then by what process does atmospheric fumigation penetrate the egg case and so poison the egg as to render it sterile? In addition to these obstacles, many kinds of insects deposit their egg in the green or immature seed, grain, or fruit by piercing the outer layer of the seed or fruit with a member known as an ovipositor, so that, as the product matures, the egg is well hidden and protected by the pulp of the fruit or seed and the puncture made by the ovipositor entirely closed.

Vacuum pressure is abnormal pressure because it is not the pressure that the human race or the insect tribe is accustomed to; and the distortion and stretching of the egg cells, due to vacuum pressure, together with the consequent penetration of toxic gases under 14.5 pounds of pressure, will positively destroy the germ of life in the egg; and, after all, the egg is the really great hazard, because it is followed immediately by the hungry worm or larvæ and the damage appears almost simultaneously with the hatching of the eggs. With the egg destroyed, damage is prevented.

Vacuum fumigation as applied by the Vacufume process has, it is claimed, eliminated all of these variables from the fumigation equation, and offers "perfect pest control": by insuring penetration through vacuum; gases of high undiluted concentration at less cost, because less gas is necessary; short cycles because it requires only 1½ hours exposure against 24 to 90 hour exposures necessary under normal pressure or atmospheric fumigation. More commodity can be processed in a given amount of time without the guess-quality usually involved, because this process, it is pointed out, destroys all four forms in one operation.

There is declared to be no element of danger, when using the Vacufume process, because the gases are at all times sealed up, either in their original containers, or within the vacuum chamber, from which they cannot escape or be forced out. There is also no damage caused to the commodity, because the only requirement made of an insecticide gas is that it will destroy life. The process and equipment will take care of all other physical qualifications of the gases. Experience has taught what gases can safely be used on what commodities and why. No one gas could possibly fill the requirements of a general fumigant for every commodity subject to infestation.

St. Louis Mart Opens With 600,000 Square Feet Devoted to Public Warehousing

THE St. Louis Mart, twenty stories of steel and concrete, is being formally opened to the public on Jan. 1, upon being turned over to the operating company, the St. Louis Mart, Inc., of which Charles E. Richardson is president.

The building has a total square footage of approximately 1,000,000 square feet, of which 600,000 square feet will be devoted to warehousing, making it the largest warehousing project in St. Louis. Eight floors will be given over to warehousing, and most of the remaining space to a merchandise mart.

Up to Dec. 5 more than 100,000 square feet of warehousing material had been stored in the Mart, and several of the concerns already had moved their distributing offices into the building.

The Mart building is financed by the Terminal Railroad Association of St. Louis, which is comprised of fifteen trunk line railroad operating out of St. Louis. The building represents an investment of more than $5,000,000. It is located at the southwest corner of Twelfth Boulevard and Spruce Street and immediately adjoins the Memorial Plaza.

Of monumental type, the building stands out boldly on the city's skyline. Piers of dark granite extend ten feet above the sidewalk and are surmounted by projecting pilasters, with recessed spandrels of artistic design and terra cotta ornamentation. The main entrance and vestibule, facing Twelfth Boulevard, is 22 feet high, and marble and bronze are used in the lobby. The floor is of terrazzo. Ceilings are of ornamental plaster, and swinging doors and elevator sliding doors are of paneled bronze.

Five high-speed passenger elevators and nine well distributed freight elevators are in the building. On the top two floors is a club for tenants and their guests, with a restaurant, lounge solarium, locker room and private conference and dining rooms.

The merchandise marts are below these. Here every type of merchandise will be on display, grouped according to logical classifications. The two lower floors house the permanent architectural and building exhibit and the house economics floor, featuring everything

MOTOR FREIGHT

Reg. U. S. Patent Office

FOR the busy executive of a warehousing business who is keen to keep abreast of the times there are several important new things to think about in the field of motor freight. Developments are following one another at a rapid pace, and all have a distinct bearing on the cost and opportunities of handling the hauling requirements of any warehouse business, regardless of its size. There are many advancements being made on the manufacturers' side of the industry, and some of these will be discussed in this department, which is conducted

THIS MONTH

Accidents and Bonus Awards

TRAFFIC congestion, together with parking difficulties, has developed a problem which is a very real one to the warehouse compelled to operate trucks in more or less concentrated large-city areas. Many conferences among fleet men are being held in the larger municipalities in an attempt to find the best answer to this problem.

Much of the discussion at these conferences centers about the question "Should we give drivers an award or cash bonus to promote the idea of accident-prevention?" The discussions relate mostly to cash bonuses, with decided opinions for and against. The defenders of the cash bonus contend that there is no sharp distinction between awards and bonuses; they argue that all fleet managers who have a systematic program for safety education necessarily give special recognition to those drivers who make the best no-accident records.

Such recognition, they point out, is a kind of merit award and differs only in degree from a cash bonus payment.

The driver who, because of his safety record, receives even a word of congratulation or a handshake from "the chief" has been honored among his fellows. It is a natural evolution, say defenders of the cash bonus, gradually to give such drivers more and more recognition. Perhaps at first only a safety certificate. Then a safety medal. Then an honored place in a public presentation of awards. Then a salary promotion based on his safety record. Then a definite cash bonus payment in recognition of a definite cash saving to the company.

An outstanding summary of the arguments against the cash bonus has been quoted by R. R. Howard of the National Safety Council in an article in Commercial Car Journal, as follows:

1. The authority to distribute "a fat bonus fund" permits "the greenest and most uninitiated safety engineer" to conduct a successful no-accident fleet campaign, because the "money compensates for his lack of knowledge and experience."

2. In industrial plants the employee is not paid for working safely. Safety is a part of his daily production duties.

3. The normal worker is paid for the proper care and safe handling of his tools, and for the commercial driver his vehicle is a "tool." To pay him a bonus spoils him and ruins his conception of his true responsibility.

4. Once we institute a bonus plan and then later try to take it away, our drivers will say, "You paid us for driving carefully last year, why not this year?" But try to answer that satisfactorily! Their morale is gone!

5. When a bonus plan is suddenly applied to a fleet with bad experience, improvement is soon obtained and the bonus idea is given the credit. As a matter of fact, equally good preliminary results could have been obtained without the bonus.

6. Results obtained from a bonus plan are usually temporary. They will last only as long as we can afford to keep paying; frequently not that long.

In a discussion at a National Safety Congress one fleet manager stated he had avoided the bonus plan because it developed a tendency on the part of the operator not to report accidents. This suggestion was answered by another fleet manager as follows:

"I found, when we started a bonus, that our accident report decreased very materially. But it was because our men used good judgment in discriminating. With the bonus in the back of their minds, they did not report as many trivial matters as before.

Another fleet manager presented the following suggestion:

"We offered a little prize last year for men who went a certain period of time without an accident. But when it came time to award the prize we discovered it was going to create a great deal of hard feeling. So some of the fleet managers gave buttons also to all the fellows who had had accidents, in order to avoid any hard feelings."

Pinning Responsibility

STILL another fleet manager found that some so-called "trivial and unreported accidents" later turned out to be quite severe. To meet this situation he ordered that all accidents be charged against the operator, but he granted rights to appeal to a special safety committee for a reversal of the charge.

Another fleet manager, to meet this problem, charges a stiff penalty of $45 for each failure to report an accident.

In support of a combined cash bonus and merit award plan there is a great deal of evidence. One example of this is shown in a concern where each driver is given a $5 cash bonus for every three months free from accidents. This company states that "we reduced accidents 50 per cent in the last two years and we are working now for an even better record. Our first quarterly report shows 118 accidents this year as against 265 for the same period last year." Recently a number of "no-accident driver awards" of the National Safety Council were presented to twenty-one of the men who in the previous year drove a total of 225,000 miles without accidents. Eleven drivers had had no accidents for two years. These results were credited to the company program of quarterly cash bonuses, safety awards, and "air-tight inspection to insure that the men have safe equipment."

A novel bonus plan is reported by a company which operates a fleet of 30 vehicles in an up-State town in New York. For every accident for which he is responsible the driver is fined $5, and he receives a bonus of $2 for each month without an accident. For the months reported, the company had paid bonuses of $60 and had had no accidents. It is said that the men have suggested that the fine be increased to $10 and the bonus to $4.

Paper Credits

THE following bonus plan is reported by a Detroit organization. At the beginning of the year each driver is given a $60 paper credit. If at the end of twelve months he is still with the company and has had no accidents and has lost no tools, he receives this $60. Otherwise, the cost of all tools lost and a charge of $5 for each accident are deducted from this fund. The driver, to avoid argument, is charged with any accident "costing money," regardless of responsibility. If the driver is married, his wife is notified at the beginning of the year of the $60 bonus credit. This plan is credited with "reducing fleet maintenance costs, cutting down accident frequency, and giving a smaller labor turnover."

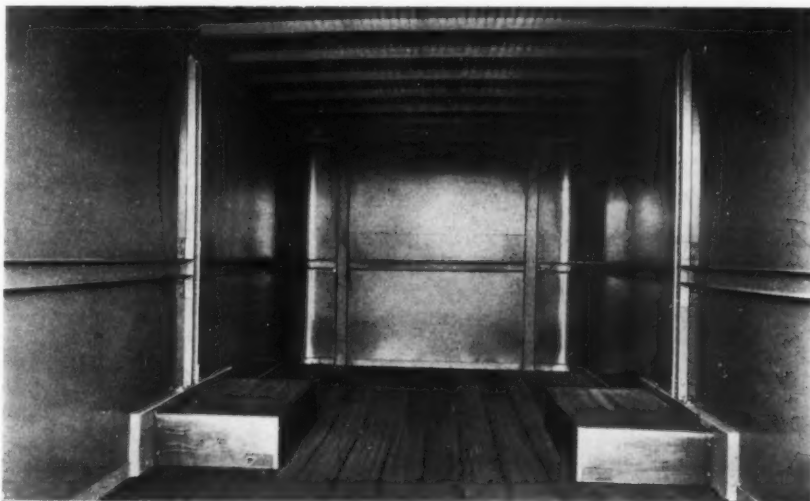

Another concern, in Schenectady, N. Y., has four classes of drivers. Each driver is credited monthly with his auto mileage and charged with the mileage applicable to penalties served against him for accidents. At the end of the bonus period, Dec. 1, each driver is paid for his net total mileage at the rate for his class. When an accident occurs, the assessment against the driver is based on his degree of carelessness as fixed by a safety committee, although the driver is given an opportunity to protest. One-half of the bonus charged against the drivers who have had accidents is accumulated and distributed pro rata at the end of each year among all drivers with clean records. Safety emblems are given for a period of six months, nine months, one year and two years without accidents.

A company in Newark, N. J., has been giving a bonus of $5 for each 24 consecutive days without an accident, and a plan is being considered to give merit cards for no-accident periods.

The United Parcel Service of New York, with about 900 delivery service vehicles, issues accident cards to drivers on the basis of good records. Credit is allowed each driver for normal cost of car operation; the accident costs are charged against his credit. Accident responsibility is determined by a safety committee.

The United Parcel Service of Los Angeles presents wallets with engraved cards of appreciation for two or more years free from accidents. Drivers are given a monthly allowance for operating their cars, and if expenses are less than this allowance, the difference is given to the driver in cash. All accidents are investigated by the division manager.

Kentucky Wagon Co. Offers Paneled Van Body

A PANELED van body of striking design and which offers decided advantages to movers and shippers has been built by the Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing Company, Inc., Louisville, with the cooperation of the engineering department of the Haskelite Manufacturing Corporation, Chicago. The body was designed to save weight with increased loading space. Taking advantage of the structural strength of Plymetl, only two side posts have been used. Although the body weighs only 2,100 pounds, it is declared to be 15 to 20 per cent stronger than a body built with ordinary materials.

The body is 14 feet long, 7½ feet wide, and 7 feet high. All uprights, belt rails, and braces, commonly employed in the construction of bodies of this type, have been eliminated. The estimated saving in weight is 33 per cent.

The accompanying illustration is an interior view of this body. Looking into the interior one is impressed by the clean-cut lines. Loading space has been definitely increased because structural members are conspicuous by their absence. The side sill consists of two 3 by 3 by ¼-inch angle irons which run completely around the body. The belt bars are made of 2½ by ½ by ¼-inch channel. The belt is made of four pieces of this channel, bent to fit the corners, bolted to the door posts at the rear and to the front posts. It is riveted to the channel posts at the center. The channel posts are made of 2½ by ½ by ¼-inch channel. The rear and front end posts are made of wood approximately 3 by 1½ inches.

One-quarter inch EVE Plymetl has been used for paneling. This metal-faced plywood has approximately 50 times the stiffness and 6 to 8 times the impact resistance of any sheet metal of the same weight, consequently, although intermediate body posts have been eliminated, the actual strength of this body has been increased 15 to 20 per cent. Corner posts have been eliminated by molding the EVE Plymetl to a 7-inch radius. The Plymetl panels are riveted to the side sill belt bars and side channel posts bolted to the roof rail.

Due to the fact that there is no milling or woodwork, and that the Plymetl panels were made to the required size, the saving in labor has been estimated at 25 per cent.

The roof is conventional, consisting of wooden slats laid over carlins. It is covered with especially prepared fabric.

The rear doors are made of ¼-inch EVE Plymetl with all edges turned and sealed; no framing was used.

A concern in Joplin, Mo., with 35 trucks, presents no-accident radiator stars for one year. They give $25 in cash or one extra week of vacation to all drivers who carry the gold star on their truck for one year—which means a year of driving without an accident chargeable to the fault of the drivers. All accidents are investigated by a company safety council.

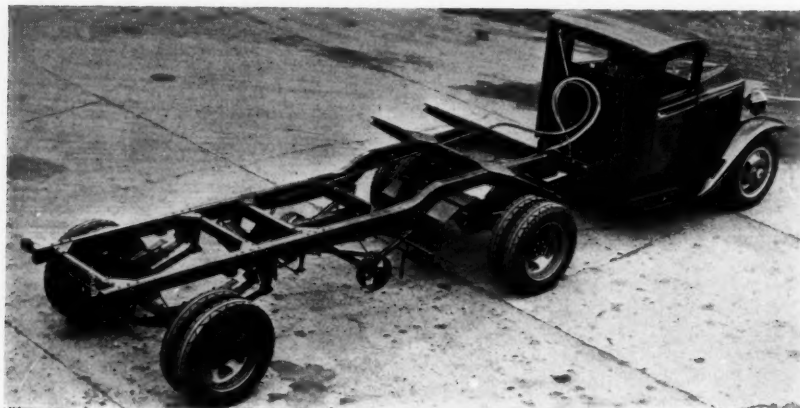

A company in Asbury Park, N. J., presents gold stars or gold eagles for the cuff of the uniform of the driver who goes six consecutive months without an accident. All accidents are charged except where the truck is bumped at the rear while at a dead stop. Five gold stars may be traded for a gold eagle. A bonus of $3 is paid to those who drive 30 consecutive working days without a chargeable accident.

Team Competition

A CONCERN in Washington, D. C., reports that it gives careful attention to selection of drivers and competent supervision. To keep up safety interest, they have divided their operators into ten men each and award cigars and a simple plaque monthly to the team with the best record. Every six months a safety dinner is given to the best team.

Reo Motor Announces Semi-Trailer Equipment

ENTRY of the Reo Motor Car Company into the semi-trailer field is disclosed with the announcement of a line of semi-trailer units for use with its 1½, 2, 3 and 4-ton chassis. Semi-trailers of 16, 18 and 20-foot lengths for the 1½-ton speed wagon chassis are offered at prices in line with those of the tractor, keeping the complete unit of tractor and semi-trailer in the lowest price field.

The Reo-Martin semi-trailer, 16 to 18-foot lengths for 1½-ton models, have pressed steel channel type frames of tapered design for uniform strength. Section size is 7¼ by 3 by ½ inches. It has six sturdy cross members, all gusseted and amply riveted, and is equipped with outriggers for body-mounting.

The axle is of heavy chrome nickel steel with a beam 2 by 3 inches and a 2½-inch spindle.

Helper springs are standard equipment in addition to the heavy main springs on the semi-trailer; these are of silico manganese steel with extra length and strength.

Coordinated hydraulic brakes operate on both tractor and semi-trailer. Semi-trailer brakes are Lockheed hydraulic BK operated in coordination with tractor brakes. They have extra large cast steel drums 16 by 3½ inches.

Fifth-wheel unit is the Martin 24-inch rocking fifth wheel with automatic locking device. It is equipped with shock springs which cushion road shocks. This fifth wheel has the advantage of being interchangeable with almost all semi-trailers now in use.

A Reo-Martin semi-trailer with a 10-inch pressed steel frame in 16, 18 and 20-foot lengths for 2 and 3-ton tractors and a semi-trailer with 12-inch pressed steel frame for the recently introduced 4-ton truck, are available also.

A recent winning team chose, instead of a dinner, an electrically operated clock for its club headquarters.

A San Francisco company with trucks scattered along the Pacific Coast has a difficult problem in that a large number of privately owned vehicles are operated for company purposes. All drivers are given to understand that their chances for advancement depend to a considerable degree on their accident records, and although there is no bonus recognition for safety, at the time of promotion a considerable amount of publicity is given to the fact that the safety record of the driver had a bearing in his advancement. When accidents result from carelessness or laxity on the part of drivers, they are sometimes penalized by a lay-off or a demotion to a vehicle on which the rate of pay is lower.

Coupon

ALARGE concern in New York City, with 300 trucks used in 22 territories, has a safety certificate and coupon plan which may be termed a bonus arrangement. A man who drives through a month without an accident receives a coupon and $1. If at the end of the year he can show twelve coupons, he then receives a safety certificate. "It might interest you to know," writes an officer of the company, "that for January and February of 1929 we had 63 accidents. For the same period of 1930 we had 39 accidents, and in 1931 only 22 accidents."

A firm in Chicago reports it has a local trial board which investigates all accidents and fixes responsibilities. A safe-driver award plan gives to a driver with a three months' no-accident record a radiator safe-driver's emblem. For one year a radiator honor award emblem is given, together with a check for $25. Recently such awards and checks were presented at a dinner by an officer of the company. An executive of the organization reports:

"While it is a continuous program that requires considerable attention for the follow-through details, we believe we are making progress and that the time taken is well worth the effort."

A concern in South Bend, Ind., gives no bonuses, but presents gold stars to its 75 truck drivers with no-accident records.

A New York City company issues merit cards to the 300 operators with three months of no-accident driving, but no bonus awards.

A Kansas City company with about 500 trucks has recently started a plan to give all drivers safety stars. If the driver has a chargeable accident, he loses his star; but if he keeps his star for six months, he is awarded $5.

An Oklahoma firm operating 23 vehicles gives a silver star for three months without an accident and a gold star for six months without an accident. About a year ago it discontinued the bonus payment of $10 for each month of driving without an accident or a road failure.

A concern in Oshkosh, Wis., gives a radiator medallion to all truck drivers who complete five years without an accident. An officer of the company reports that "our truck safety problem is well in hand. All of our drivers have certificates for safety, showing as high as twelve years."

A Los Angeles company has a demerit system for its driver, whereby the type, time and severity of accidents are classified. A maximum of ten demerits in any twelve months requires a consideration of the dismissal of the employee. "So far," reports a company official, "the demerit system has worked successfully."

How the Safety Council Helps

THE question of what is the most suitable plan for general adoption to stimulate the driver to greater safety efforts has been one of the foremost problems considered by the National Safety Council, of which T. A. Horrocks, secretary of the Minnesota Truck Owners' Association, is general chairman, and which represents nearly 100 member fleets with an estimated 400,000 vehicles cooperating in a national program of accident-prevention. There have recently been many conference discussions on the question of the most suitable national safety emblem for drivers, and a broad investigation has been made in cooperation with the headquarters office of the National Safety Council.

A critical study of bonus and merit award plans has developed the general conclusion that an award or bonus plan if adapted to the organization is decidedly worth while in accident-prevention. It was found that many warehouse companies have driver merit awards; and such awards are offered to their client companies by a number of insurance concerns.

It was decided, as the result of these investigations, that it would be advisable for the National Safety Council to develop a safety merit award plan which could be generally adopted and which would have national significance. This resulted in the development of the metal no-accident driver award emblem, supplemented by a certificate, to be supplied without charge among member concerns for all commercial vehicle drivers who have operated one or more years without an accident.

Naturally, the definition of "an accident" is quite important. After a good deal of debating, it was decided to count "any accident causing personal injury or property damage, regardless of who was injured, whose property was damaged, or who (what) was at fault, and regardless of whether the vehicle was in motion, temporarily stopped in traffic, or parked at the curb." This sweeping definition was made in order to avoid many troublesome borderline cases and questions of divided responsibility. Many companies, in their own awards of certificates or bonuses, prefer not to count, as accidents, vehicles which are slightly damaged while parked at the curb and through no fault of the driver.

About 700 no-accident driver awards have been made to drivers in about 100 different organizations since the emblem was announced a few months ago.

The presentation of no-accident driver awards is coming to have more and more public significance. Generally the local newspapers are interested in street safety, and they usually are glad to give publicity to any outstanding company driver safety records, as the safe driving of commercial vehicles is an important part of the community accident-prevention problem.

Such presentations help to educate the public to the fact that commercial vehicles have fewer accidents than private passenger cars, as proved by the investigations of the National Safety Council showing that during the three-year period from 1927 to 1930, inclusive, while fatal accidents to private passenger cars increased by 37 per cent, the accident rate for commercial vehicles decreased by 19.3 per cent.

This decrease was undoubtedly due to increasing education and safety supervision of commercial car drivers, and bonus and merit awards have had an important place in this program.

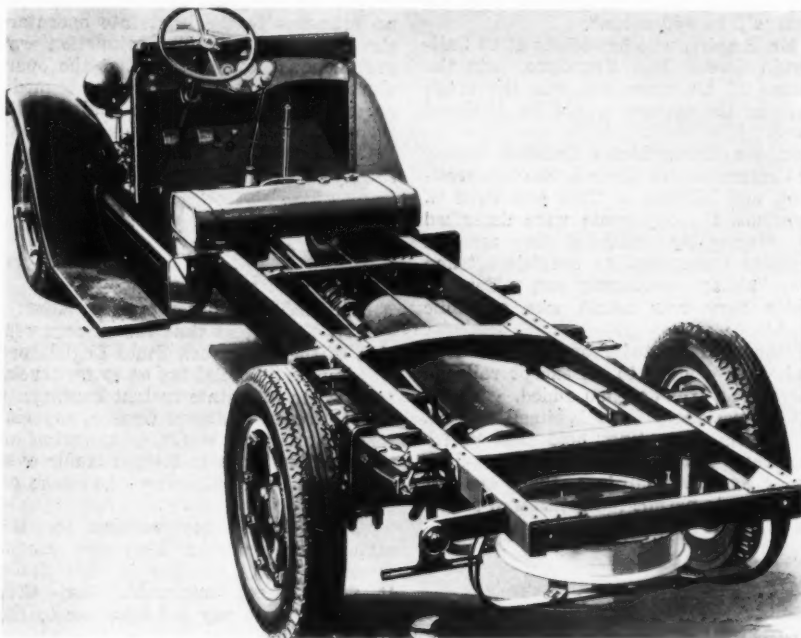

Coast Truck Combine to Tie In With Water Lines and Compete With Rails

CONSOLIDATION of thirty-eight Pacific Coast motor truck lines to effect a tie-up with water carriers and compete with the railroads for coastwise ling-haul business was disclosed in San Francisco on Dec. 8 as the State Railroad Commission handed down a decision of far-reaching importance to rail and truck companies.

In a three-to-two decision the Commission accused the Southern Pacific, its subsidiary the Pacific Motor Transport Company, the Santa Fe and the Railway Express Agency of being "asleep at the switch" for not providing a "door-to-door pick-up" service for the San Joaquin Valley. The decision permitted the Valley Motor Lines to establish such a service between San Francisco and Fresno, Cal.

The new truck combine, as revealed by International Harvester Introduces a 1½-Ton

THE International Harvester Company's new 6-cylinder 1½-ton truck (Model A-3, illustrated above), the 136-inch wheelbase chassis of which is priced at $795 f.o.b. Springfield, Ohio. It is available in 160-inch wheelbase at slightly higher cost.

The 6-cylinder engine which powers the newcomer is of the detachable L-head type. The clutch is of the single-plate type with built-in vibration damper. The transmission provides 4 speeds forward and 1 in reverse.

The frame is of heavy pressed steel channels, 7 inches deep at the center and reinforced with numerous cross members which assure rigidity with ample flexibility to meet varying load and road conditions. The front and rear springs are of the semi-elliptic type, and semi-elliptic auxiliary rear springs are also provided. The rear axle is of the full-floating, spiral-bevel-gear type with axle shafts of chrome-molybdenum steel. Pinion, differential, and wheel bearings are of the tapered roller type. Four-wheel, mechanically-operated, internal-expanding, shoe-type brakes and the cam- and-lever steering gear provide easy truck control at all speeds. Cast, spoke-type wheels with 30 x 5 front and 32 x 6 rear tires are standard equipment. Dual rear tires are available.

A wide variety of body types and sizes is available also.

Jacob Maniss, traffic counselor, will concentrate on the long haul, interstate movement of less-than-carload freight, and will operate between interior Washington, Idaho, Oregon, Nevada, California, Arizona and Texas via Coast ports. Trucks and ships will meet at San Francisco, San Pedro, Portland and Seattle.

Organization plans were sufficiently advanced, Mr. Maniss added, to warrant inauguration of service by the first of the year, when the highway carriers were to begin radiating from the four ports.

The project was designed, Mr. Maniss said, to meet an anticipated Act of Congress, during the present session, providing for Government regulation of interstate motor carriers and placing them under jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"My associates, who are the owners of the truck lines, and I are convinced this regulation is a certainty in the early future," he asserted. "For that reason, we have mapped the service to meet the anticipated regulatory requirements.

"Individual trucks with a capacity of eight tons of freight will be operated. They will not carry trailers, because we believe long trains of trucks and trailers using the highways will be held against public policy.

"We will operate under contract with the coastwise water lines and are going particularly after the citrus fruit, dried fruit, grain, beans, nuts and canned goods business. Our main office will be in San Francisco, as will our main dispatching point.

"Experimental hauls have demonstrated that combined truck and water service will cost the shipper from 10 to 25 per cent less than the all-rail or combined rail and water haul, in addition to which we will offer a door-to-door delivery. We are not bidding for short haul movements of freight; our shortest haul will be 450 miles."

Mr. Maniss, who has offices at 16 California Street, San Francisco, said the names of his associates and the truck lines in the merger would be disclosed later.

In the Commission's decision, signed by Commissioners Clyde L. Seavey, president, and William J. Carr and Fred G. Stevenot, the opponents were described as "incredibly dilatory in meeting changed transportation conditions," and they "almost reluctantly met a demand which they now admit was a public need."

This need existed from 1917 to 1928 and "was obvious to all except railroad executives," the decision added.

Commissioners Leon Whitsell and M. B. Harris, dissenting, held that "With the transportation companies struggling under excessive burdens, these are not the times to permit competition in a field already served."

Federal Court Enjoins Texas in Enforcement Against Foreign Trucks

A TEMPORARY injunction restraining the Texas Railroad Commission from enforcing any section of the Texas motor carrier law against H. B. Sage and eleven other operators of interstate truck lines, except the provisions of the statute guaranteeing highway and public safety, was granted in New Orleans on Dec. 7 by a special three-judge Federal Court presided over by Circuit Judge Joseph C. Hutcheson, Jr.

The injunction followed a restraining order issued earlier by Federal Judge William Hawley Atwell at Wichita Falls, Tex.

At the outset of the New Orleans hearing the Court denied right of three firms doing intrastate trucking business in Texas to enter the case as intervenors. The Court announced that only the interstate angle of the law was to be considered.

Interference Banned

The temporary injunction would continue in effect until such time as final arguments could be heard, the Court announced.

In announcing that the temporary injunction would be granted, members of the Court, composed of Judge Hutcheson, Judge Atwell of Dallas and Judge William I. Grubbs of Birmingham, expressed opinion that the State of Texas could not interfere with the operation of interstate commerce. "Concerns operating motor truck lines interstate from outside states into Texas," Judge Hutcheson ruled, "have a right to operate in Texas uninterrupted and unmolested, in the event they comply with the highway and public safety regulations set up by the State law."

Judge Hutcheson said the Texas Railroad Commission was swamped with applications for license and permits to operate in the State and that there was no reason why the interstate operators should be delayed. The injunction was granted on the condition that the operators of interstate trucks make immediate application for licenses and permits to operate, Judge Hutcheson explained.

Interstate Freight Trucks Expected to Be Taxed in New York

LEGISLATIVE observers in Albany, N. Y., predict that the current session of the New York State Legislature will impose a special tax on motor trucks engaged in interstate freight haulings.

Col. Frederick Stuart Greene, superintendent of public works, commenting on the great increase in freight traffic over New York State highways, has gone on record:

"These trucks pay nothing for the maintenance of the highways except when they buy gasoline in this State. It would seem reasonable that they should at least pay a license fee to the State."

The New York State Automobile Association favors not only increased taxation on interstate truck fleets but also reduction of loads and length of trailers. The association claims that many truck fleets, using New York State highways merely as a "bridge," avoid maintenance expense altogether by purchasing gasoline in adjoining States.

Herbert S. Bartholomew, chairman of the Assembly's internal affairs committee, is also reported favorable to special levy on interstate trucking.

The railroads, complaining of freight loss partly due to truck competition, are expected to support the predicted legislation.

Indiana Commission Begins Probe of Snyder's Trucking Activities on State Roads

THE Indiana Public Service Commission began an investigation in December into the operations of the Warehouse Distributing Corporation and the Central Union Truck Terminal, Inc., in Indianapolis, both headed by Tom Snyder as president, and of similar truck terminals in Richmond, Kokomo, Marion, Fort Wayne, Terre Haute, Vincennes, Evansville, Crawfordsville and Muncie, and of twenty-eight freight lines using the terminals.

The order of inquiry was written by Harry K. Culbertson, a member of the Commission. Earlier, Mr. Culbertson had dismissed petitions which were grouped under the name of the Store Door Delivery Corporation and which had applied, through Mr. Snyder, for permission to operate twelve motor freight lines connecting Indianapolis with virtually all parts of the State and serving more than 130 cities and towns.

The investigation order recited that the lines named as defendants had been denied certificates by the Commission at individual hearings conducted from time to time.

"Each of the said truck operators so refused the authority to operate," the order set out, "did, in fact, conspire with the respondent Tom Snyder and the respondent Warehouse Distributing Corporation and Central Union Truck Terminal, Inc., under the subterfuge of a contract to continue operations upon the public highways of the State of Indiana as common carriers; and did, in fact, continue such operations in violation of the law, all of which was acquiesced in by each of the respondents named in this order."

The order alleged that the Warehouse Distributing Corporation was not qualified as a warehouse corporation under Indiana laws.

Snyder Welcomes Inquiry

Mr. Snyder was quoted in an Indianapolis newspaper as saying:

"The more thoroughly they investigate the better we will like it. If our system is illegal, then 97 per cent of the truck line operators in Indiana are illegal. Motor trucks are so thoroughly woven into the fabric of industry that it would be a calamity if they were abolished."

Louisiana Court Rules Against Warehouse on Motor Truck Gas Tax

THE Louisiana Supreme Court has handed down a gas tax decision affecting storage and transfer companies which operate motor trucks in Louisiana and to other States.

The Caddo Transfer & Warehouse Co., Shreveport, contended that gas was not taxable when used in the firm's trucks in interstate commerce to Texas, Arkansas and Mississippi. The State held that it was. Two lower Courts agreed with the argument of the Caddo organization.

The State appealed to the State Supreme Court, which has reversed the opinion of the lower tribunals and has held that the Caddo company and similar concerns must pay the tax. The higher Court said that wear and tear on roads by heavy buses and trucks both intrastate and interstate required compensation and that such operators should as a matter of justice pay their share toward highway up-keep.

A Bit Here, A Bit There

Gotham, January, 1932

Encyclopedia and Cards Galore for Xmas but Ye Ed. Got No Bicycle

YE ED. is spending Xmas Day at the office, writing Two Bits, Last p.m. we dug out the only sock we got without holes & hung it on the mantelpiece. Certain people have tried to tell us there is no Santa Claus but you can't fool an editor. We left all the windows open on a/c we live in a studio & have no chimney, & Santa brought us 1 tie, very bizarre; 3 pr. socks with no holes in them; 6 colored hankies; 3 boxes of White Owl (Advt.) cigars & 24 vols. of the Britannica, too big for the sock we hung up. You might think that a good Xmas, but, truth to tell, we are sore at Santa on a/c he did not bring us a bicycle we had asked him for, to ride back & forth to the office with. For 12 mos. we had lived a righteous life & Santa doublecrossed us about a bicycle. This yr we're going to raise hell.

Arriving at the office, having walked on a/c we got no bicycle like we had expected, we find our personal desk deluged with Xmas cards from storagers et cetera. We will tell you, alphabetically, the donors' names:

Marie Bowen, the Ind's storagess.
Canadian Cartage & Stge. Co., the Montreal storagers. Cohen & Powell, the New Haven storagers. Frank Cole, the K.C. storager. Fred Crone, the Vancouver storager; & son Wilbur, the Seattle storager.

Elm Erickson, the Chi. storager & AWA prexy & better ½.

W. L. Hinds, the Des Moines storager, & better ½. T. A. Horrocks, the Minnesota truck assoc'n sec.

Frank Jones, the Grand Rapids storager & cynic & better ½; Frank sent also his 1930 card which he forgot last yr.

Marty Kennelly, the Chi. storager, author & NFWA prexy.

Ed Lee, the Chi. storager, & better ½ (Queen Ella). Liberty Freight Forward'g & Whse Co., the Gotham storagers. Wils Little, the AWA exec. sec. & better ½, of Chi.

Market Term'l & Whse Co., the Buffalo storagers. A. V. Mason, the Milwaukee storager. Buell G. Miller, the Philly storager, & lately-acquired better ½; Charley & Larry Morris, the Gotham storagers; Van Wycked Mott, the Wash'ton, D. C., storager, & better ½ Selma & Infant Tom.

Hod Roberts, the Gotham storager.

Bill Schiffman, the Bklyn storager, whose card is a cornucopia with Bill's head sticking out the top along with a peppermint cane & red oranges.

Southern Transfer Co., the San Antonio storagers. Osc Taylor, the Seattle storager, & better ½ Stella. Texas Ice & Refriger'g Co., the Fort Worth cold storagers. Texas Truck Owners' Service Bureau, Austin.

WELL, just as we had finished writing the foregoing our own better ½ phoned us, wanting to know how about coming home to dinner? but we said we was too busy writing this acknowledgement of Xmas cards & for her to go ahead & eat her soup & we'd be there soon. "Don't forget," said she, "to mention everybody who sent you a card. How about that one you bragged about that is 8½ by 11 inches, from the Bostwicks?" Well, we had put it apart from the others, on a/c it was so big, & truth to tell, had forgotten it, we told our better ½. "What!" exclaimed she. "Well you'd better open it right away. It might be fish." (She was recalling the time that Geo. McKeag, the Winnipeg storager, mailed us some Winnipeg Gold Eye, a piscatorial delicacy up in Geo.'s neighborhood, without putting enough postage on the pkg & you should use your imagination.)

So we opened what Bill Bostwick, the Gotham storager, & better ½ had sent us. It was not fish. It was an elegant Xmas card & we told our wife to go eat her soup & not disturb literary genius.

WE got to tell you about the Xmas donations from the Woods boys & their better ½s in Chi.

Ralph & Lillian sent us a pink memo. pad with their names printed in green on each sheet, the cover containing an elegant verse, as follows:

Christmas cards are truly nice,
But, at best, they just suffice
When New Year's Day rolls 'round, by Gad,
To take the place of your 'phone pad.
So now, this year, when times are tough,
We send this pad, to do our stuff.
To last, we hope, the whole year through,
As do our Christmas thoughts of you.

The verse is o.k. but we was lucky to get the pad on a/c that Ralph & Lillian put only 1½c. postage on the envelope. After all the dough Ralph's better ½ won from Ye Ed. playing bridge with us at the Hollywood, Fla., convention, you would think they could afford 1st-class mail.

The card from Morrie Wood & better ½ Betty contains 2 verses, or twice as many as Ralph's & Lillian's, & the envelope had 2c. worth of postage on it, probably on a/c that Morrie is the Lincoln* co.'s sec. & knows where the stamps are kept. We are going to quote Morrie's 2 verses:

No. 1

Way back in the dim, distant nineties,
When whiskers for men were au fait,
When women did not roll their stockings,
They had Christmas, the same as today.
They tell us those days were quite happy.
They didn't have synthetic gin;
The eggs were a dime for a dozen,
And sometimes the milk was thrown in.
The hired girl was thought to be lucky
When earning four dollars a week;
The women did not paint (in public),
Play poker, or powder a cheek.
A microbe was something unheard of;
The covert charge simply unknown;
And women who drank whisky highballs
Were let quite severely alone.
Eggnog was a great Yuletide custom;
Well spiked, it brought plenty of cheer;
And people walked miles, just for wishing
Their friends all a happy New Year.

No. 2

Today, in the mad, flirty thirties,
A whisker means only a shave;
The women don't wear ANY stockings,
And nobody wants to behave.
It's true that we celebrate Christmas
Today as we have in the past.
The tree is the same—but the party
Would render our forebears aghast.
The pantry is full of cut liquors,
The eggnog is made with green rye,
Two drinks and you'll tackle a grizzly,
Four drinks, and it's "Baby, Goodbye!"
The turkey may come from cold storage,
Unless you have purchased it canned;
And Grandpa is off to a night club
(He just got a new monkey gland.)
The Children (dear two-timing darlings)
Start off with a gallon of gin,
And some time, along about New Year's,
Flat broke, they'll come staggering in.
If you think, in these days of high taxes,
That life's worth the living, and dear,
We'll wish you a right Merry Christmas,
And hope for a better New Year.

Well, comparing these verses mfged by the Woods boys you would guess that (1) either Morrie is more sophisticated than Ralph or (2) Ralph is less confessional than Morrie.

SO therefore Ye Ed. wishes all our readers a happy & prosperous 1932 & may Santa bring you all bicycles next Xmas. & in our next Two Bits we will tell you about an insulting letter we got from Burr Cramer, the Los Angeles insurer, & also we have on schedule an unexplainable poem by Arthuh Smith, the Wash'ton, D. C., storager, so you had better renew your subscriptions on a/c otherwise you might miss these delicacies.

*Our new Britannica, 24 vols., tells about Lincoln.

WITH THE ASSOCIATIONS

HERE is presented in tabloid form the Association news that is of general interest to the industry as a whole. No effort is made to publish complete reports of all Association meetings; the dissemination of such information is logically the work of the officers and the committee chairmen. What is presented here is in effect a cross-section review of the major activities so that Association members may be kept advised as to what "the other fellow" elsewhere in the country is thinking and doing. When annual or semi-annual meetings are held, more extended reports will occasionally be published.

"SoWA" Meeting Discloses a Prosperous Evolution During Depression Period

THERE may be a depression on, but it was not discernible at the 1931 annual convention of the Southern Warehousemen's Association, held at the Henry Grady Hotel in Atlanta on Nov. 20 and 21.

In the first place, 80 per cent of the membership was represented—itsself a most encouraging sign of life. In the second place, the program was much better than the 1930 one, both as to the character of the speakers and the quality of the material presented. For example, it was the first session of the Southern attended by both the president of the National Furniture Warehousemen's Association and that of the American Warehousemen's Association. Martin Kennelly and Elmer Erickson, both of Chicago, were present at all the sessions and took an active part in the proceedings.

The first highlight was the address of President E. C. Lowry, Montgomery. As he briefly outlined the work done by the Southern during 1931 there was a growing conviction in the minds of all who heard him of the worth-while work of their association.

Both Mr. Lowry and Mrs. Lorena Welsh, Atlanta, the executive secretary, stressed the point that much more work remained to be done during the coming year than had been accomplished, and called upon the members to cooperate.

Not the least inspiring was the report of the treasurer, John J. Woodside, Atlanta, showing a balance of about $1,200 in the treasury, despite loss of members and lowered dues.

The wisdom of the association in meeting the depression by reducing expenses through the combining of the offices of the association with those of the National's Allied Van Lines became more and more apparent as the meeting progressed. It has enabled the Southern to carry on its work notwithstanding the reduced membership, and to hold many members through lower dues in a critical period; at the same time, it has left it free to work without the burden and worries of an increasing debt.

John L. Wilkinson, Charlotte, brought home some pertinent facts when he pointed out that the warehousemen ought to seek ways to help out people who could not pay their storage charges, rather than attach their furniture. Many people, he declared, stored their furniture at the beginning of the depression, believing it would only last a few months. When it stretched out into years, they were unable to reestablish their homes or even to pay storage charges. He advocated lending these people a helping hand through securing signers for their notes, loans on their furniture, and by other legitimate means.

"It never pays," he said, "to take over furniture and sell it. You lose in dollars and cents and you lose, also, in goodwill. At the same time you cannot afford to hold the furniture free of charge. Therefore the sensible thing to do is to help these people get gack into their homes and get their furniture out of storage."

C. F. B. Tippet, Toronto, Canada, pointed out that ratios were valuable for three reasons—(a) because they presented actual facts to the warehouseman, (b) enabled him to budget his expenses ahead, and (c) presented a common language that all class of business men could understand.

"One warehouseman, doing a business of $200,000," he said, "discovered that his labor ratio for cartage was too high. So he offered his despatcher a bonus of $5 for the first point that ratio was reduced; $6 for the second, $7 for the third, and so on. His ratio was reduced from 39 to 36. The despatcher was more than pleased to get a check for $28 in bonuses. But—he was more than pleased to save $6,000 a year on his labor charges."

"All of which shows the practical value of ratios in the distributing and warehousing business."

Perry T. Knight, chairman of the Georgia Public Service Commission, urged the warehousemen to make a careful study of their transportation problems and to present a united front in their efforts to get favorable legislation in the various States.

"It is my opinion," he said, "that we will never have satisfactory bus and truck regulation except through the enactment of Federal interstate laws which must be observed in all the States. At any rate, remember that the public service commission of your State often has no choice but to enforce the laws as laid down by the Legislature. The commission itself may not be in sympathy with the laws, but it must obey them—or give up its position."

E. T. Chadwell, Nashville, discussed reciprocal relations, declaring that the public demand for a quick, safe and reasonably-priced method of transportation had brought truck transportation into the warehouse industry to stay, and he urged warehousemen to study reciprocity as a means of saving time, trouble and unnecessary expense in their business.

The household goods meeting closed with an address by Mr. Kennelly, who urged warehousemen to maintain their rates, improve their service and remain members of the State, regional and national associations.

"It has been my observation," he said, "that the failures among the warehousemen have been those who would not cooperate with one another."

One afternoon session concluded with a special A. V. L. program under the direction of George C. Harris, Birmingham, regional director.

C. F. Wittichen, Birmingham, told the Southern's delegates that the best forms of warehousemen's advertising were (a) well kept equipment, (b) competent and agreeable workmen, (c) radio programs when short and to the point, (d) signboards when used on the main highways, and (e) letters.

"Practical experience has shown," he declared, "that the prospects for the warehouseman are the apartment dwellers. A letter directed to a list of these produces good results if carefully worded and backed up by proper service.

"But, in the long run, there is no advertising so inexpensive and so effective as the recommendation of a satisfied customer."

H. C. Goodman, Birmingham, said that long-distance hauling of furniture and merchandise had come to stay and that the warehouseman must decide whether he was to be a leader in this new movement or a back number.

Division Suggested

C. J. Hamilton, Baltimore, chairman of the association relations committee of the N. F. W. A., proposed changing over the Southern Warehousemen's Association into a southeastern division of the National. This idea was thoroughly discussed and Mr. Hamilton apparently was agreeably surprised at the measure of support given his suggestion by various members of the Southern. It was moved and carried that the president appoint a committee of three members to study the plan and report to the officers and directors of the Southern, with any suggestions or changes it might recommend.

The legislative committee presented a report in which it recommended that a study of the laws in other States be made and that a uniform law be drawn up resigned to place warehouses under the direction of State public service commissions, for presentation in the various States.

This session closed with the reelection of Mr. Lowry as president and Mrs. Welsh as executive secretary. The list of officers elected was published in the December Distribution and Warehousing.

Friday afternoon's session, which was the final one of the convention, was devoted to merchandise warehousemen's problems, and was featured by an address by Mr. Erickson.

O. A. C. H. Annual Feb. 9

THE annual meeting of the Ohio Association of Commercial Haulers will be held at the Deshler-Wallick Hotel, Columbus, on Feb. 9. This decision was reached at a meeting of the board of governors in Columbus recently.

One feature of the February gathering will be the raffling of a $3,750 motor car in an effort to raise money for law enforcement and to carry on the activities of the association.

Connecticut Association Considering Adoption of Arbitration of Disputes

A PLAN to eliminate litigation in the furniture warehousing industry of Connecticut and to substitute arbitration in disposing of disputes which arise between warehousemen and their clients was presented to members of the Connecticut Warehousemen's Association at its December meeting, at the Hotel Taft in New Haven on the 10th. W. H. Schaefer, Stamford, president of the organization, presided.

The plan submitted to the Connecticut warehousemen is similar to that which

Major Annuals

JANUARY is the month of the yearly conventions, and elections of officers, of the industry's national trade organizations.

The twelfth annual meeting of the National Furniture Warehousemen's Association will be held at the Mayflower Hotel in Washington, D. C., from the 19th to the 24th inclusive.

The forty-first annual assembly of the American Warehousemen's Association will take place at the Book-Cadillac Hotel in Detroit, Mich., from the 27th to the 30th inclusive.

Storage executives will arrive in Detroit as early as the 25th, however, as that day and the 26th have been set aside for A. W. A. directors and committees' meetings and for the annual gatherings of the American Chain of Warehouses and Distribution Service, Inc.

The highlights of all these conventions will be published in the February issue of Distribution and Warehousing, followed by more detailed summaries in the March number.

has been operating so successfully in New York, where it has been adopted by the New York Furniture Warehousemen's Association. Practically all of the members of the latter organization use in their contract forms the standard arbitration clause of the American Arbitration Association, and all disputes which arise out of these contracts are submitted to the association's tribunal and arbitrated under its rules of procedure.

William T. Bostwick, chairman of the arbitration committee of the National Furniture Warehousemen's Association and secretary of the New York organization, attended the New Haven meeting and outlined the effectiveness of arbitration as actually practiced by the New York organization during the past three or four years. Mr. Bostwick told of the successful operation of the plan, the number of disputes arbitrated and said that, from his own analysis of the results, arbitration had proved generally satisfactory to the client, as well as to the warehouseman, and had done much to preserve good-will in the industry. Mr. Bostwick, as chairman of the N.F.W.A. arbitration committee, is developing the same activities in the different States in which the National body has affiliated organizations, and recently presented a similar plan to the New Jersey group.

The American Arbitration Association was represented at the meeting by Joseph Mayer, head of the legal department, who explained the provisions of the Connecticut arbitration law, enacted in 1929, and the procedure thereunder, and detailed the arbitration facilities available in Connecticut under a cooperative relationship existing between his association and the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce.

The interest of warehousemen of the State in commercial arbitration was indicated by the full attendance of members at the meeting and the number of questions the speakers were asked by those present.

The arbitration plan submitted has been taken under consideration and it is anticipated that definite action will be taken at the January meeting of the Connecticut association.

Truck Executives Will Meet in Detroit Jan. 11

ANNOUNCEMENT is made by Tom Snyder, Indianapolis, secretary-treasurer of the Truck Association Executives of America, that this organization will hold its annual meeting in Detroit on Jan. 11 and 12 in conjunction with the twenty-ninth annual convention and road show of the American Road Builders' Association, Jan. 11-15.

Subjects to be discussed include Federal and State regulation of motor trucking; the attitudes of the National Grange and the National Industrial Traffic League toward truck regulation; and States' reciprocity affecting motor carriers.

Henry C. Kelting, Louisville, is chairman of the executives' organization.

North Carolina Truck Operators Elect Horton New Executive Secretary

SPRAGUE SILVER, recently chosen executive secretary of the North Carolina Truck Owners' Association, died a few days after being elected.

The organization's directors, headed by John L. Wilkinson, Charlotte, as the association's president, met in Greensboro on Dec. 3 and elected W. P. Horton, Pittsboro, executive secretary. Mr. Horton, a former State senator, is secretary of the State Democratic executive committee and an outstanding political figure in North Carolina. As a member of the Senate about a year ago he led the truck owners' campaign against the railroad interests.

The executive secretary's office is being established in Raleigh and there will be eastern and western field secretaries whose job will be in part to build the association's membership to 20,000 representing all truck operating interests.

Illinois Merchandise Group Again Chooses McConnell President

AT the annual meeting of the Illinois Association of Merchandise Warehousemen, held on Dec. 8, G. M. McConnell, president of the Railway Terminal & Warehouse Co., Chicago, was reelected president. Other officers and directors chosen are:

First vice-president, J. Edgar Lee, president Currier-Lee Warehouse Co., Chicago.

Second vice-president, John G. Petritz, president, Rockford Storage Warehouses, Inc., Rockford.

Treasurer, W. W. Huggett, vice-president, North Pier Terminal Co., Chicago.

Wisconsin Truck Operators Form a Parent Association

THE Wisconsin Allied Truck Owners, with which warehousing executives are identified, has been incorporated, its objectives including the obtaining of equitable legislation, promotion of the general welfare of the trucking industry, and development of driver-courtesy on the highways.

The new body is a parent organization of the Wisconsin Trucker Owners' Association, the Wisconsin Association of Common Carrier Truck Operators, the Northern Wisconsin Truckmen's Association and the Milwaukee Milk Haulers' Association. It is purposed to divide the State into five main districts, each to have its own officers and directors.

Fred L. Leicht, Northern Transportation Co., Green Bay, is president of the parent group. Walter W. Nelson, Milwaukee, is the executive secretary. Headquarters will be in Madison.

Vice-presidents include W. E. Maile, of the Sullivan-Royal Transfer Co., Milwaukee, representing city cartage and R. M. Leicht, secretary of the Leicht Transfer & Storage Co., Green Bay, representing contract hauling and moving.

Drake is Elected President of the New Jersey M.W.A.

THE New Jersey Merchandise Warehousemen's Association held its annual meeting on Nov. 27 and elected officers and directors for 1932 as follows:

President, Albert B. Drake, secretary Lehigh Warehouse & Transportation Co., Inc., Newark.

First vice-president, H. E. S. Wilson, president Campbell Stores, Hoboken.

Second vice-president, Harry C. Lewis, secretary Merchants Refrigerating Co., Newark.

Secretary, F. S. Shafer, secretary Essex Warehouse Co., Newark.

New York F. W. A. to Hold Annual on January 11

THE New York Furniture Warehousemen's Association will hold its annual meeting on Jan. 11 at the Hotel Astor. At the organization's December gathering at the Aldine Club on the 14th, the following were renominated for office:

President, J. H. Coughlin, manager Lee Brothers, Inc.

Vice-president, Louis Schramm, Jr., secretary Chelsea Fireproof Storage Warehouses, Inc.

Secretary, William T. Bostwick, president Thomas J. Stewart Co.

Treasurer, William R. Wood, manager Liberty Storage & Warehouse Co.

To serve as directors, each for three years, the following were nominated:

Louis J. Etzel, treasurer Columbia Storage Warehouse; William E. Cramer, secretary, Bowling Green Storage & Van Co.; Frank P. McNally, president McNally Bros., Inc., Brooklyn.

On behalf of the board of directors it was announced by Mr. Schramm that John G. Neeser, president of the Manhattan Storage & Warehouse Co., and Thomas F. Murray, president of Day & Meyer, Murray & Young, Inc., had resigned from the Board, and that Charles S. Morris, president of the Metropolitan Fireproof Warehouse, Inc., and Charles F. Byrnes, president of the Byrnes Bros. Warehouses, Inc., had been elected to fill the unexpired terms.

Wilson Collin, Chicago, assistant general manager of the Allied Van Lines, Inc., addressed the members regarding Allied's progress and plans.

The legislative committee, Mr. Neeser chairman, reported that it approved in principle the law recently enacted in Illinois to prevent movers from holding themselves out to do a storage business when in reality they did not operate warehouses; the committee felt, however, that there was no public demand for such a statute in New York, and that the New York association should not go to the time and expense of seeking to have such a law placed on the books. The association voted that no action be taken.

REORGANIZATION of the Commercial Motor Vehicle Owners' Association of Washington was decided upon at a meeting of interested persons at the Chamber of Commerce of the United States auditorium on Dec. 15. A second meeting was to take place on Dec. 29, when officers were to be chosen and the organization, formed on a previous occasion only to be abandoned later, will begin to function again.

The organization meeting on Dec. 15 was addressed by Edward F. Loomis, secretary of the motor truck committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. Other speakers included A. H. Bishop, president of the Maryland Automobile Trade Association, and Clem D. Johnson, Roanoke, Va., president of the Virginia Motor Truck Owners' Association.

Lyon Tells California

HARVEY B. LYON, Oakland, secretary of the northern division of the California Van & Storage Association, reported at the division's November meeting, held in San Francisco, that the general view of the furniture storage industry throughout the country indicated that storage income was from 5 to 10 per cent below normal, and that cartage was poor everywhere because of the falling off in house-to-house moving. Mr. Harvey made his report after returning from the Chicago meeting of the directors of the National Furniture Warehousemen's Association, of which he is western vice-president.

The Californians discussed the shipping of household goods in carload lots with furniture wrapped merely in quilts and it was unanimously agreed that this method of forwarding should be discouraged.

Charles Buck, presiding, urged the members to read a recent book, "The New Salesmanship," by George M. Reid; he said it contained information of value to warehouse owners and estimators.

First vice-president, Martin Gelock.

Second vice-president, the retiring president, C. C. Hubbard, president Richards Storage Co.

Secretary-treasurer, Everett M. Radcliffe, owner Radcliffe Storage Co.

This is the twenty-eighth consecutive time that Mr. Radcliffe has been elected the organization's secretary.

Cleveland Association Is Working With Furniture Dealers Regarding Liens

RECENT adverse decisions against Cleveland warehousemen in their claims on unpaid storage goods has stimulated cooperative effort in solving the common problem surrounding chattels and liens.

The Cleveland Furniture Warehousemen's Association took up this subject at its December dinner meeting at the Hotel Winton. All companies of the association were represented. C. E. Stephens, of the Cleveland Retail Furniture Dealers Association, the chief speaker, talked on the mutual problems of the two associations and the need for cooperation all along the line in securing claims. Mr. Stephens recommended that the warehousemen appoint a committee to work out a plan acceptable to both organizations and submit it. This plan would include a satisfactory method of securing and protecting each other's accounts. In accordance with this suggestion, such a committee was appointed by R. H. Woodruff, president of the Cleveland F. W. A., and a plan will be worked out.

Where some States give the warehouseman a prior claim against his client, Ohio makes no such ruling and the chattel mortgage form of security does not insure the storage bill when former claims are unearthed. Thus, when the goods are sold in event of an unpaid account, the storage house is still in danger lest another lien crop up. Sometimes the client buys furniture under one name and stores under another. Or the goods may be moved in from another city or State either with or without the permission of the mortgagee. Sometimes the former chattel mortgage is recorded in the county to which the furniture is moved and sometimes it is not. And legal opinion has differed somewhat regarding the outcome of claims under various circumstances. Obviously a complex questionnaire would be necessary in securing all the facts for the warehouseman at the time of storage. And often members of the public are not aware of the fact when a chattel exists.

The recent decisions against local warehousemen in favor of retail store claims were rendered by the chief justice of the Municipal Court and were based on an automobile case which had been taken to the Supreme Court. In this case, an automobile was taken to a garage for repairs. The charges were rendered and the automobile was held on a mechanic's lien for settlement. A finance company, searching for the car, found it and attempted to recover it for an old unpaid balance due on its purchase. The garage man lost the case, the judgment favoring the prior claim of the finance company.

Warehousemen contend this is not a parallel example, inasmuch as the mechanic's lien and the storage chattel are entirely different.

Until recently there had been little or no trouble in the problem of claims in Cleveland. But the storage house is too often ignorant of prior liens. Warehousemen in Cleveland are desirous of working out a plan favorable to both retailers and themselves so that legal tangles and costs will be unnecessary. This feeling is shared by retail furniture men, and it is expected an agreement will be reached. The committee of the association is now working on the plan.

New Jersey F.W.A. Renominates Petry and Other Officers

THE New Jersey Furniture Warehousemen's Association will hold its annual meeting on Jan. 13 at the Washington Restaurant, Broad Street and Washington Park, Newark.

The following officers have been renominated:

President, Frederick Petry, Jr., president Petry Express & Storage Co., Trenton.

First vice-president, James E. Mulligan, secretary Knickerbocker Storage Warehouse Co., Newark.

Second vice-president, Richard Coyne, Jr., owner Richard Coyne Storage Warehouses, East Orange.

Third vice-president, Nathan Goodman, secretary Goodman Warehouse Corp., Jersey City.

Secretary, Frank J. Summers, Model Storage Warehouses, Newark.

Treasurer, Griswold B. Holman, secretary Geo. B. Holman & Co., Inc., Rutherford.

Two directors whose terms expire have been renominated each for a three-year term—Willard Eldredge, president Eldredge Express & Storage Warehouse Co., Atlantic City, and Robert J. Wilson, Roselle.

"MichFWA" Funds in a Closed Bank

The funds of the Michigan Furniture Warehousemen's Association are in a Lansing bank which closed its doors on Dec. 22. They amount to $165.

Moving Rates Are Cut 12 to 14% by Chicago Operators

THE Movers' Association of Chicago has announced drastic reductions in moving rates. The reductions, averaging between 12 and 14 per cent on a job, were approved by representatives of 800 transfer and storage firms. Louis B. David, general counsel for the association, made public the reductions on behalf of the president, James Kane.

The cuts include abolition of office-to-office charge; reduced mileage charge; reduced piano rates, and consideration of piano moving as a part of the regular moving job instead of as a separate item as heretofore. The movers, meeting at the Great Northern Hotel, stated the reductions were made because the movers feel it is the trend of the times and they desire to take their medicine.

Minnesota Truckmen Reelect McReavy and Discuss Legislation

CONTINUATION of cooperation to the fullest extent with State and municipal officers was voted by the Minnesota Truck Owners' Association, Inc., at its sixth annual convention, in St. Paul, on Nov. 18. Resolutions adopted expressed the feeling that much of the success achieved by the organization had been due to the confidence existing between the officers and the State and city officials. It was urged that all members exercise utmost care to see that their drivers were furnished with safe and sound equipment, that they respected the courtesy of the road, and that they be instructed to give pedestrians the right of way at street intersections, to gain and retain the respect and good-will of the general public. Full cooperation with the insurance division was recommended.

J. R. McReavy, Minneapolis, and J. D. Ryan, St. Paul, respectively were re-elected president and vice-president. R. E. Steller, Excelsior, was chosen second vice-president; R. C. Smith, Willmar, third vice-president, and H. L. Hess, Pipestone, fourth vice-president.

Pierre Schon, Detroit, the principal speaker at the annual dinner, said that most of the State Legislatures this year had passed laws affecting the trucking industry adversely and that Minnesota was not among these was due principally to the influence of a strong truck owners' association. He predicted a flood of antagonistic and restrictive legislation in 1933.

T. A. Horrocks, Minneapolis, reelected secretary-treasurer, in his annual report alluded in a similar vein to legislative matters. The legislative committee's theory was that prevention was better than cure, and therefore bills which would have increased taxes on trucks, and other disadvantageous measures sponsored by those interested in hampering the usefulness of trucks, were to the extent possible, he said, prevented from being introduced at the recent session. The watchful policy of the association's committee was so effective that no definite protests against legislation enacted had been received from truck owners, he pointed out.

The secretary said that particularly pleasing to note was the growth of the insurance agency connection of the association. Without exception savings had been made by members who had consulted H. S. Greiner of the agency, and this had resulted in insurance economies for many members insured through other agencies.

A militant stand by the association in the interests of public safety was a pronounced factor in its appeal for the good will of enforcement officers, Mr. Horrocks declared, and newspapers were now calling on drivers of private cars to drive as carefully as commercial drivers.

"Your association is the best protection against adverse legislation you have, and at a distinct low cost," urged the secretary.

The association's 1932 board of directors includes F. A. Thompson, manager Thompson & Wulff Transfer & Storage Co., Inc., Albert Lea; B. Capretz, owner Austin Transfer Line, Austin; R. H. Hall, president Security Storage & Van Co., Duluth; N. F. Russell, president Bridgeman-Russell Co., Duluth; F. A. Sheridan, president Duluth Van & Storage Co., Duluth; L. B. Hiler, owner L. B. Hiler Transfer & Storage, East Grand Forks; J. M. Ryan, Ryan Brothers Transfer & Fuel Co., Hibbing; Joseph R. Cochran, president Cameron Transfer & Storage Co., Minneapolis; Willard A. Morse, president Security Warehouse Co., Minneapolis; George R. Turner, secretary LaBelle Safety Storage Co., Minneapolis; A. W. Trenholm, Jr., secretary Northwestern Terminal Co., Minneapolis; Paul W. Frenzel, vice-president St. Paul Terminal Warehouse Co., St. Paul; E. L. Murphy, Sr., president Murphy Transfer & Storage Co., St. Paul, and Oliver T. Skellet, president Ballard Storage & Transfer Co., St. Paul.

Detroit V. O. A. Secretary on Move

A. N. MORRIS, executive secretary of the Detroit Van Owners' Association, has removed his office to 8751 West Grand River Avenue. He is now in the office of the Grand River Express. The association has adopted a policy of providing office room for periods of about six months at the office of a member for the executive secretary. In this way, a permanent office expense is avoided, and the cost is shifted about among the various members. In addition, each section of the city receives its share of attention, and the secretary and the individual member becomes acquainted in detail with each other's method of operation.

I.C.C. Approves Certain Wharfage Charges Which Warehousing Had Opposed

DISTRIBUTION AND WAREHOUSING'S
Washington Bureau,
National Press Building

THE Interstate Commerce Commission on Dec. 10, issued one order finding the proposed increased wharfage charges of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Co., at Mobile, Ala., on lumber and other forest products, justified, and a second order holding that "wharfage charges on the same commodities of rail carriers serving Mobile, Pensacola, and Gulfport, Miss., not shown to be unreasonably low or otherwise unlawful."

One of the complaints charging illegality of rates had been lodged by the American Warehousemen's Association against the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Co. and others, while the second complaint was by the State Docks Commission against the Gulf & Ship Island Railroad Company.

The complaint of the warehousing organization charged that the wharfage rates at Mobile, Gulfport and Pensacola, on lumber and other forest products in interstate traffic "are unjust and unreasonable in that they are wholly unremunerative, in violation of the provisions of Section 1 of the interstate commerce Act," and that the wharfage charges at the same ports on the same commodities in intrastate commerce "are unjust and unreasonably low, and cast an undue burden upon and unjustly discriminate against interstate commerce in violation of Section 13 of the interstate commerce Act."

The State Docks Commission, a corporation operating wharves at Mobile, charged that the wharfage charges at Mobile, Gulfport, and Pensacola on lumber and other forest products were unreasonably low in violation of Section 3 of the interstate commerce Act.

In seeking to rectify the situation, the Mobile & Ohio, proposed to increase the wharfage charges on lumber and other forest products from $\frac{3}{4}$ and 3.4 cent per 100 pounds on some commodities and 15 cents per 1000 board feet on other commodities to 1 cent per 100 pounds. Operation of this schedule was to have been effective last July but it was suspended until Jan. 14, 1932, following the receipt of protests. Inasmuch as the case has been dismissed and the suspension abandoned the new rates will be effective on the latter date.

The wharfage charges on forest products at the South Atlantic ports and the Gulf ports east of Gulfport were uniformly 1 cent from Jan. 10, 1921, until Nov. 5, 1928, the date the Frisco established the $\frac{1}{4}$ -cent charge at Pensacola. On commodities other than forest products, the wharfage charge is, with few exceptions, 1 cent. "This almost uniform maintenance of a 1-cent charge, complainants, respondent, and interveners contend, demonstrates that any lower charge is unreasonable," the Commission pointed out, adding:

"There is keen competition between the ports on the Gulf and South Atlantic coasts and between the carriers serving them. A difference in terminal charges tends to influence the movement of water-borne traffic via the ports maintaining the lowest charges, especially if the line haul rates to and from the different ports are the same. However, the amount of the line haul and terminal charges is not the only factor which determines the flow of traffic. Other industrial, financial, and transportation factors, such as warehouse facilities, banking facilities, and steamship sailings, must also be considered."

Claude R. Porter, a member of the Commission, in a dissenting opinion, said he was in thorough agreement with the finding of the majority that the Mobile & Ohio has justified the increase of its wharfage charge on lumber and forest products at Mobile, but expressed the belief that the finding did not go far enough. He said:

"It is my firm belief that each accessorial service performed by a common carrier in connection with the transportation of property should, as a minimum, pay its own way. In the stress of competition between carriers such services are often performed at extremely low charges, or even at no charge at all, in order to attract traffic. But far too often the cost of such services cuts heavily into the profits of the carrier, on the traffic, and thus the very purpose of the services is defeated. These low-priced or free accessorial services often originate with but one carrier, but all competing lines must establish the same services on the same basis if they are to participate in the traffic concerned."

Canvas Firm Takes Over Reach Products

The Canvas Specialty Co., Inc., 200 Canal Street, New York City, has taken over the sales and manufacturing departments of the A. L. Reach Textile Co., formerly at 6 West 20th Street, New York.

"Iron Horse" furniture pads, moving covers and tie-tape are now being produced and sold exclusively by the Canvas Specialty Co. Manufacturing is under the direct supervision of S. Tasch, and sales under W. R. Cunningham, both well known to the trade for many years. "Important economies are expected to result from this consolidation," says the Canvas organization's announcement.

California to Probe Transport Services

A sweeping investigation of the rail, motor and water transportation in California was ordered on Dec. 16 by the State Railroad Commission. The first of a series of hearings was scheduled for Jan. 4.

The direct object is to attempt to eliminate rate warfare between steam and motor carriers, and regulations will be tightened to drive "wildcatters" out of business in order to protect certificated carriers answerable to the Commission.

THE importance with which regulation of motor trucks and buses, as well as water carriers and other agencies competing with the railroads, is viewed in Washington was amply demonstrated in December in President Hoover's message to Congress and in the annual report of the Interstate Commerce Commission for the year ended Oct. 31, 1931.

As may be imagined, the President, in his messages to Congress, deals specifically only with such matters which he deems vitally important. That Mr. Hoover regards regulation of motor carriers as of extreme importance is obvious from a reading of his message.

"The railways," he declared, "present one of our immediate and pressing problems. They are and must remain the backbone of our transportation system. Their prosperity is interrelated with the prosperity of all industries. Their fundamental service in transportation, the volume of their employment, their buying power for supplies from other industries, the enormous investment in their securities, particularly their bonds, by insurance companies, savings banks, benevolent and other trusts, all reflect their partnership in the whole economic fabric."

"Through these institutions the railway bonds are in a large sense the investment of every family. The well-maintained and successful operation and the stability of railway finances are of primary importance to economic recovery. They should have more effective opportunity to reduce operating costs by proper consolidation."

"As their rates must be regulated in the public interest, so also approximate regulation should be applied to competing services by some authority. The methods of their regulation should be revised. The Interstate Commerce Commission has made important and far-reaching recommendations upon the whole subject, which I commend to the early consideration of Congress."

President Hoover also recommended that the Shipping Board be given power to regulate coastwise shipping and "rates and services upon the inland waterways." This seems to hold out some hope to the warehousemen who are fighting the Inland Waterways Corporation before the Interstate Commerce Commission, in the event the Commission decides it has no jurisdiction over the Federal Barge Line's "free" storage of sugar.

The "important and far-reaching recommendations" of the Interstate Commerce Commission, which President Hoover commended to the consideration of Congress, have not been fully developed insofar as they apply to regulation of motor carriers. The Commission does recommend some sort of regulation, but refrains from making specific recommendations in its annual report. These will come in its decision in Docket 23,400, Coordination of Motor Transportation, which will be promulgated "very early next year," the Commission said.

Nevertheless, the Commission does make the extremely important recommendation in its annual report that an "impartial and authoritative" investigation be provided for by Congress "for the purpose of determining whether and to what extent motor, water and air carriers operating in competition with the railroads are receiving direct or indirect Government aid amounting, in effect, to a subsidy; and if so, what steps, if any, are necessary to correct this situation, with a view to placing competition on a just and equitable basis."

Such an investigation, of course, is aimed at the charges hurled by the railroads and others that trucks and

SENATOR JAMES COUZ-
SENS, of Michigan, chairman of the Senate committee on interstate commerce, has introduced a resolution calling for appointment of a joint House and Senate committee to investigate the railroads, as suggested in the Interstate Commerce Commission's annual report outlined in the accompanying Washington correspondence. No action had been taken on the resolution up to the time this issue of Distribution and Warehousing went to press.

buses are being virtually subsidized because they operate on rights of way and highways provided by public taxation. The Commission says it is not in possession of the facts necessary to make definite findings as to these alleged subsidies. The investigation sought by the Commission could be undertaken either by it or by a committee of Congress. Apparently the Commission felt that Congress should provide sufficient funds for the comprehensive investigation it wants, if Congress decided the Commission should do the job.

If instituted, the Commission said, such an investigation "might well be extended to cover also the question of whether it is desirable in the public interest that regulations affecting public safety and convenience in the operation of motor carriers be made uniform throughout the country, and, if so, how such uniformity may best be brought about."

Another section of the Commission's report which is of particular interest to warehousemen is the renewal of the recommendation made last year that freight forwarding companies be placed under the commission's jurisdiction.

law office where he was paid the munificent sum of $2 a week. For a time he studied law but he gave that up to go into the coal business. The walls of his present office are lined with the books which comprised the law library of the late William H. Gibson, whom Mr. Van Name succeeded as president of the Linde company.

Three years in the coal business led quite logically to cold storage and general merchandising and Mr. Van Name was already managing a smaller concern by the time Mr. Gibson bought the controlling interest in the Linde company, which stores also general merchandise as well as raw silk and special bonded commodities.

Mr. Van Name was treasurer of the American Chain of Warehouses for six or seven years and is now general treasurer of the American Warehousemen's Association, and the friendships he has made through these connections he holds among the best and most cherished of his assets.

Thus do the modern ethics of warehousing blend fittingly into the mellow traditions of the spot where once stood Old St. John's.

Materials Handling Manufacturers Form Their Own Institute

MORE than seventy representatives of materials handling equipment manufacturers met in Cleveland on Dec. 8 and organized the Materials Handling Institute. The objects, primarily educational, are "to promote a more intense mechanical handling consciousness in the minds of industrial executives" and "to promote better understanding of the relationships in a cooperative way between the various groups."

F. E. Moore, Mathews Conveyor Co., was elected president; J. B. Webb, J. B. Webb Co., vice-president; H. W. Standert, Northern Engineering Works, treasurer; and J. A. Cronin, Materials Handling & Distribution, secretary.

A board of governors was elected comprising one representative each from the following groups of manufacturers: hoists and cranes; conveyors, continuous; floor trucks and castors; industrial trucks and castors; crawler cranes; accessories; conveyors, gravity; conveyors, portable; lift trucks and skids; transmission; monorail. The board was given authority to add to its number.

The meeting adjourned to May, when the convention of the American Foundrymen's Association will be held in Philadelphia. Meanwhile promotional and educational activities will be carried on by the officers and committees.

Eastman Says I.C.C. Can Expedite Storage Inquiry Apart from Ex Parte 104

DISTRIBUTION AND WAREHOUSING'S
Washington Bureau,
1163 National Press Building.

SEPARATION by the Interstate Commerce Commission of the railroad storage situation from its general inquiry into railroad operation (Ex Parte 104), as asked by the Warehousemen's Protective Committee, will not be necessary to expedite the warehousing angle of the investigation, according to Commissioner Joseph B. Eastman.

As this issue of Distribution and Warehousing went to press, Commissioner Eastman said it was hoped the Commission would have an announcement to make "shortly" concerning the protective committee's appeal to the Commission to separate the railroad storage angle from the general inquiry (See Distribution and Warehousing, November).

The warehousemen wanted a separate investigation into railroad storage and told the Commission such an investigation should not be retarded "by commingling with the matters in Ex Parte 104."

No Commingling

Commissioner Eastman said, however, that it would not be necessary to separate the warehousing angle to expedite the investigation; that each separate part of Ex Parte 104 is, in effect, a separate investigation and that all were docketed together under one proceeding merely because of a technicality of docketing. It will be possible for the Commission to dispose of the warehousing angle independently of any other phase of the investigation, he said.

—Stephens Rippey.

The foregoing Washington despatch alludes to the appeal filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission by the Warehousemen's Protective Committee, of which T. A. Adams, New York City, is chairman, requesting the Commission to keep the railroad storage situation apart and distinct from the Commission's Ex Parte 104, which is the Commission's investigation of the management of the railroads.

John J. Hickey, a Washington attorney representing the warehouse group, has urged upon the Commission that the railroad storage phase of the inquiry "not be retarded by commingling with the matters in Ex Parte 104," in order that a recommendation may be presented to Congress with a view to amending the interstate commerce Act in order "to restrain common carriers from directly or indirectly engaging in trade services of any kind or in any business activities that are outside recognized common carrier duty."

As outlined in a story in the November Distribution and Warehousing, the objective of the Warehousemen's Protective Committee, comprising non-railroad warehouse operators in the port of New York and elsewhere, is "to eliminate the railroads from warehousing—a trade service—and to compel them to confine their activities to transportation."

"Tony" Cresto Returns

Anthony V. Cresto has repurchased his former interest in the Federal Van & Storage Co., Kansas City, Mo., and has resumed his position as general manager.

Prior to his withdrawal from the Federal, which is a member of the National Furniture Warehousemen's Association, the Missouri Warehousemen's Association and the Kansas City Warehousemen's Association, Mr. Cresto was a familiar figure at the conventions of the three organizations, in which he served on various committees. At one of National's meetings he was the banquet toastmaster.

C.O.D. withdrawals. Any quotation should anticipate this condition. In quoting, for another matter, do not overlook the fact that these products come in flavors—almost as numerous as colors in dress goods. One of the best selling of them announces eight flavors: Muscatel, Port, Virginia Dare, Burgundy, Claret, Riesling, Tokay, and Sauterne. This catering to the customer's taste and whim will lay upon the warehouse a necessity to select from the stock the appropriate flavor and, in the stock in pile, will result in honey-combing and prevent solid tiering on the floor.

Every prospect is that these grape-into-wine goods will be vigorously pushed during 1932. One would guess that increasing quantities of them will appear in our public warehouses under approximately the conditions we have outlined as prevailing in 1931.

Federal Receiver for Pennsylvania Dock & Warehouse, New Jersey

AFTER several months of litigation in the Federal and State Chancery Courts a bankruptcy receiver has been appointed for the Pennsylvania Dock & Warehouse Co., owners of the huge structure at the foot of Exchange Place, Jersey City, N. J. The receiver is Walter P. Gardner of Jersey City.

The appointment was made on the signing of a formal order by Federal Judge William Clark. For several months prior to Oct. 19, 1931, Mr. Gardner and George L. Morris had been the receivers of this company in the State Chancery Court.

On Oct. 19 the Real Estate Land Title & Trust Co., Philadelphia, trustees under a first mortgage of $5,750,000, brought a foreclosure suit in the Federal Court, and Judge Clark appointed the two foreclosure receivers.

On Oct. 7 an involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed against the warehouse firm by Milberg & Milberg, Jersey City. Much litigation ensued to bring about the appointment of a bankruptcy receiver.

One of the chief items of liability is the second mortgage of $3,000,000. The Milberg firm chiefly represents the following creditors:

The Terminal Warehouse Co., Inc.; the Branlegrain Co., of which Theodore Brandle is an officer; the Hoffman-Elias Co., and the M. & M. Trucking Co., as well as several other large firms.

Hydrocyanic Acid Gas

The Roessler & Hasslach Chemical Company, Inc., Niagara Falls, N. Y., is distributing a twelve-page booklet titled "Effect of Hydrocyanic Acid Gas on Foods, Fabrics, Metals and Other Commodities." Copies may be obtained free by addressing the company at Niagara Falls or 350 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

The information in the booklet is of interest to all organizations concerned with problems of fumigation. Numerous commodities are covered, alphabetically from apples to wheat and including furniture and household goods, and the booklet concludes with a reference list of fumigation publications issued by the Government, several States, and privately.

Motor Freight Office in Waterloo Warehouse

The Reliable Transit Co., Inc., Waterloo, Iowa, has announced that offices have been secured in the Iowa Warehouse Co.'s building at 823 Mulberry Street and will be used as a western terminal for a motor freight line between Waterloo and Chicago, with John J. Jackson in charge. All trucking will be on an interstate basis from both cities on alternate days.

future, which it carried in its decision in the Fifteen Per Cent Case, 1931. It also reiterated its statement that "competition of motor trucks presents the most serious problem for railroad executives." That the Commission also regards it as a serious problem is shown by the citation of specific instances of truck service which has superseded railroad service in various parts of the country and in many industries. These citations take up nearly five pages in the annual report.

The Commission does not overlook the familiar difficulties with which attempts to regulate motor carriers are fraught. The chief difficulties, of course, affecting truck regulation, are the contract and privately-owned carriers. To what extent these carriers can be subjected to regulation "is a question which can not yet be answered with any certainty," the Commission said.

Apparently the Commission believes uniformity of State laws regulating trucks by the exercise of police power might be a solution, as it declares that such uniformity is "plainly desirable." Some action by the Federal Government may be feasible and needed in the attainment of uniformity, it said.

Apparently the Commission believes uniformity of State laws regulating trucks by the exercise of police power might be a solution, as it declares that such uniformity is "plainly desirable." Some action by the Federal Government may be feasible and needed in the attainment of uniformity, it said.

Speaking of the railroads' future, the Commission remarked that the decline in earnings brought about by prevailing business conditions was not solely responsible for the distrust harbored by investors in railroad securities.

"And it has been further intensified by the widespread publicity which the railroads and the holders of their securities have deemed necessary in the pursuit of restrictive and regulatory legislation for the other forms of transportation and in their further attempt to secure a general rate increase," the Commission added significantly.

The Commission took occasion to spike the talk which has credited it with putting the railroads in their present position by its restrictive regulation and by "whittling away" of the railroads' revenue by a process of "continual but gradual" reductions in freight rates. The Commission said it did not believe this impression of "whittling away" was shared by those well acquainted with its activities.

The impression that rate regulation by the Commission consists wholly of reductions is "quite erroneous," the Commission said, explaining that it approves increases in many cases and that in the eastern and western trunk line class-rate, the furniture, livestock and petroleum products investigations, it had authorized increases. The Commission also pointed to numerous instances where railroads had voluntarily reduced their own rates to meet truck or other competition.

The present time afforded greater opportunity for the exercise of initiative and enterprise in railroad operation and management than there had been for many years, the Commission said. It had "every confidence in their ability to rise to the needs of the occasion."

As in the report on the Fifteen Per Cent Case, the Commission emphasized the burden placed on the railroads by the continuous deficit in the operation of passenger service. Even now, with freight traffic at a minimum, the Commission asserted, the railroads would be earning enough to stabilize their credit if they were able to conduct the passenger business as profitably as the freight business. Curtailment of competitive passenger service had been carried out to a limited extent, the Commission said, but the opportunities in this direction "are very far from being exhausted."

Other possibilities might be the provision of better passenger service with lighter trains at greater speed and lower fares, and electrification might help under certain conditions," the Commission said. The problem, anyhow, requires "drastic attention and genuinely creative enterprise."

Much the same might be said of I.C.C. freight service and even of carload service, the Commission said. The railroads had "so many and so great inherent advantages of economy, particularly in the case of the longer hauls and the heavier traffic, that we cannot believe that they will not be able to withstand the competition of the motor trucks," it said. But this service must provide what shippers "demand and require," probably through a coordinated truck-rail, store-door service. Railroads, in establishing these services, should pursue a policy of greater cooperation than heretofore, the Commission said.

The Commission spoke of its investigation into railroad practices (Ex Parte 104), in which it is hoped to develop instances of waste in revenues and expenses resulting from "undue and unwise competition" of the railroads with

This is the way to make business come irrespective of business conditions about you.

When the warehouseman sits down and makes a mental inventory of his past accomplishments from a purely personal standpoint, he cannot help but secure ends of which he will be proud.

Miller & Miller, Abilene, Tex., belong in this class. Every year they sit down and not only study their regular inventory but make one of themselves and their business management. They analyze every plan—find the reason back of its success or failure—and when each New Year rolls around they find that they have made lengthy and rapid strides toward progress. They know that each year has brought them something and that there is much more to their business now than there was in the year before.

Don't take inventory solely of your stock and your business records. Take inventory of your past experiences and enable those revealed facts to formulate a plan that will prepare a helpful business-building program for each coming year.

You'll find out how to handle Old Man Inventory in a manner to which he is thoroughly unaccustomed; and, what is more, instead of his bothering and worrying you, he can be placed in harness and made to work for you from the first day to the last day of each year.

The freight associations of the various railroads have agreed, owing to the "depressed condition of business and the desire of all to reduce expenses," to extend "until further advised" the use of the old bill of lading form. The revised form was to have become effective on Aug. 1, 1930, but permission was given to continue use of the old form until Jan. 1, 1932. The new agreement further extends the use of the old form.

When the old forms are used the following notation should be stamped on it:

"This shipment is tendered and received subject to the terms and conditions of the Company's Uniform Bill of Lading effective Aug. 1, 1930"—followed by shipper's signature and agent's signature.

Central Seeks Certificate

The Central Storage Co., Canton, Ohio, has filed with the State Public Utilities Commission an application for a restricted intrastate certificate of public convenience and necessity to operate a motor transportation company for moving furniture and household goods over an irregular route covering all the highways in Ohio with Canton as point of origin and destination.

O. H. White Is Dead; President of Topeka Transfer and Storage

OLIVER H. WHITE, president of the Topeka Transfer & Storage Co., Topeka, Kan., died in a hospital on Dec. 11 after an illness of three weeks. Complications followed an attack of the influenza. He would have been 80 years old next Oct. 9.

Born in Belvidere, N. C., Mr. White removed as a child to Indiana and received his college education at Haverford, in Pennsylvania, and at Earlham in Richmond, Ind. In 1887 he went to Kansas to engage in business with his brother-in-law, H. H. Hill, in Arkansas City, under the name of White, Hill & Co. About 1898 he leased several sections of land in Kay County, Oklahoma, and became a cattle man. In 1903, with W. F. Axtell, he purchased an interest in the Topeka Transfer & Storage Co. and continued in the warehouse business until his death.

Mr. White was a member of the merchandise division of the American Warehousemen's Association, the National Furniture Warehousemen's Association, the Kansas Warehouse & Transfermen's Association and the Missouri Warehousemen's Association. Locally he was prominent in the Y. M. C. A., and was a member of Rotary and of the Central Congregational Church.

In 1880 Mr. White married Caroline Hill in Hancock County, Ind. Besides his wife, he is survived by four daughters; a son, Elliot H. White, who is associated with the warehouse business; seventeen grandchildren and a brother and a sister.

E. H. Barmore, Sr.

Edmund H. Barmore, Sr., who founded the Los Angeles Transfer Co., died on Nov. 26, at the age of 72, at his home at 1545 West Ninth Street, Los Angeles.

A native of Indiana, Mr. Barmore was graduated from the University of Michigan and went to California in 1886 and three years later founded the warehouse business, which he headed until his retirement a few years ago. He has been active in the civic and financial affairs of Los Angeles. His widow and two sons, Davis S. and Edmund H., Jr., survive.

A. B. Harrington

Aaron B. Harrington, president of the Republic Storage Co., Inc., and a past secretary of the Warehousemen's Association of the Port of New York, was found dead, from a bullet wound, in his private office at the Republic's plant at 541 West 34th Street on Dec. 11.

A clerk heard a single shot and found Mr. Harrington's body lying on the floor. A revolver lay nearby.

Mr. Harrington's business associates said the warehouse executive had no reason to take his own life and were of the belief that death had been accidental.

Mr. Harrington attended the Atlantic City convention of the American Warehousemen's Association last January although he was not a member.

John A. Hill

John A. Hill, president of the Milwaukee Cold Storage Co., Milwaukee, died in a hospital on Dec. 16 after a week's illness. Operated no about a year ago, he had returned to the hospital for a second operation. It is believed heart trouble was a contributory cause.

Mr. Hill was 63 years old and had been in Milwaukee since 1895. He was a member of the cold storage division of the American Warehousemen's Association, the Wisconsin Warehousemen's Association and the International Apple Shippers' Association.

W. H. Hurlburt

William H. Hurlburt, president and manager of the Baggage & Omnibus Transfer Co., Portland, Ore., and widely known in warehousing and transportation circles in the Pacific Northwest, died at his Portland home on Dec. 18 after a brief illness. He was 86 years old. Mr. Hurlburt had operated in the Baggage & Omnibus organization since 1917. He was a member of the National Furniture Warehousemen's Association.

W. L. Arnold

William L. Arnold, manager of the Arnold Transfer & Storage Co., St. Joseph, Mo., died at his home there recently. He was 74 years old.

B. F. Bowers

Benjamin F. Bowers, foreman of the Lima Truck & Storage Co., Lima, Ohio, died on Dec. 11 at his home after a brief illness.

New Detroit Firm

John Creedon, formerly with the Ivory Cartage Co., Detroit, has organized the Bayside Moving & Storage Co. in that city and planned to become active after Jan. 1.

R. L. Spencer Dies; Headed Pennsylvania Railroad Warehouses

DEATH on Dec. 2 removed Robert L. Spencer, who, nationally known in merchandise warehousing and in transportation circles, was in charge of the warehouse department of the Pennsylvania Railroad. He was seized with a heart attack while at dinner at his home in Wynnwood, Pa., and the end came instantly. Funeral services were held in Pittsburgh, his former home, on Dec. 5, and interment was in Allegheny Cemetery, Pittsburgh.

Mr. Spencer's early warehouse experience was while associated for many years with the Terminal Warehouse Co., Baltimore. In 1906 he went to Pittsburgh to open and assume charge of the Pennsylvania Railroad's new storage building operated by a subsidiary, the Duquesne Warehouse Co. During ensuing years the Pennsylvania extended its warehousing operations to Harrisburg, Erie and Chicago. A warehouse department was then established, about eleven years ago, with Mr. Spencer in charge.

Association Connections

A member of the American Warehousemen's Association and at one time secretary of the Pennsylvania State Warehousemen's Association, Mr. Spencer was for a quarter of a century a familiar and active figure at the conventions of the American, and was one of the organizers of the Pennsylvania association. He had served on the executive committee and on various other committees of the American. He is survived by his widow and two sisters.

Licensed Warehouse Capacity Increases

DISTRIBUTION AND WAREHOUSING'S
Washington Bureau,
1163 National Press Building.

CONTINUED progress was made in licensing warehouses under the Warehouse Act during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1931, according to the annual report of Nils A. Olsen, chief of the bureau of agricultural economics of the Department of Agriculture.

The licensed capacity for cotton warehouses increased from 3,971,135 bales on June 30, 1930, to 4,830,339 bales a year later; grain increased from 54,064,618 bushels to 74,804,092 bushels, and canned foods from 2,672,900 cases to 3,464,450 cases. The capacities for other products increased in somewhat smaller ratios, Mr. Olsen said.

These figures on capacity, however, do not represent the volume of products that may be handled through licensed houses in a year, Mr. Olsen explained. Some cotton warehouses may handle cotton amounting to two or three times their licensed capacity each year and it is not uncommon for a grain elevator to handle grain amounting to ten times its capacity in a year.

Virginia's Chain Store Merchandise Tax Upheld by U. S. Supreme Court

DISTRIBUTION AND WAREHOUSING'S
Washington Bureau,
1163 National Press Building.

ALAW of the State of Virginia imposing a merchandise tax on goods distributed by chain store warehouses was upheld by the Supreme Court of the United States on Nov. 30. The Courts ruling was accompanied by no opinion other than a statement to the effect that in arriving at the decision the Court was governed by the same principles that prompted it to uphold the Indiana chain store tax law.

The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. attacked the law unsuccessfully in the lower Courts and brought it to the high tribunal with the argument that the law was discriminatory and not in keeping with the dictates of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution. The law in question provides that a company distributing merchandise from one warehouse to two or more of its own retail stores shall pay a tax based on the value of the goods so distributed in addition to the mercantile tax paid for each of the retail stores. By virtue of the ruling of the Supreme Court the appellant owes a tax bill of $5,966.34 to the State as of Jan. 31, 1930.

It was the contention of the appellant in the Supreme Court that surplus stock and a place to store it are necessary incidents of all retail merchandising, the amount of such surplus stock and the resulting need for storage facilities being determined only by the volume of business conducted by a particular merchant. In other words, the tea company argued that its distribution warehouse serving 190 stores was merely a necessary adjunct to the business of those stores, each one of which is taxed separately for the privilege of doing business.

The charge was directly made that the law was discriminatory because the operator of a warehouse serving a single retail store was not taxed under the law, regardless of the volume of his business.

In its answer, the State of Virginia argued that "there is no connection between the challenged license and that required for operating a single retail store. As has been said, the license for the operation of a retail store carries with it the single privilege of conducting such store." It was further argued that the Legislature had merely set up a new business classification for tax purposes.

The State argued that there was no discrimination inasmuch as every one similarly circumstanced was taxed alike, and the tax was not imposed on a merchant for "storing" his goods, but merely on the distribution. For that reason the operator of one retail store was held, under the interpretation, to be merely storing his goods in his warehouse and using it as he replenished his stock.

Finally, the State presented the argument that even if there were no difference between the appellant's warehouse and the warehouse of a single store retailer, the law was valid because of the ruling of the Court in the Indiana case, which gave the State broad tax powers. The Supreme Court agreed with the State on this view.

Business Has Improved Despite the Depression Two Companies Report

BUSINESS has tripled since last March for the United States Warehouse Co., Detroit, according to a statement by E. E. Seymour, the manager. The present management took over at that time the business of the Great Lakes Terminal Warehouse Co., which faced financial difficulties before the sale. Most of the new accounts are national ones obtained through the work of traveling solicitors or by mail correspondence.

The Patrick Transfer & Storage Co., Houston, established in 1900, reports that 1931 was the best year in its history. Profits were 25 per cent greater than in any previous year, according to Fisher G. Dorsey, the owner.

2 Per Cent Dividend

At a meeting of the board of directors of the New Orleans Cold Storage & Warehousing Co., Ltd., on Dec. 8 a dividend of 2 per cent cash was offered, out of the earnings, to all stockholders for 1931, payable Dec. 21.

Dayton Firm Incorporates

The Larkin Transfer & Storage Co., established in Dayton, Ohio, in 1864, was incorporated on Dec. 18 and authorized to issue 250 shares of no par value stock. The incorporators are Richard L. McCann, Guy H. Wells and Mildred Gilber. The firm is a member of the Ohio Warehousemen's Association.

Indiana Blaze

Two motor trucks and four trailers were destroyed in a fire which wrecked the garage of the Reed Transfer Co. in Seymour, Ind., on Dec. 10. The loss, partly insured, was estimated at $10,000.

each other. This investigation includes an inquiry into terminal and warehousing practices of the carriers.

The question of waste and inefficiency, the Commission said, was one the railroads should follow up on their own initiative, but if they did not "it may be that a comprehensive investigation adequately financed and under the direction of Congress may at length prove desirable."

In placing freight forwarding companies under its jurisdiction, the Commission said, Congress should require that their rates be reasonable and non-prejudicial; that the companies file with the Commission and "strictly observe" their published schedules of rates and charges; provide penalties for departures from the published rates or for the granting of concessions or rebates, and make the administrative provisions of the interstate commerce Act applicable for the enforcement of these duties.

"The need for regulation of freight-forwarding companies to this extent is practically conceded," the Commission said. "It is possible, however, that in addition to this, other steps should be taken with respect to these companies and the service which they perform. This possibility is a matter to which we are giving attention."

The "other steps" apparently consist principally of the feasibility of establishing a central agency, somewhat like the Railway Express Agency, to handle l.c.l. shipments. Such an agency might take over and perform the services which freight-forwarding companies are now performing in a "decentralized and, in some respects, unsatisfactory way," the Commission said.

It is possible, the Commission said, that l.c.l. freight service, like passenger service, may be relatively unprofitable to the railroads. At any rate, it is the l.c.l. service which is particularly vulnerable to truck competition. For that reason, the Commission thinks the agency plan should be explored.

Portland Blaze

The Central Truck Terminal Building at Tenth and Irving Streets, Portland, Ore., caught fire after an explosion of a drum of oil on Nov. 26, and building and contents, principally furniture, were damaged to upward of $5,000. The Rudie Wilhelm Warehouse Co., Inc., was lessee of the structure from the McCracken estate.

DEDUCTION from income taxes to offset depreciation on storage buildings caused by deterioration of fire doors resulting from fumigating acids, loss of efficiency of burglar alarm systems, added wear and tear coming with the substitution of automobile vans for horse-drawn vehicles and for the loss of high class trade when the district in which the business is conducted changed from a white to a Negro residential area, is sought in a petition filed by attorneys for the Fidelity Storage Corporation, 1420 U Street, Northwest.

The building, it is claimed, was erected in 1913 at a cost representing $500,000 in property value. Two additions have been made since. It now affords 1500 storage rooms, has three elevators, and provides mothproof storage facilities and other installations. At the time it was built the neighborhood was made up of white families, the petition sets forth, and the type of business was such as comes in such surroundings. At the time of its construction it was estimated that its serviceable life would be thirty years.

Since that time the depreciation and extra wear and tear complained of were experienced.

In the 1921 income tax return the company made a deduction for depreciation and obsolescence computed at 3½ per cent, thereby spreading the investment over approximately thirty years. The Internal Revenue Department reduced the percentage to 2½ per cent and billed for the difference, $7,312.76.

The petition now in the hands of the Appeals Board seeks redetermination and abatement of the claimed deficiency.

Amalgamated Protests Income Tax Deficiency

DISTRIBUTION AND WAREHOUSING'S
Washington Bureau,
1163 National Press Building.

IN an effort to have set aside a claimed income tax deficiency of $590.66 for the 1929 tax year, Amalgamated Warehouses, Inc., 25 Broadway, New York City, has filed a brief with the United States Board of Tax Appeals and has asked for a hearing.

Reciting the history of the case, the petitioner sets forth that in November of 1920 it leased part of its property to the Lafayette Forwarding Company, now known as the Plymouth Warehouse Corporation, for 20 years at an annual rental of $10,500, plus the payment of real estate and water rent by the lessee. In 1923, the lessee was unable to pay the rent or taxes as provided for in the lease, but the lessor, being unable to find a more suitable tenant, entered into a new lease, effective Jan. 1, 1928, under the terms of which the annual rental was reduced from $10,500 to $6,000 a year, and the lessor agreed to assume the payment of real estate taxes and water rent.

The petitioner failed to give effect to the terms of the supplemental lease in its books for 1929 and accordingly overstated its net income in the amount of $7,007.68 for the year, it is claimed.

It is contended in behalf of the petitioner that the rent due for 1929 also should be permitted as a deduction because the company, according to the brief, was insolvent in that year, with assets of $6,581.52 and liabilities of $77,303.62 appearing on its books as of Dec. 31, making payment impossible.

Indicative of the financial condition of the lessee with respect to its affairs with Amalgamated Warehouses, Inc., is an appended statement showing but $33,240.88 paid on its rent and taxes from 1923 to 1929, leaving an unpaid balance of $45,893.38.

All of the claims of the petitioner were denied, resulting in assessment of the deficiency now under protest.

New Tulsa Firm

The Commercial Storage & Transfer Co. has been established in Tulsa, Okla., and has opened a combination household goods and merchandise storage warehouse at 1 North Cincinnati Street. O. H. Bittner is president and associated with him is Mr. Kuhn, formerly with the Federal Storage & Van Co., Tulsa.

The new firm's fireproof warehouse, on the Frisco railway, contains 21,000 square feet of floor space of which two-thirds is devoted to merchandise and one-third to lockers for household goods storage. A 1000-cubic-foot van and two smaller trucks comprise the equipment.

Founder Rebuys His Firm

Fred Roehl, who founded the Roehl Bros. Storage, Detroit, in 1901, has repurchased the business from his son, Harold F. Roehl. The latter has retired from the enterprise. The elder Roehl is managing the plant, with offices at 526 Alfred Street, and Mrs. Amy Roehl is acting as bookkeeper and office manager.

Dayton Firm Builds

The Terminal Cold Storage & Ice Co., Dayton, Ohio, is erecting a $35,000 addition to its cold storage warehouse on Eaker Street.

Sydney Green Becomes Distribution Superintendent of Sun Oil

SYDNEY GREEN, formerly executive secretary of the Southern Warehousemen's Association and at one time president of the old Southern Bonded Warehouse Corporation in Petersburg, Va., is now superintendent of warehouses and distribution for the Sun Oil Co., 1400 Chamber of Commerce Building, Pittsburgh. The Sun organization uses pub-

Mr. Green resigned from the Southern association late in 1930 and a few weeks later joined the Gerstenslager Co., Wooster, Ohio, manufacturers of special-built truck bodies, as southern representative.

Gedert Resigns

John J. Gedert has resigned as manager and operating executive of the Cadillac Storage Co., Detroit. He has recently been ill.

Mr. Gedert was president, in 1930 and 1931, of the Detroit Van Owners' Association.

Bekins to Build Again

The Bekins Van & Storage Co., operating warehouses in Pacific Coast cities, is completing plans for construction of a six-story reinforced concrete depository, estimated to cost about $100,000, on El Cajon Avenue near 37th Street in San Diego, Cal.

Norfolk Blaze

Fire on Dec. 1 destroyed a quantity of household goods in the Rankin Transfer & Storage Co.'s plant at Sixteenth Street and Monticello Avenue, Norfolk, Va. The property damage to building and contents was estimated at $5,000.

used in building, furnishing, equipping and operating the home. Also on the second floor are the studios of Radio Station KMOX, of the Columbia Chain, and an auditorium.

Both public and private warehousing service will be rendered, the tenant either dispensing with a staff and having his merchandise handled on a contract basis, or operating his own warehouse. As much as 90,000 square feet of area may be obtained for warehousing on one floor, and the heavy construction permits live floor loads of 250 pounds per square foot.

Ceiling heights are 11 feet 6 inches on the ground floor, 12 feet, 3 inches on the second floor, and 10 feet, 9 inches on other floors, measurements being taken from floor to ceiling. The warehouse is amply protected with sprinkler systems and other means of fire protection.

The warehouse is served with eight heavy-duty elevators with 9 by 17-foot platforms and with a capacity of 100,000 pounds each. Another with a 10 by 24-foot platform and a capacity of 18,000 pounds, is located so that a large truck may be driven on to it and carried to an industrial floor for loading or unloading.

The Mart is served by the Terminal Railroad Association. Private railroad sidings adjoin covered freight docks the entire length of the south side of the building, and here thirty cars can be spotted. It is stated that this provides ample capacity for 100 cars inbound and 100 cars outbound daily.

There are covered truck docks on Spruce Street and the full length of Thirteenth Street; these have a capacity of 50 trucks at one time. Trucks up to nine tons can be carried by elevator direct to any industrial floor.

The Mart has made an organized trucking service available to tenants.

Cartage charges on all in and out-bound traffic are eliminated, and all freight will be handled at regular published tariff rates applying to delivery at St. Louis. Package car shipment service also is available to eastern manufacturers making l.c.l. shipments into territories west and south of St. Louis.

The warehouse is heated by steam. Inter-communicating telephones are located at various points throughout the warehouse section, and an autocal is provided to reach key men when wanted.

Richmond Referendum on Foreign Corporation Tax

The Chamber of Commerce in Richmond, Va., is holding a referendum vote among its members who are wholesalers, jobbers and manufacturers to determine whether it is their preference that foreign manufacturing corporations stocking goods in Richmond warehouses should be required to pay a merchant's license.

Such corporations pay a merchant's tax now, under State law, and they contend that there are three assessments on the same goods inasmuch as the jobbers to whom they sell and also the retailers must pay taxes.

Mason Manghum, managing director of the Richmond Chamber, announced on Dec. 17 that if the referendum showed a majority against the merchants' tax on foreign corporations, the Chamber's board of directors would then decide whether to present the case to the State Legislature.

Houses for Employees

The Patrick Transfer & Storage Co., Houston, is building, on ground behind its garage, fifteen four-room dwelling houses which will be rented to the firm's Negro drivers and employees. The houses are to rent for $4.50 a week.

The purpose of this novelty in warehousing is two-fold. First, it will make the drivers available at any hour and have them clean. Second, the houses can be built now for $750 each, as compared to $1,200 to $1,500 in normal times. Moreover the building is giving jobs to many of Houston's unemployed carpenters.

Each dwelling has detachable screens, weighted sashes, electric lights and gas in every room, bathroom with built-in medicine cabinet, and a kitchen sink with built-in cabinets, together with a front porch with ceiling lights.

Fight Against Removals Statute in New Orleans Not to Be Discontinued

FOLLOWING the decision by the United States Supreme Court refusing to review the New Orleans removals law case, as outlined in Washington correspondence in the December Distribution and Warehousing, Claude L. Johnson, a New Orleans attorney for the plaintiff, announced that his clients had not given up the fight and that shortly some action would be taken along a new line.

It is expected that another suit will be filed in the Louisiana Civil District Court. In such action the plaintiff would be either August J. Schick or P. Schick, both of whom have been plaintiffs in past suits contesting the validity of the ordinance, or William Gallagher, president of the Gallagher Transfer & Storage Co., New Orleans, who has been financing the battle, aided in part by contributions from numerous warehouse firms.

As pointed out in the Washington correspondence last month, the United States Supreme Court ruling did not determine the constitutionality of the New Orleans statute nor did it act as a bar to future appeal from lower Courts.

Monarch Handles a Million Pounds in a Huge Moving Job

THE Monarch Transfer & Storage Co., Kansas City, Mo., recently performed successfully an unusual moving job.

Proposed widening of Fifteenth Street made it necessary for Kansas City Public Service Co. to vacate its general offices at Fifteenth Street and Grand Avenue and remove to 728 Delaware Street, and the removals work was entrusted to the Monarch organization.

Working with a force of sixteen men and four large vans, Monarch transported the offices of fourteen departments and 184 people in 65 hours and 14 minutes a distance of three-quarters of a mile. The loads were estimated to aggregate more than a million pounds of goods.

Pieces Numbered

All furniture in the old offices was laid out on a plat to scale and the furniture properly numbered, starting in each room with No. 1 and continuing until all pieces were properly designated. Following this, strips of white tape were used as markers on every article which could not be packed in the files or desk drawers and were so numbered, in accordance with the prepared plan. Instructions were also given out for the proper packing of books and other miscellaneous material so that in the moving nothing would be destroyed or misplaced due to loose wrapping. From start to finish, everything with respect to the moving job was handled in true military style.

Coming + + During 1932

Further Authoritative Articles by H. A. Haring

DURING the past few years Distribution and Warehousing's contributing editor, H. A. Haring, has become nationally known as a constructive and dependable writer on subjects associated with distribution through the public warehouse.

The benefits accruing to sales and traffic managers, and to storage executives, are not by reason of his articles in Distribution and Warehousing alone. Informative texts serving to acquaint Business America with this industry's strategically economic position in the country's scheme of distribution are constantly appearing, under Mr. Haring's own name or one of his several noms de plume, in various business journals. He is a prolific writer whose thoughts and comments about warehousing are contributing in a significant way to the welfare of the distribution world.

In view of the importance of these writings of Mr. Haring, inaugurated in Distribution and Warehousing about six years ago, it is believed that our readers will be interested to know that this recognized authority on the industry will continue as this journal's contributing editor throughout 1932.

Article No. 81 of Mr. Haring's "Distribution. Its Economic Relation to Public Warehousing" series will appear in the February number. The subjects of his texts to be published in issues to come, although not necessarily in the order as here set down, are as follows:

Long Distance Trucking. The motor vehicle has brought changes into warehousing and holds several threats for the immediate future.

Merchandise Warehousing's Greatest Need. A critical study of the industry; its place in business; its needs and shortcomings.

Space Rental. Is the "flat rate" custom increasing? First hand experiences of storage executives and patrons.

Ocean-to-Great Lakes Barge Lines. Development of water-borne transportation inland from New York.

Special Charges for Shipping Services. A comparison with other industries where similar conditions are found.

Private or Public Storing? Costs and comparisons.

Terminal Projects. What have they accomplished in five years? Have they attracted new patrons?

Field Warehousing. Developments and changes; banking's altered attitude.

Chain Stores and the Public Warehouse. Delivery methods considered.

"Gadgets" in Warehousing. What they are; their relations to industry; their influence on profits.

Bootlegging in Warehousing. Unfair and unethical practices of certain competitors which absorb easy profits while side-stepping costly services.

Mr. Haring

Developing New Business

THE 74th article of Mr. Haring's "New Business for Warehouses" series begins on page 40 of this January issue. These texts, too, will be continued during the year just commenced. Many a timely tip leading to fresh accounts and good profits has been picked up by the storage executive from these articles since publication of the series was begun several years ago. As in his "Distribution" writings, Mr. Haring presents facts gleaned through careful investigation, and many warehousemen look upon these "New Business" articles as constituting one of this magazine's most helpful editorial features.

Ice and Coal Movers Compete in Detroit

In Detroit the ice man and the coal man have become the main competitors of the moving van operators, according to John A. Blenman, proprietor of the Metropolitan Moving Co. of that city. Ice and coal trucks are being used in increasing numbers to move household goods, with the result that the "legitimate" movers are suffering from loss of trade.

One large firm in the ice and coal business is stated to have sold about 300 of its trucks to employees. The drivers are now owners, route men, who are petty capitalists in their own way, and out to get business for themselves. The morning is spent on the usual business of ice delivery, but the forced investment in the trucks requires some means of repayment and they are almost unanimously devoting their afternoons—and often their evenings—to the moving business.

The ice man has an advantage here. He often knows some days in advance when a family is going to move, the family without electric refrigeration is a possible customer for the cheapest type of moving. Hence he can put in his bid ahead of time.

Rat Tunnels in a Houston Warehouse

A novelty in warehousing is the construction of passageways under stored merchandise for the exclusive use of rats so that the rodents will use the passageways instead of eating paths through the goods. This is a scheme recently adopted by the Patrick Transfer & Storage Co., Houston, Tex.

Merchandise stored by the Patrick organization includes grain, coffee, flour, sugar, etc. Under it the firm has installed two-inch pipes providing entrances and exits. Experience has shown that the rats use these pipes instead of boring through the sacked commodities.

Poisonous substances are scattered through the tunnels and all entering rodents do not reappear.

Niagara District to Have Warehouse Firm

THE Niagara District Warehouse and Forwarding Company, Ltd., has been granted a charter in Ontario to conduct a general warehousing and distributing business and to provide water transportation facilities in the Niagara peninsula.

The new organization is headed by James F. Wilson, one of the leading citizens of Thorold, the Ontario city where the business will be operated. Mr. Wilson is a prominent figure in the district's paper industry.

Shipping facilities and a large warehouse will be located at the Thorold dock, according to announced plans, and will be placed at the disposal of the district's industries and the steamship interests using the Welland ship canal.

Bush Favors Permanent Jobless Relief to Care for Future Emergencies

THE present unemployment problem furnishes a challenge to American industry to find some permanent solution to prepare for future emergencies, Irving T. Bush, president of the Bush Terminal Co., New York, recently told The Associated Press in a copyrighted interview.

"I am an optimist," Mr. Bush said. "I can see indication of improvement in some lines now, and if we were in the same position as we were a quarter of a century ago we might go on from here.

"However, we are so closely knitted in a financial and business way with Europe that our progress out of the present slump will depend in large measure on Europe's advance. But we will have other periods of unemployment, and the time to prepare for them is now.

"There must be something radically wrong with a system such as ours, that permits panhandling, bread lines and soup kitchens and still obviously does not provide relief for all. Except in countries where begging is a recognized occupation, I do not know of any country that has as much of it as we have here."

Approves Swope Plan

Mr. Bush made it clear that he favors the present nation-wide emergency unemployment relief but that he feels some permanent plan should be worked out to care for future emergencies.

He believes the plan of Gerard Swope, already in effect in the General Electric Company, a good one, but pointed out that it takes care of only one industry.

He was emphatic in his belief that the Government should have no part in this enlarged plan, pointing out that government aid provides one of the weaknesses of the European system. Such relief, he believes, is too paternalistic and is not a function of government.

J. F. Crooks in Accident

Joseph F. Crooks, Kansas City associate manager of the Crooks Terminal Warehouses, and his daughter, Miss Marjorie Crooks, were injured, but not dangerously, when the motor car in which they were driving overturned near Brookfield, Mo., on Nov. 25.

Tanner Points Out That "Free Cartage" Is Not Necessarily Free

ONE of the biggest threats to the household goods storage operator is the cut-rate competitor who advertises "free cartage to the warehouse" and stresses it as the sole selling argument.

Such advertising is not genuine cut-price competition at all but is misleading advertising because while costs are cut at one end they are more than made up at the other end, according to L. H. Tanner, owner of the Tanner Fireproof Warehouses, Detroit.

Recently Mr. Tanner analyzed a job which went to a "free cartage" competitor, the lot comprising a sofa and two chairs. His analysis follows:

	Tanner Charge	Competitor Charge	Tanner's Comment
Cartage in.....	$1.50	Free	"Free" the big customer-appeal.
Labor in.....	...	$2.50	A surplus cost of a steady organization.
Wrapping	1.50	Not needed on these goods.
Packing	1.50	Nothing to pack in this lot.
Storage (1 mo.)	1.50	1.50	Standard rate.
Labor out.....	...	2.50	Charges only when labor is considerable.
Cartage out....	1.50	3.00	Competitor's charge far too high.
	$4.50	$12.50

Proving that "free cartage" may be expensive in the long run.

The Outstanding Values in Trucks Today

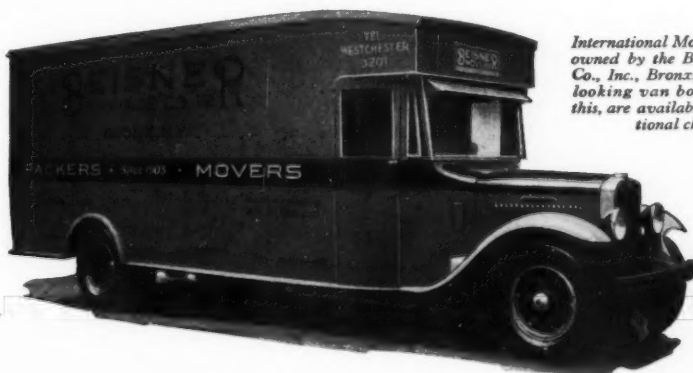

The Central Transfer & Storage Co., Indianapolis, one of the largest haulers of freight in the central states, operates a fleet of 21 Internationals. They say this about their Internationals: "We are certainly well pleased with the service they give, and their low cost of operation is a big factor in holding our overhead expense to the minimum". This company maintains regular service to more than 300 cities and towns within a radius of 100 miles of Indianapolis.

WHEN you are in the market for motor trucks be sure to investigate the complete modern line of International Trucks. There is a capacity and wheelbase for every type of hauling, at attractive prices that make Internationals the outstanding truck investment today. The list of speed and heavy-duty models at the right shows the wide range from which you can select those best suited for your work.

International Trucks are soundly designed and engineered for long truck life and efficient operation at low cost. They are built strong, inside and out, to stand up under the most difficult conditions. Alloy and heat-treated steels, and ball and roller bearings are used at many points to reduce wear and friction to a minimum. Powerful but economical engines provide abundant power and speed.

Service . . . so vital in truck operation . . . is available everywhere on International Trucks. There are 183 Company-owned branches in the United States and Canada that keep Internationals on the job. The nearest branch will be glad to demonstrate any model.

WHEN WRITING ADVERTISERS MENTION DISTRIBUTION AND WAREHOUSING

"Do Not Move in the Dark"

THE Better Business Bureau of Philadelphia, with headquarters in the Public Ledger Building, has issued under the above quoted title an eight-page booklet offering "some suggestions to householders expecting to engage the services of a moving company or storage company"—a pamphlet which should be in the possession of every household goods storage executive in the country. Copies may be had without cost by addressing the Bureau.

Urging the public to deal with reputable companies only, the booklet points out that:

"Unfortunately all storage and moving companies are not reputable. In fact, not a few masquerade under respectable names but conduct their business along the lines of a 'racket.' The Better Business Bureau has prepared this booklet to aid you in avoiding companies whose practices have led to dissatisfaction on the part of many householders."

The Bureau calls on householders to call on it when in doubt as to the reliability of a company; warns against irresponsible advertising, gives information regarding quotations, written contracts, offers of "free storage," etc.; and request the householders to report any unsatisfactory experiences, saying:

"We may be able to help you and in any event we will use the fact you give us for the protection of others who may anticipate employing the same concern in the future."

Bill Is Introduced to Place Forwarders Under Jurisdiction of I. C. C.

DISTRIBUTION AND WAREHOUSING'S Washington Bureau, 1163 National Press Building.

FREIGHT forwarding companies would be placed under the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission through a bill introduced in the House by Representative Homer Hoch, Republican, Kansas. Mr. Hoch's measure is the same as one he introduced at the last session of Congress containing the same provisions.

In introducing the bill, Congressman Hoch said he had no personal ax to grind, but was merely acting to carry out the commission's recommendations. The commission's annual report for the past two years has urged legislation of this sort.

The Hoch bill would merely amend paragraph 3 of section 1 of the interstate commerce Act by including in the definition of "common carrier" all "persons, firms, or corporations who receive goods of others for transportation and combine the same in carload or less-than-carload shipments and cause the same to be transported in carload or less-than-carload lots, at carload or less-than-carload rates wholly or partly by railroad and/or operate containers or container cars, and/or the instrumentalities in connection with the uses thereof."

Mr. Hoch said he hopes to be able to get the House committee on interstate and foreign commerce to hold hearings on the bill during this session of Congress. He is a member of this committee, which now is under the chairmanship of Representative Sam Rayburn, Democrat, Texas.

Johnston B. Campbell, of this city, attorney for interests favoring the bill, has advised Mr. Hoch that his clients will be ready to attend hearings if the committee decides to hold them. Mr. Campbell said he did not believe there would be much opposition to the measure.

In addition to the Hoch bill, the House Committee on interstate and foreign commerce has before it several measures providing for regulation of interstate motor vehicle common carriers. It is difficult to say what may be done along this line during this session. The House committee already has held extensive hearings on bus and truck regulation, but it is likely that additional hearings will be held this year.

Regulation of motor vehicle common carriers is conceded to be a knotty problem, but there is a feeling in Congress that the job should be tackled.

Los Angeles Firm Moves a 3,600-Pound Cake

INVITED to a department store's birthday celebration, the Los Angeles Warehouse Co. arrived with a cake weighing 3600 pounds. The accompanying photograph illustrates the cake en route on a piece of the warehouse organization's tractor and trailer equipment.

It was a delicate moving job, but the Los Angeles Warehouse Co. had had experience along just that line twice before, so the cake reached destination without mishap—not a crack in the frosting.

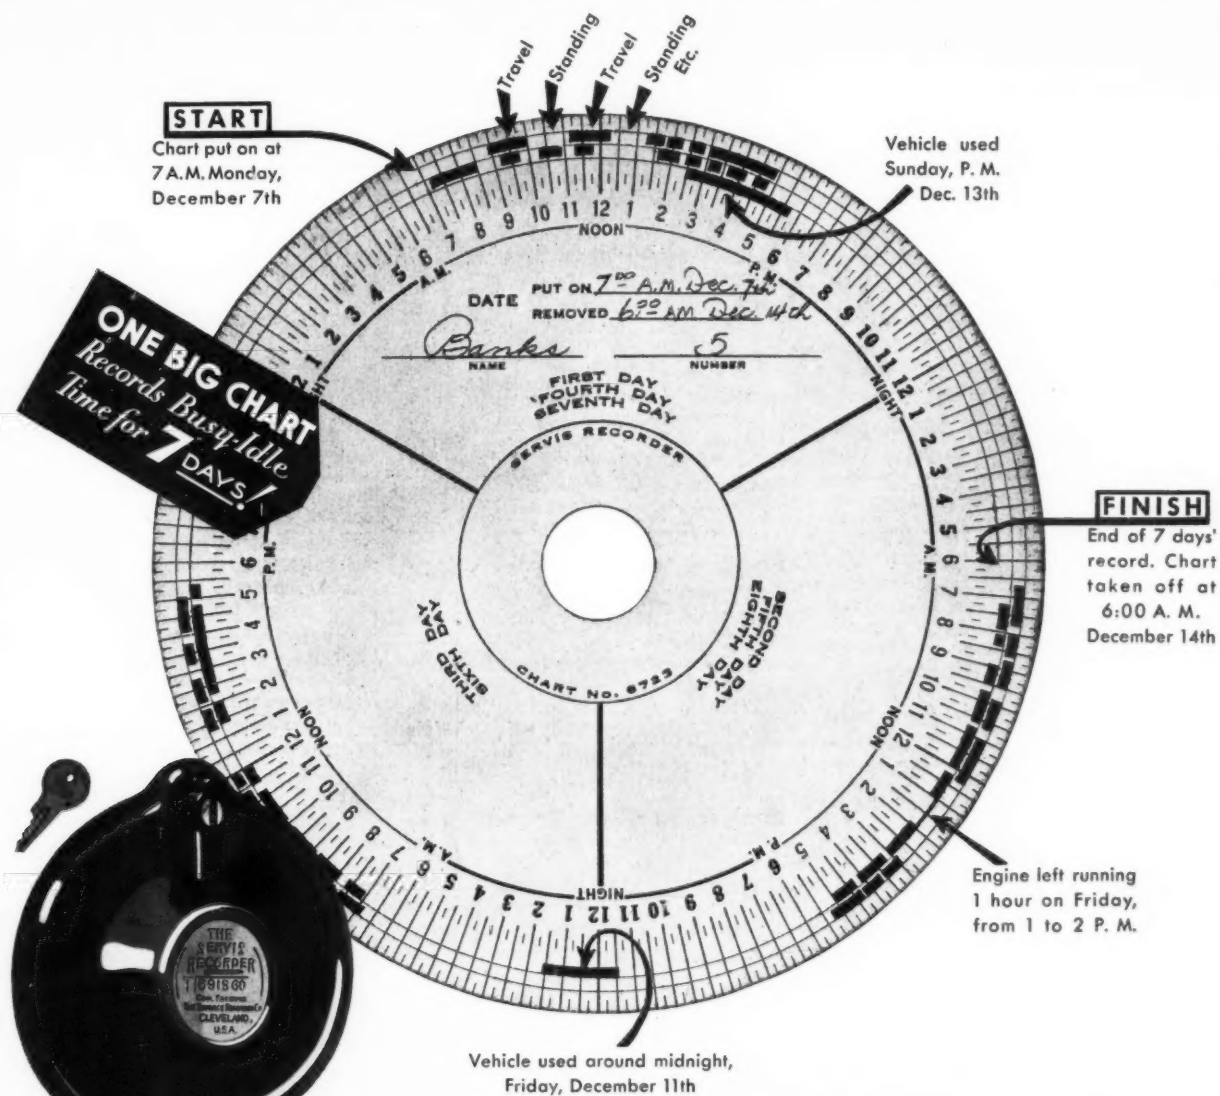

The cake belonged to Walker's Department Store, which each year has a birthday sale and, as part of the celebration, has a massive cake baked and placed on display in the store's window. To set the cake in place it is necessary to remove the plate glass of the window first. After the sale, the cake is cut up and each customer shares.

The most recent Walker cake required 710 pounds of sugar, 710 pounds of butter, 7500 eggs, 20 pounds of almond paste, 2 gallons of vanilla and 300 pounds of icing. The problem of transporting it from bakery to store was entrusted to the Los Angeles Warehouse Co., operating the Yellow Vans, Associated, one of the store's birthday guests.

Gentlemen:

We have recently completed changing our fleet of trucks and trailers, as well as those of our subsidiary, Pacific Tank Lines, over to pneumatic tires. The majority of these were similar to the one shown in the photo.

We believe that the Budd-Michelin Wheel equipment selected to make the change is the best available for the purpose. We are thoroughly sold on the time-saving and tire economy delivered by Budd Duals, double cap-nut mounting.

Yours very truly,

How Many Public Warehouses Are There?

THIS question is asked us many times each year and while we do not claim to be letter perfect in the following information, we believe this tabulated list offers the nearest to what can be considered complete information on the subject published anywhere.

It is a digest of the warehouses listed in this, the 1932 Annual, Warehouse Directory issue, and in further explanation it should be understood that where more than one warehouse is operated by a single company the number of warehouses is counted rather than the company being considered a single unit. We believe this manner of computing the size of the industry is more nearly accurate than by any other means. Therefore, where an organization operates, say, three distinct warehousing units it is counted in this tabulation as three, not one. These figures total 5134 warehouses, while there are 3333 listings in this issue of the Directory.

Every advertiser has on his prospect list, either potentially or actually, many prospects who are almost sold. The last dollar spent in advertising will bring more returns than the first, because it gathers in the results of this cumulative effect. (The last round of the prize fight is the most telling round.)

ABBREVIATIONS APPEARING IN THE 1932 WAREHOUSE DIRECTORY

In Which Is Included the SHIPPERS' INDEX

The Directory Consultant Should Read the Following:

THIS revised edition of the annual Warehouse Directory published by Distribution and Warehousing has two major purposes. One is to give Business America an authentic and up-to-date reference list of public warehouses with equipment and facilities to store, forward, transfer or distribute manufactured and raw products and household and cold storage goods. The other is to provide for the industry itself a record of the responsible companies engaged in all branches of the warehouse business.

¶ In this year-round reference work is to be found information, regarding warehouse companies, that will be consulted throughout 1932 by the shipper, the banker, the storage executive, by Government officials, and by the business and industrial public generally—information that relates to names, addresses, office personnel, year of establishment, investment, storage and distribution and pool car facilities and services, space statistics, motor truck and team operation, motor freight lines, railroad connections, and trade association affiliations.

¶ The Directory consultant should keep in mind the following:

¶ When a bold face star—thus: ★—appears after a company's name, in the United States and Canada, it signifies that the information contained in that company's listing has been attested, before a notary public, as being correct—that the facts and figures were sworn to under oath after being set down on information sheets distributed in the preparation of this revised edition.

¶ Where no bold face star appears, the information in the listing was not sworn to; and, in the cases of companies which did not supply up-to-date information for their year's Directory, such listings may be at least one year old.

¶ The bold face mark—thus: ★—after the name of a company operating in a foreign country, signifies that that information was prepared specifically for the 1932 Directory. Absence of this mark means that the firm made no return for 1932, and thus the information is at least one year old.

¶ Where the investment figure given is small, this may mean that it covers fixtures and equipment only—not taking into account the real estate, etc.

¶ Where the statement is made that a company is bonded, it should not be construed that the company's entire available space necessarily is bonded; for example, USCB may mean that only a part of the space is United States Customs Bonded.

¶ Toward the close of a listing, one or more commodities may appear in bold face type. This means that the company specializes in the storage and distribution of such commodity or commodities.

RUG CLEANING
AS IT IS DONE
TODAY

A WAREHOUSE SERVICE THAT PAYS BIG!

Rug Cleaning with CONNERSVILLE equipment is a different and better service for the furniture warehouseman, and it is highly profitable. Many alert warehouse operators saw the possibilities of rug cleaning years ago—others are just beginning to realize what they are missing by not operating rug cleaning departments. Clean rugs may be more safely placed in storage and customers approve of cleaning the rugs before they are stored. Once the rug is in the warehouse, it can be cleaned at very little additional cost, and as an extra charge is always made for cleaning, the profits on the transaction are greatly increased.

SPACE AND INVESTMENT REQUIRED ARE SMALL!

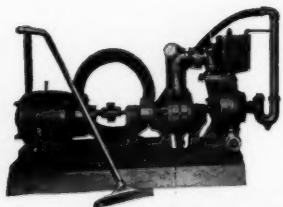

Almost every furniture warehouse has some idle space that could be converted into a profitable rug cleaning department. Even a space as small as 20 by 40 feet may be used for a department of this kind. The cost of the necessary equipment for turning out quality rug cleaning is quite small. Many furniture warehousemen have found that the profits from rug cleaning soon reimburse them for the investment in the equipment.

ENGINEERING SERVICE AND ADVICE ARE FREE!

There is an advantage in placing all rug cleaning equipment responsibility on a reliable firm that specializes in this line. CONNERSVILLE engineers stand ready to tell you about rug cleaning, to quote on suitable equipment for your use and to lay out your rug cleaning department from the ground up. Write us today.

The TONWATE

BUILT TO CARRY THE WEIGHT OF TONS

Heat Treated Steel Forgings Throughout—

Great strength without excess weight. All fitted parts machined, hardened, and accurately assembled, providing easy handling and more positive control of trucks and dollies.

Drop forged wheels—wide faced and machined all over, or the Divine Canvas Cushion Wheel. Sizes ranging from 3" to 10" in diameter.

No King Bolt to Break or Bend—

Simplified two-piece construction. Other features include hub guards, large hardened axles, flush-type lubricators, genuine Hyatt roller bearings, all of which are described in our specification sheet sent upon request.

And the TonWate costs you no more than an ordinary caster.

DIVINE CANVAS CUSHION WHEELS

DIVINE Canvas Cushion Tired Wheels on Fairbanks Trucks make a combination that cannot be equalled for durability, service and efficiency.

USED on all kinds of banking, industrial and warehouse equipment, the Divine wheel provides a cushion between the truck and the floor, rolls quietly, pushes easily, and lasts indefinitely.

Fig. 1 shows a section of the wheel cut away to show the position of the fabric after compression, and the method of anchoring the tire to the wheel.

Fig. 2 shows a cross-section of Heavy Canvas Fabric cut on the bias to prevent raveling or fraying.

Fig. 3 shows the layers of canvas sewed together to form an individual block.

WHEN WRITING ADVERTISERS MENTION DISTRIBUTION AND WAREHOUSING

NAPHTHALENE FLAKES

STILL HEAD THE LIST!

All you need, to rid you of the warehousemen's curse, is an airtight room and a generous supply of Naphthalene Flakes.

Your initial expense is amazingly low. No big outlay for expensive vaults or poisonous gases.

Just utilize your waste space by converting a corner of it into airtight quarters. Scatter Naphthalene Flakes freely and forget about it.

You will be quick to realize the advantages and increased revenue you will enjoy when you can promise your customers complete moth protection. Naphthalene Flakes offer the most effective method, the easiest, the cheapest.

KEEP THIS ROOM
FREE FROM INSECTS

Use Calcyanide and inform your customers and prospective customers of the fact that goods stored in your warehouse are returned in actually better condition than when received (much furniture, etc., being brought into warehouses infested by insects).

Through the operation of a fumigation cabinet you can also let them know that a set of upholstered furniture, a carpet or a fur coat containing clothes moths or carpet beetles will be fumigated with Calcyanide and returned promptly with a guarantee that all insect life has been destroyed.

Thus—as many warehousemen are doing—you will retain present customers and attract new ones, with consequent increased moving, cartage, storage and packing business, and profits.

Remarkably Efficient and Easily Applied

The gas from Calcyanide kills adults, pupae, larvae and eggs. The fumigant is merely dusted upon a piece of paper laid on the floor.

Interesting booklet of instructions upon request.

FURS	Single post construction makes the most economical, practical type of installation. It allows more storage space, simplifies handling and costs less.
RUGS and UP-HOLSTERED FURNITURE	Again single post construction with stamped steel allows maximum storage space at lowest cost. Design permits of long tiers of continuous open shelving. No sharp corners or rough edges to mar stored stuffs.
PICTURES	Expanded metal panels sliding in overhead tracking permits most practical method of handling and prohibits possibility of damage to valuable pictures.
TRUNKS	Extra strong adjustable shelving, provided with rollers on front edges to simplify loading.

In general all storage racks are adjustable in every detail. They are the result of years of experience and close study of the requirements in the storage industry.

The Portable Saw Machine for Warehouses

For Sawing Crating, for Resizing Lumber from Old Crates—All Those Sawing Jobs Around a Warehouse, Onan "Safety Saw" does the work Accurately, Swiftly and at a Saving. Cross Cuts, Rips, Miters.

Portable

This Portable, Safe, Inexpensive Sawing Machine is furnished complete with motor, saw blade, guide and guards and plugs into the lighting circuit—is as portable as a wheelbarrow. Can be moved anywhere around the warehouse or taken right to the job for crating those "Out-of-town" shipments.

Trial Offer

Tell us what kind of current you have on your lighting circuit and let us send you an Onan "Safety Saw" for Trial. There Is No Obligation. If the saw is not everything you expect, send it back freight collect. You will be just as well satisfied as the hundreds of other NFWA members who tell us "They don't see how they got along without it!"—"If we couldn't replace our Onan 'Safety Saw', we wouldn't part with it for twice what we paid."

CLEAN, ACCURATE SAWING means GOOD CRATES and LOWER CRATING COSTS. Try an ONAN "SAFETY SAW," or let us send complete information.

A Profitable Moth Protective Service

—WITHIN REACH OF EVERY WAREHOUSEMAN!

It is easy to understand why storage customers are inclined to favor the warehouse that offers Extermovault service. The customer is satisfied that her mind will be "at ease" knowing that the living room suite she cherishes will be free from dust, grime, and pressmarks . . . and above all, from moth infestation. The customer readily appreciates the careful protection given to her household effects by Extermovaults and does not mind paying the extra charge involved.

Showing upholstered sets stored in Extermovaults safely protected from moths, dust and pressmarks.

Featuring valuable furnishings and clothing placed in Extermovaults ready for fumigation.

READ THESE FEW EXCERPTS

"We have found this method not only the most satisfactory from a viewpoint of taking care of the household goods themselves but the most economical in point of view of space."—Federal Warehouse Co., Peoria, Ill.

"Please send us one dozen sets Extermovaults same as last order. We are very much in need of these Extermovaults and if shipping fast freight instead of N.Y.C.R.R. will make better time, please do so."—Hollander Stge. & Moving Co., Chicago, Ill.

"Extermovaults are something new here and I think they are going very good. Looks as though I will have to order another dozen."—H. B. Godfrey, Ann Arbor, Mich.

"On receipt of this letter, please ship us by fast freight and follow with tracer, one dozen Extermovaults in sets, which will be duplicating our last order, PLEASE RUSH."—Ben A. Langan Stge. & Van Co., St. Louis, Mo.

EXTERMO-RUG VAULT

Most modern method of rug protection and storage.

Extermovaults are sturdily constructed. They make possible the storing of furniture one piece atop the other in an orderly arrangement permitting unusual economy of floor space—without any possible damage to the pieces stored. They can be used time and again. With ordinary handling Extermovaults will last years and your initial investment will return to you many times over. Extermovaults come three to a set. Orders are accepted for a minimum quantity of one dozen sets at $6.00 per set. If you have never used Extermovaults, order a supply at once. Make it known to your clientele that you have acquired them and within a short time you will appreciate their many advantages. In fact Extermovaults will bring new and more profitable business to you. Literature describing Extermovaults, Extermo-Rug Vaults and our other kindred products sent upon request.

Do Your Children Collect Stamps?

Distribution and Warehousing's editor has written a new book which discusses from a unique angle the hobby of philately. It is titled:

Geography and Stamps

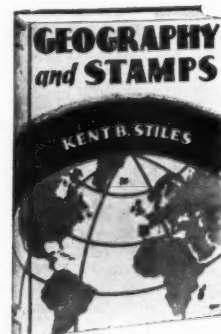

By Kent B. Stiles

Published by Whittlesey House, McGraw-Hill Book Co., 330 West 42nd Street, New York, it contains about 70,000 words and 160 illustrations and is priced at $3.00.

"Geography and Stamps" presents the fascinating story of exploration, discovery and world expansion from the days of Toscanelli and Columbus to the modern era of the partitioning of Africa and the exploits of the Graf Zeppelin as reflected by designs of nations' postal paper.

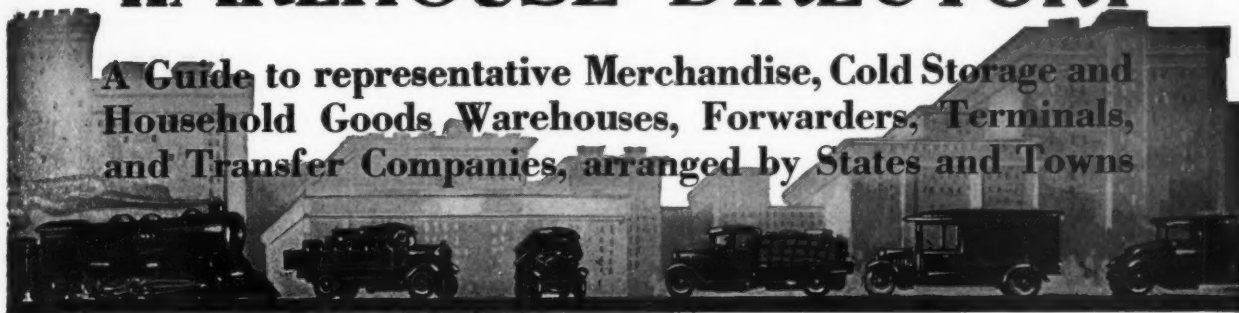

Mr. Stiles' book offers unprecedented reference material of needed value to stamp collectors and to those parents who encourage their children's interest in this widespread hobby. For the first time between two covers appears here the essential information which identifies, geographically and politically, every stamp-issuing country of the past and the present.

This is a companion volume to the author's "Stamps—An Outline of Philately" published in 1929.

WAREHOUSE DIRECTORY

A Guide to representative Merchandise, Cold Storage and Household Goods Warehouses, Forwarders, Terminals, and Transfer Companies, arranged by States and Towns

"Andy Says"

1931 is past and many of us may feel that, with its passing, the depression is all over and good times here again. If that thought can help make it so, then I, for one, am willing to believe it. With many, however, the greatest depression has been within themselves; they have taken their work for granted and, when anything happens to change the ordinary routine a bit, they just shut up like a clam and run for cover.

¶ I know salesmen who are so callous they won't get excited about anything. In time this callousness turns to cynicism and they see only the flies in the cream jug. If you happen to be near them then you soon see only the flies, because it's contagious. These people end up by being "can't be doners."

¶ Let's fight shy of such a fate. Let's pattern ourselves after the salesman who continues to feel he is working for the best house in the world, and the best boss in the world; that he has a product or service to sell as good or better than any other of its kind, and that the quicker he can tell the world about it, the happier and more contented both he and the world will be.

¶ Distribution and Warehousing provides in this 1932 Annual Warehouse Directory issue what might be termed an extraordinary edition for the times. It is not quite so large as some previous issues but is plenty large enough to suggest to those who see and use it that public warehousing is a well founded industry and not subject to tottering with a change in the wind. There are reports from several sources of 1931 having been a peak year.

¶ In the same sense that real happiness comes from within us, so let us look for the brighter aspects on business from within us; as we feel, so shall we most likely find things during 1932.

¶ "D & W" and its staff wish you all a most prosperous and happy year.

"Andy"

Warehouse Advertisers' Index

UNDER this arrangement our warehouse advertisers are here listed alphabetically by (a) States, (b) cities and towns, and (c) companies' names.

This facilitates reference when shipper or storage executive selects a consignee in any given locality.

!Abreast of the Times!

With the start of the New Year, you, who believe in having your distribution handled through a facility of the last word in efficiency, and by an alert progressive organization, whose personal service is in keeping with up to date business methods, will find all requirements met at CALIFORNIA'S MOST MODERN WAREHOUSE.

Here are 433,000 square feet, nearly ten acres of floor space made up of six floors and basement. Construction and protective features are reflected in the contents insurance rates as low as 12.2c. Switchtracks of 30 car capacity; truck loading doors, 22 in number, and seven high speed automatic freight elevators provide preferred shipping conveniences.

Your branch representative can be comfortably accommodated in the spacious light offices available, even though his needs be merely desk space. An automatic passenger elevator, a clubby conference room for sales meetings, and a quiet pleasant rest room are some of the other comforts provided for tenants. A good restaurant holds forth on the ground floor.

Nothing in the way of service has been overlooked. The Vacufume Co., Ltd., is installed on the first floor of the warehouse. Users of warehouse space whose products require the Vacufume Process for the elimination of insect infestation such as may occur in cereals, nuts, coffee, flour, dried fruits, tobacco, etc., can now store and obtain this service under the same roof without the expense of intermediate cartage.

Over 20,000 square feet in the basement is given over to cool rooms for certain classes of merchandise requiring lower than ordinary temperature. Thermostat controlled the individual rooms will vary from 32 to 70 degrees.

The interest displayed in this new building has already been highly encouraging to the management. Why not investigate? Your distribution problems will be analyzed by experienced operators without obligation. Just drop us a line and we will either answer you promptly by letter, or have one of our representatives call to discuss matters fully with you.

LOS ANGELES HARBOR

WILMINGTON, CALIFORNIA

MERCHANDISE WAREHOUSING AT SHIPSIDE

WAREHOUSE LOCATION

Adjoining the docks of prominent steamship lines in the Intercoastal, Coastwise and Oriental trade, including American-Hawaiian Steamship Co., Williams Line, McCormick Steamship Co., Munson Line, and the Oceanic & Oriental Steamship Co.

ECONOMY IN HANDLING

Location permits direct movement of cargo between ships and warehouse by stevedore equipment as illustrated above, thus eliminating the usual truck or rail haul from dock to warehouse.

COMPLETE WAREHOUSE FACILITIES

The location and design of this modern reinforced concrete building of one story transit shed type is the result of careful planning to provide the utmost in convenient and economical warehouse facilities at this harbor. 80,000 square feet of floor space with more than average cubic capacity creates economy which is reflected in the tariff rates.

Two main ramp aisles give access by truck or stevedore equipment to every foot of floor space. This feature, together with 17 truck loading doors and 11 rail loading doors, promotes speed in handling movement of merchandise and eliminates all congestion. Private spur track on Harbor Belt Line connects with all railroads in Southern California.

MARINE TERMINAL INDUSTRIAL SPACE FOR LEASE

Inquiries are solicited from responsible firms interested in locating branch manufacturing or distribution facilities in this territory. This location is the ideal point of distribution for the entire southwestern and coast territories, as well as South America and the Orient. Will build to specification on adjoining available land for responsible tenants on fixed term lease of ten year minimum.

San Francisco's Most Modern Warehouse

The Walkup Company Warehouse has a storage capacity of over 100,000 square feet of the finest storage space in San Francisco. The building is located in the midst of the best transportation facilities and has 550 feet of wharfage space and trackage facilities for over 20 cars at one time. Steamers and Barges discharge direct into this building. A fleet of over 100 Motor Trucks and Vans speed up deliveries.

The Walkup Company offers complete distribution service. Filling orders, shipping, billing, inspections and claims are efficiently attended to by a staff of long experience.

Finally, the insurance rate for goods stored in our warehouse are the lowest in the city.

Let the Walkup Company represent you in San Francisco.

Simplified Rate Manual FOR Merchandise Warehousemen

AUTHOR, D. W. TACKETT
Merchants Fireproof Storage Co., Dallas

Compiled and Published by the TEXAS WAREHOUSE AND TRANSFERMEN'S ASSOCIATION, Inc.

A scientific rate structure of 110 pages, based on the average experience as to floor load, stacking and pile height and weight per square foot of merchandise warehouses throughout the country.

A simplified Rate Manual which takes the guess out of quotations for package storage, handling and drayage.

Contains Basis of Rate Structure and an Analysis of Revenue received for handling or draying the average 10,000 pound lot of merchandise.

Contains conversion tables, so as to discount the Tariff 10% or 20% and also for increasing the Tariff 10% or 20%.

Bound in limp leather, convenient pocket size. A durable booklet for everyday service and for usage on your Rate Desk.

Merchandise warehousemen using this Tariff will find it indispensable in quotation of rates on package storage, handling and drayage.

Price per copy, $3.00. Lots of ten or more, per copy, $2.75. Limited supply.

This is a picture taken from an airplane by the New England Airways, Inc., showing a group of 23 buildings owned and occupied by The Smedley Company.

The first of these buildings was erected in 1860 and others have been added as the growth of the business warranted.

The picture also shows our private siding on the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. and the docks used by the Starin Line and the New England Steamship Company for boats plying between New York and New Haven.

Concrete and steel fireproof storage warehouses, for furniture, pianos, merchandise, and automobiles. Private locked rooms for the storage of household goods and merchandise. Watchman on duty in and around the plant day and night. Local and long distance hauling of every description. Especially equipped for moving machinery, boilers, safes, etc. Railroad and boat connections. Members of the National Furniture Warehousemen's Association, American Warehousemen's Association, the Connecticut Warehousemen's Association, and the Motor Truck Association of Connecticut.

The Smedley Company was established in 1860. The history of this company is the history of the trucking and storage business in southern New England. This company boasts that it has never lost a customer whose business it seemed desirable to retain.

The Smedley Company is fully equipped with automobile trucks and vans of every desirable type and maintains a stable full of horses, not only as being the most practical and economical means of transportation under some conditions, but as being the only means at times when, because of road conditions, motor trucks are useless.

MERCHANDISE STORAGE AND DISTRIBUTION

OUR FIREPROOF WAREHOUSES are far superior to anything of their kind in the region of Washington. Modern in design and equipment, they provide every facility for utmost service in the storage and distribution of General Merchandise and the storage of Perishables.

THE WAREHOUSE PICTURED ABOVE is located on the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad, with direct switching connections. An entire train of freight may be run into the center of the building—an exceptional feature which assures rapid and safe loading and unloading of cars under roof.

WE ARE ADVANTAGEOUSLY SITUATED directly across the tracks from Main Freight Office of the Pennsylvania System which handles all freight arriving in Washington over the Southern Railroad, Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad, Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad, Seaboard Air Line, and Atlantic Coast Line.

ADEQUATE TRUCKING FACILITIES are maintained and we render efficient delivery service. Our location in the heart of the commercial zone enables us to furnish such service at minimum delivery rates.

SHIPMENTS should be consigned to OWNER, for Pennsylvania delivery, in care of

The manufacturers whose success today appears so solid that nothing can affect it, have attained that happy state because of two main reasons. They are never satisfied with their product and constantly improve it with the change and growth of the people who buy it. The second reason is that their advertising task is never done.

CHECK UP on the SERVICE VALUE

Good warehouse service is made up of much more than convenient location, modern buildings, and other physical facilities.

The "plus" features of Railway Terminal merchandise storage and distribution services are based upon the character and integrity of the operating organization, upon unusual experience and upon the economy of complete, coordinated services. Hundreds of nationally known manufacturers have found that these extras, which do not add to cost, constitute a value that is unique in the important Chicago market.

Check up on value; look for the ability and willingness to serve as well as for physical facilities for handling your goods. You will find that in Chicago it is Railway Terminal that has both.

ILLINOIS

CONCERNING YOUR ILLINOIS STOCK

Traffic delays are unnecessary and can be easily eliminated by taking storage space in Joliet. It is quickly accessible to all parts of Illinois. By morning, your shipment can be laid down in Chicago or other nearby points.

As a consequence of being outside the congested Chicago area, the lease space costs far less—a substantial saving for you—yet the warehouse furnishes the same modern efficient service as the Chicago warehouses.

OVERNIGHT SERVICE TO GREATEST ILLINOIS BUYING CENTERS

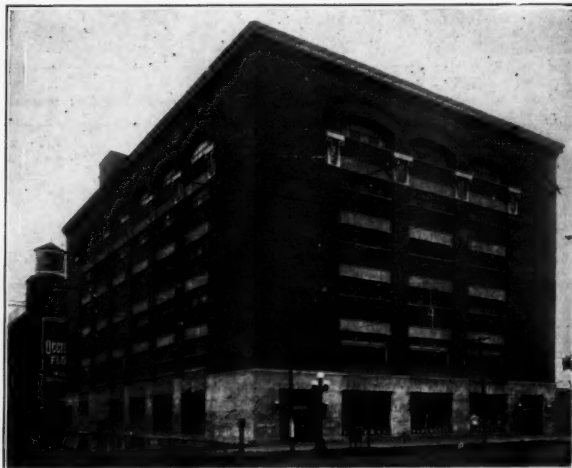

Freedom from congestion permits the largest warehouse in Illinois outside of Chicago to offer speedy and unhampered service facilities.

In addition to the fourteen rail lines, easily accessible to this Peoria warehouse, two electric lines, two steamship lines, and an efficient fleet of modern motor trucks assure quick and economical connections.

It is the sensible choice for your Illinois storage center.

FREIGHT SAVING

Mississippi River—breaking point of freight tariffs. Thereby saving freight to ultimate destination (to your customer); including the 1c freight is less than from inland distributing points.

The saving on carload to Davenport more than absorbing such 1c rate, besides as illustrated delivery is effected within 12 to 24 hours.

Write us for demonstration tariff sheet or any information.

WE HAVE . . . DOUBLED OUR FACILITIES

Organization and Facilities, Seldom Found, Designed to Meet Every Requirement

TWO great storage and distributing systems have been merged to increase their usefulness in the warehouse field—Central Detroit Warehouse Co. and Michigan Terminal Warehouse Corp., both of Detroit, now functioning under one management, offering the advantages of their tremendous facilities to serve you.

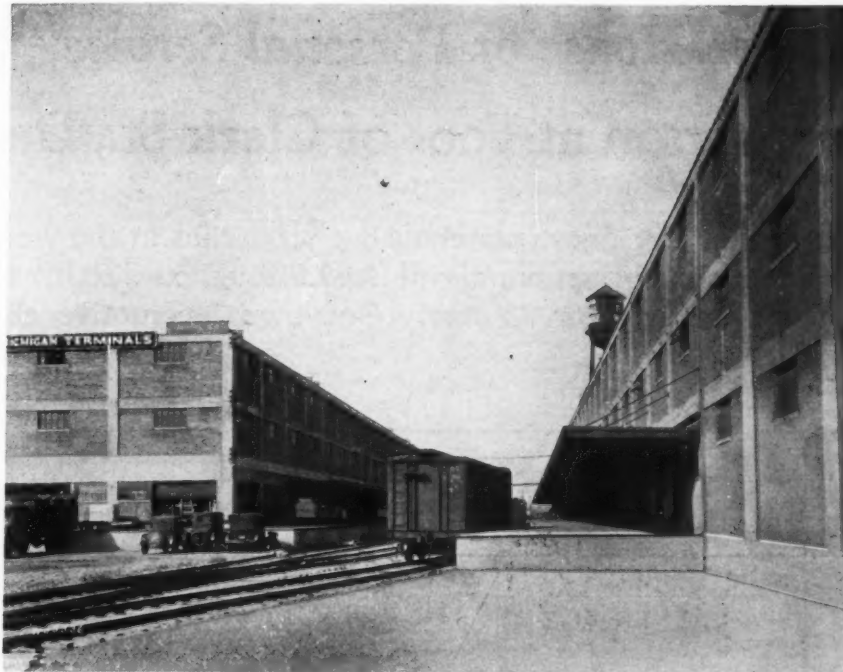

Central Detroit Warehouse is located in the heart of the wholesale and jobbing district, situated on Michigan Central Railroad. It is also within one-half mile radius of all freight terminals. Strictly modern reinforced concrete buildings, sprinklered throughout; lowest insurance rates in the city; well lighted, finely appointed offices available at nominal rents; only nine blocks from the downtown business section; convenient parking; restaurant, barber and banking facilities in the building for your convenience.

CENTRAL DETROIT

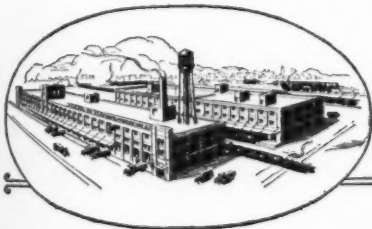

FORT AND TENTH STREETS

S DOUBLED OUR SERVICE

MICHIGAN TERMINAL WAREHOUSES are strictly modern concrete buildings, fully sprinkled, serving the rapidly growing west side of the city, and the City of Dearborn; specializing in heavy and light package merchandise, as well as liquid commodities of all kinds in bulk. Enormous rail facilities—every railroad entering the City of Detroit directly connected with this property; fourteen and one-half acres of land available for rough stocks of any kind suitable for outside storage facilities.

A fleet of motor trucks, owned and operated by Central Detroit Warehouse Co., serves both properties, providing frequent and prompt delivery service; flash or special delivery service on demand at reasonable rates. Our thoroughly trained staff and accurate checking system provides quick, efficient service, keeping you advised promptly of your merchandise movements.

Ship cargo in and out is handled over our docks with modern material handling equipment.

Distribution of pool cars and reshipping given careful attention.

DETROIT, MICH.

Thoroughly Serving Greater Detroit

The full meaning of "Complete Warehouse Facilities" was never more thoroughly expressed than when the giant United States Warehouse Co. of Detroit was opened less than 1 year ago.

The largest terminal warehouse in the heart of the city, United States is living up to its reputation for anticipating the numerous storage requirements of all types of commodities.

General merchandise, cold or sharp freezer service, receiving, forwarding, distribution, storage-in-transit and warehouse financing are all a part of this United States service.

Six million cubic feet of space are provided in the United States Warehouse building. Forty trucks can operate at one time at the unique truck docks which are away from the congested thoroughfares. Fireproof construction makes your insurance rates the lowest.

You will be pleased with United States service.

The Meeting Place of
Warehousemen

ONE of the largest national distributors, manufacturing a product known the world over, has announced that hereafter it will distribute exclusively through warehouses. In the selection of the warehouses to be used, DISTRIBUTION & WAREHOUSING has had an important part. This distributor, like hundreds of others of similar calibre, is a regular reader of DISTRIBUTION & WAREHOUSING and uses the Shippers' Index as a guide and source of information in the selection of the warehousemen with which to do business.

The Directory of Warehouses of DISTRIBUTION & WAREHOUSING is the meeting place for the man who needs warehouse facilities and the man who has them to offer.

Moral—Use Warehouses

IN an Eastern city there is a manufacturer who makes a very high class product which is sold to foundries and smelters. For several years his trade has been growing in the states adjoining that in which his factory is located and about two years ago he sent a representative into the Middle West. Orders were easily secured, his prices were right, his products better than the local manufacturers could supply and apparently he had laid the foundation for a profitable business, but he soon found that he could not secure repeat orders and an investigation showed him that the entire difficulty lay in the fact that customers would not wait for shipments to come a thousand miles by local freight with all the dangers of delays and breakage.

His first intention was to rent space and open a branch office, but he found the cost prohibitive.

He has now discovered that he can ship to a public warehouse in carload lots and carry a stock from which his trade can be supplied immediately and greatly to his surprise the saving between the carload rate he now pays and the less than carlot rate which his customers formerly paid more than takes care of all the warehouse expense.—Sid Smith.

ST. LOUIS TERMINAL WAREHOUSE CO.

Largest Warehouse Organization in St. Louis

(For industrial storage)

We operate five separate storage warehouses, all on rail-road tracks with private sidings connecting with all rail lines entering St. Louis; also, all warehouses have free carload delivery and receipt of merchandise to and from Mississippi River Barge Line. Three of our warehouses are built over a Union Freight Depot, which permits us to forward your freight economically.

Our fleet of trucks deliver to St. Louis and to surrounding towns and cities daily. We handle a larger volume of business than any other Industrial Storage organization in St. Louis, and our warehouses are so located as to serve every industry conveniently and economically.

Let us help increase your sales by prompt, accurate and courteous service.

The Ideally Located New York Warehouse!

Here is one of the most advantageously situated warehouses you can find in New York City. Water frontage permits tying up and unloading a steamer right at our own wharf. Free lighterage offered on carload lots. The heart of Manhattan can be reached easily by truck in half an hour.

Your goods will be stored scientifically by a method that permits prompt handling of incoming or outgoing shipments at rates in keeping with the times. In addition, the sprinkler equipment on all floors and low insurance rates make an unusual combination for the shipper who wants real service at minimum cost. Over 300,000 square feet of excellent storage space offers facilities for any size shipments, from a single package to a steamer load.

Packing—Carting"The Pioneer Firm"*

For over half a century goods consigned in our care have been handled promptly and efficiently.

Naturally, we attribute our constantly increasing business to our attention to details.

The accuracy and dispatch with which we distribute merchandise consignments are bringing us lots of new business in this line.

We place no distance limit on our intercity trucking service. We go as far as you like.

Our constant aim is to render a superior service in everything appertaining to the storage warehouse and motor transportation business.

It is our invariable rule to remit collections on the same day we receive them.

Rest assured that your shipments, if sent in our care, will be handled the right way.

WHEN WRITING ADVERTISEERS MENTION DISTRIBUTION AND WAREHOUSING

BUSH helps many million people "Reach for a Lucky"

AS you "reach for a Lucky" you set in motion a highly organized system of distribution, supplying thousands of retailers daily with fast turning stocks of fresh Lucky Strikes. The American Tobacco Company men at Bush Terminal receive huge shipments from their factories and redistribute to Metropolitan New York in an amazingly endless uninterrupted stream.

When The American Tobacco Company decided to utilize the facilities of Bush Terminal for Lucky Strike and all other products of The American Tobacco Company, it was solely because this great industrial city has facilities that give more efficient, more economical handling. It was a deliberate weighing of Bush facilities against lesser. Sound business judgment. Common sense.

At Bush Terminal City, New York's industrial headquarters, hundreds of the nation's most famous products are manufactured, warehoused or distributed. The facilities provided, by reason of the cooperative aspects of the plan, are available nowhere else.

Savings ranging from 35% to 50% are enjoyed by manufacturers, big or small. The space and extent of the facilities used are fitted to your business, to be expanded or contracted to suit your requirements — and you pay only for what you use.

Bush Engineers will determine if and how you can move to Bush Terminal City. No obligation. Let us make an industrial survey, free of charge, showing actual savings you can make by coming to Bush Terminal.

BUSH TERMINAL FACILITIES

8 huge steamship piers. Coast-wise steamship connections at Terminal piers 35 miles of railway sidings. Universal freight terminals at every building — all trunk-line railroads
No cartage costs to move rail freight into or out of Terminal — package or carload
10,000,000 sq. ft. of floor space. 140 fireproof buildings — maximum daylight — heat no charge
5,000 to 100,000 sq. ft. on one floor for straight line production and distribution

Power, steam and light at lowest rates, even to small users

Lowest insurance rates — 100% sprinkler service

Metropolitan store-door trucking system extending to Philadelphia

Cold storage plant and other special facilities. Labor, excellent and plentiful

BUSH TERMINAL—AN INDUSTRIAL CITY WHERE COSTS ARE CUT IN HALF AND EFFICIENCIES MULTIPLY SALES OPPORTUNITIES

How to MAINTAIN PROFITS in the face of REDUCED REVENUE

IF profits represent the difference between outgo and income (as they most certainly do), and if it is difficult to increase income (as some people are saying), isn't it obvious that profits may be retained by reducing outgo, particularly when such a reduction brings with it greater efficiency?

If that impresses you as being a radical statement, be all the more eager to challenge it, to make us prove that it can be done, to demand evidence that it has been done.

You can get profits out of reduced costs by using the facilities of Bush Terminal.

Bush Terminal is not a building... but a city of buildings that may well be called industrial apartment houses, for they provide economies and conveniences for manufacturing, warehousing and distributing merchandise that are as carefully planned and operated as the economies and conveniences of your dwelling apartment house.

While the first and most spectacular service of Bush Terminal may be to cut your current operating costs, one of its most vital services is to multiply sales expansion opportunities by making elastic production schedules possible, and to provide greater efficiency in production and distribution processes.

Specifically, Bush Terminal offers: eight gigantic piers for ocean and coastwise steamships; concrete and steel fire-proof buildings, 100% sprinkled, light, airy; power, light and steam at lower costs; no cartage costs for moving rail freight into or out of terminal (package or carload); connections with most coastwise steamship lines, eliminating all or part of trucking charges to piers; stations of all consolidated car companies; plentiful labor; 5,000 to 100,000 square feet on one floor, reducing space and supervision costs by 35%; insurance rates as low as 8¢ per hundred, effecting vast savings; service by every trunkline railroad entering New York... sidings at every door.

● FREE INDUSTRIAL SURVEY

Bush Terminal maintains a staff of industrial engineers who are constantly fitting Bush Terminal facilities to individual and specific needs. Let one of these trained men determine the extent to which you can effect economy and efficiency at Bush Terminal. There is no cost or obligation. Our suggestions are subject to your approval. Write for descriptive literature on Manufacture, Warehousing, or Distribution, or set a time when a Bush Terminal expert may interview you.

A LIFT VAN SERVICE FOR HOUSEHOLD GOODS TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES

Lift vans for foreign shipments of Household Goods have proven to be least expensive and the safest and most satisfactory method of transportation. We furnish vans in which to pack the goods and quote a complete cost, including FULL COVERAGE INSURANCE AGAINST ALL RISKS OF TRANSPORTATION AND/OR NAVIGATION AND UNPACKING THE GOODS INTO OWNER'S RESIDENCE ABROAD. We pay storage warehousemen for preparing and packing the goods into the vans. Please advise the cubic measurement of van required, and gross weight of your next shipment and we will do the rest.

Our receiving and delivery station is located on Erie Railroad, 28th Street Terminal, 281 Eleventh Avenue, New York City. All cars shipped to us for distribution should be routed via Erie Railroad for this delivery in New York City.

Fellow Warehousemen:

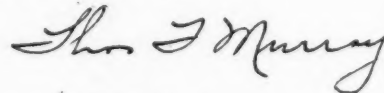

Our 1932 message to you is one of appreciation for the cooperation given us during the past year. It has contributed generously to the success of our New York; Hempstead and Freeport, Long Island plants.

We appreciate this aid from our fellow warehousemen throughout the country and in every case it will be reciprocated during the current year when opportunity offers

We believe in reciprocity and think that 1932 should be filled with the spirit of reciprocity to make it the success we hope and expect it to be.

Happy New Year to you all

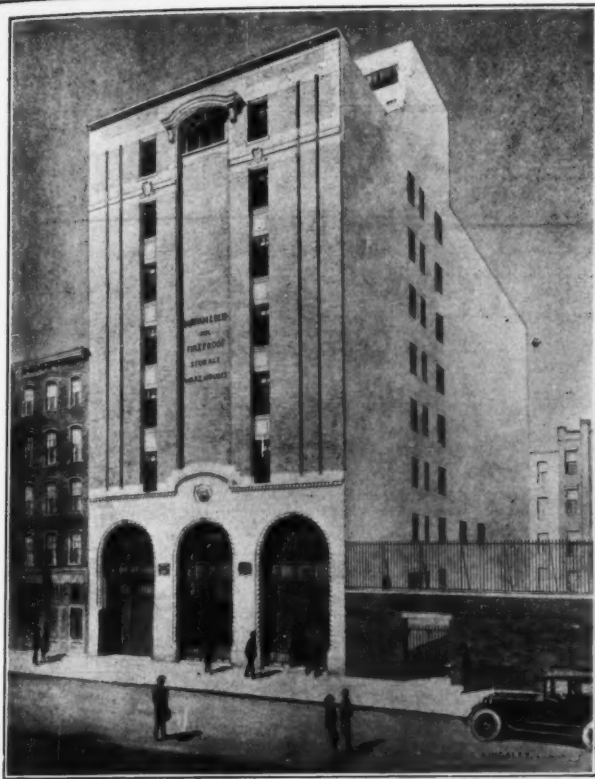

Yours very truly,

Nobody Pays for It

Nobody pays for the time and labor saving machine which cuts down the warehouseman's overhead and increases his handling capacity—it pays for itself.

Nobody pays for the motor truck which builds business and increases distribution efficiency—it pays for itself.

Nobody pays for the advertising which cuts down selling cost and puts business on a quantity basis—it pays for itself.

March Along with Cincinnati!

Cincinnati was among ten of forty-three cities of the United States reporting to the Department of Commerce, an upward trend of business, according to a dispatch from Washington, D. C. Wednesday.—News Item.

Storage Capacity:
1,500,000 Cu. Ft. Cold
6,000,000 Cu. Ft. General

A live town and a live market—both served completely and effectively by one of the country's finest merchandising marts.

TERMINAL WAREHOUSE is large, modern, responsible; it is fire-proof and sprinklered; within its walls are terminals for railroads, electric lines and motor transport companies; it is expertly manned and efficiently operated; its insurance rates are unusually low.

It's the logical distribution point for business going to Southern Ohio, Southern Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia—it's a quick, direct connection between your manufactured product and lower operating costs.

Get the most out of your territory by using Cincinnati Terminal Warehouses, Inc.

modern warehouses

strategically located for the efficient handling storing and distribution of merchandise

2,100,000 square feet of excellent storage space is located throughout Philadelphia in the various wholesale distributing sections. Modern buildings of steel and concrete construction—served by Pennsylvania Railroad sidings. Complete sprinkler equipment throughout provides low insurance rates.

As the largest operators of public warehouses in Philadelphia we are equipped to render economically the very finest type of service incident to the handling of flour, dried fruits, canned goods, cereals, soaps, glycerine, wool, mohair, cotton, linters, paper, newsprint, hay, straw, feed, groceries, refrigerators, cabinets, furniture, and all classes of package freight. Liberal allowances may be had on stored goods. Send for illustrated booklet which describes in detail the facilities of each warehouse.

CHARLESTON, S. C.

We give you all the service you want in Charleston and Territory

WAREHOUSING and distributing of merchandise in the port of Charleston and surrounding territory, together with the handling of pool car and solid car shipments, is one of our specialties.

Whatever the service you may desire, ask us. We can take care of you.

Our new three-story reinforced concrete warehouse, with 100,000 square feet of floor space, all modern equipment, and private tracks connecting with all railroad and steamship lines, gives you every facility that can be desired. We have the lowest insurance rate in the city. Our moderate storage and handling rates are quoted on request. We ship package cars to the railroads daily, free transfer. All accounts and stock handled by experienced men. Our organization works with you and for you. We have made a strong record of service in fifteen years of dealing with many large customers. Call on us at any time. Consign your cars in our care and you will have no demurrage to pay.

Nobody Pays for It

Nobody pays for the time and labor saving machine which cuts down the warehouseman's overhead and increases his handling capacity—it pays for itself.

Nobody pays for the motor truck which builds business and increases distribution efficiency—it pays for itself.

CANADIAN WAREHOUSE SECTION

Know Canada

Figures revised as of January 1, 1932

as reflected in the following figures and make it a market for your products. Its importance as a market for your merchandise whether manufactured in the United States or Canada should not be underestimated because:

Canada is Britain's largest overseas Dominion—the Britain of the West. Bounded by three oceans; 13,000 miles of coast line; nearly equal to half the circumference of the earth.

Canada is 3,500 miles by 1,400 in area. U. S.—Canada boundary is 3,000 miles long; 1,600 by land, 1,400 through water. Canada is larger in area than the United States, including Alaska, by 67,050 square miles (Canada, 3,684,723; United States and Alaska, 3,617,673).

Canada has one-third of area of British Empire, and is as large as 30 United Kingdoms and 18 Germanys; twice the size of British India; almost as large as Europe; 18 times size of France; 33 of Italy.

Canada's land area (exclusive of Territories and Yukon, and excluding swamplands and forests) is 1,401,100,000 acres. Thirty-one per cent., or 440,000,000 is fit for cultivation. Only 110,000,- 000 acres are occupied, and 60,000,000 acres, or less than 15 per cent, under cultivation.

The population of Canada as of the 1931 census is given at 10,353,778 as compared with 8,787,949 in 1921. In 1901 the population was 5,371,315.

This means greater household goods storage for Canadian warehousemen and increasing prosperity for every Canadian business institution. If you desire warehousing connections in this rapidly growing country, refer to those who are listed and advertised in this section.

Mr. Frederic Hudd, Canadian Government Trade Commissioner at New York, states that Canada is the best customer for United States-made products; the value of United States exports to Canada for the twelve months ending October, 1931, amounting to $424,277,957.00, representing 62.6% of Canada's total import trade.

The way to make money by using advertising is to use it—not to fiddle with it.

The average consumer doesn't read an advertisement, grab his hat, run down to the store and demand the product.

When Shippers in the United States require information regarding Canadian warehouses, the one certain place to find it is in Distribution and Warehousing.

For this reason it behooves every first class warehouse to advertise their business in "D. & W." It is the only certain contact you have for reaching those in the United States who make shipments to Canada.

Plymetl Vans and Vaults

VANS—Plymetl paneled van bodies are being built with a weight saving of 33% and an actual increase in strength of approximately 20%. Consider this saving in maintenance—gas, oil, wear and tear on your trucks. It costs just as much to haul dead load as it does to haul a pay load. In addition to its saving in maintenance cost, you will find that PLYMETL bodies are attractive; bring in new customers. PLYMETL bodies are stronger and will outlast several ordinary bodies.

VAULTS—Plymetl Vaults offer you several ways to profit. You will find that it pays to fumigate most of the furniture which you take into your warehouse. Every piece of furniture should be fumigated before it is mothproofed, because the mothproofing alone does not usually kill the moths.

PLYMETL Vaults also equip you for fur storage. They enable the warehouseman to offer modern scientific storage—the same equipment used by the large department stores. Plymetl Vault installations pay for themselves many times over.
